Mrs. Frances Root, 4811 Baum boulevard, whom Ernest M. Weber, Chicago gangster and hold-up artist, now under arrest in Chicago for committing 23 robberies, threatens to take "for a ride" when he is released. He accuses her of taking clothing and furniture of his a year and a half ago, while he was serving time in a Chicago jail. Mrs. Root, today said Weber roomed at her Chicago home for a month before he was arrested last May. She declared Weber had only a few old clothes at her home and Chicago police advised her to leave the clothing in the apartment when she left.

The Worst of All Crimes. Virginia's Sterilizing Law. 5 Per Cent Are Criminals. Can Science Check Crime?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

GALLUP, N. M., Dec. 21.

CALIFORNIA and the whole country are shocked by a dreadful kidnaping and murder in Los Angeles. The unhappy father, obeying the orders of the kidnaper, handed him $1,500 in gold certificates, and in return received part of the body of his 12-year-old daughter, dreadfully mutilated.

THE worst of crimes is kidnaping, since it inflicts upon fathers and mothers torments most horrible. That crime should be punished with utmost severity, and when guilt is certain with no delay. Fortunately no crime is more dangerous to the criminal himself. For it arouses intense rage in the public mind and concentrates operation of the entire population with police authorities. Escape for such criminals is rare.

COULD anything be done, by science or otherwise, to diminish the number of criminals. Usually weak-minded or mentally abnormal criminal acts that cost the country billions of dollars, and cause millions to live in anxiety, are the work of five per cent of the populations. Is there any way to identify and eliminate that criminal and always diseased or feeble-in-mind five per cent?

THE State of Virginia passed a "sterilization law" and the case of a girl 18 years old, sterilized under that law, and prevented from having children in future, was taken to the United States Supreme Court. The law of Virginia was upheld.

THE mother of the 18-year-old girl was feeble-minded, the girl herself was feeble-minded and had given birth to a feeble-minded child. The highest court in Virginia decided that "three generations of imbeciles are enough." The sterilization law was applied to the 18-year-old girl, and unless the law is changed the sterilizing operation will probably be performed on that girl's feeble-minded daughter, when she reaches the age of motherhood.

SUCH a law makes possible great abuses, but it might be, as in Virginia, surrounded with safeguards. In ages past the weak-minded and criminals were weeded out remorselessly by laws frightfully severe. In England alone thousands of children were executed for trifling thefts. Only a little more than a century ago the punishment for theft and other minor crimes was death, practically everywhere. Our more humane laws allow the majority of criminals to live, and what is more dangerous, to breed.

IDIOT or half idiot, feeble-minded fathers and mothers produce feeble-minded children, potential criminals. Science, carefully supervised and restricted, might improve the human race by making impossible reproduction of the mentally unfit. The necessary measure involves no physical suffering, inflicts no hardships, except that it is made impossible for those treated to have children. To crim-

Kline Asks Valotta Pardon

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 21.—Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, in a letter read to the State Board of Pardons today, recommends a pardon for Joseph Valotta.

Mayor Kline was the trial judge when Valotta, a Pennsylvania Railroad shopman who refused to join the strike of 1922, was sentenced to the electric chair for shooting John Hopkins, a striker, and Policeman Edward Couch, who pursued him. The death sentence was lifted from Valotta in June, 1926, on third appeal to the Pardon Board of the Pinchot administration and after 11 respites had delayed execution while every resource of state and federal courts had been tested in vain to upset the sentence.

"It is clear from the evidence in this case," Mayor Kline wrote, "that Valetta had no intention of killing anyone until he was attacked by strikers."

The Mayor's letter intimated he believes Valotta thought he was shooting to protect his own life. Any demands which justice may have against him, Kline wrote, should have been satisfied by five years in prison, and hearing the death warrant read to him at 11 different times.

"I have no hesitation in recommending a pardon," Kline's letter concluded.

Girl Note Bobs Up in Estate

A note for $90,000 made by the late William S. Gibson, wealthy bachelor coal operator, was found in the safe deposit box of Miss Lena Galley, of Denver, Col., in a McKeesport bank, and figured unexpectedly today in the proceedings for the distribution of Gibson's estate by the Orphans Court. The audit of the estate reveals that the $90,000 claim was settled for $82,500.

The note was not known to exist until it was discovered after Gibson's death last February, it being understood that the paper was placed in Miss Galley's deposit box by Gibson without her knowledge. Gibson is said to have had access to the box. The bulk of the estate, over $250,000, will go to Miss Bernice McNulty, of Philadelphia, a friend of Gibson, according to his will made in 1909.

CLOTHING AND FOOD POUR IN

Exceeding the most sanguine expectations of the most optimistic among those who planned it, The Sun-Telegraph's Bundle Day for the destitute miners was a smashing success.

Mountains of clothing were heaped up at the receiving stations this morning. Several days will be required to haul it away, for Pittsburghers came forward with thousands of bundles.

The history of the city will be searched in vain for any precedent for such generous giving of clothing on such short notice. The campaign was brought to its gratifying conclusion nine days after it had been announced.

Pictures of Bundle Day Activity on Page 17

The gifts included shoes, overcoats, dresses, underwear for men, women and children, stockings and other garments, blankets, sheets and comforters, as well as canned food in generous measure. Closets, attics and trunks were pretty nearly stripped bare in some homes in the eagerness to relieve the distress in the mining camps.

TAKEN TO CAMPS.

Miners' relief headquarters at 1902 Fifth avenue was crowded today with bundles, boxes and baskets of clothing and provisions left at the fire engine houses yesterday in answer to the Bundle Day appeal. Trucks were calling at the engine houses today to gather the contributions, which were

RESCUERS RUSHWORK, BUT WITH NO HOPE

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Diving operations were resumed at 12:30 o'clock today in an attempt to rescue the six men imprisoned in the wreck of the sunken submarine S-4. The first man to go down was James Ingram, who was the first to be lowered when the S-51 was sunk off Block Island two years ago.

No sounds from the torpedo room of the S-4, in which six men are imprisoned, have been heard since 6 o'clock last night, when seven faint taps were detected by the oscillator of the submarine S-8, a sister ship of the S-4. Although the S-8 signaled at hourly intervals throughout the night no answer came back from below.

When the Associated Press boat pulled alongside of the Falcon, Diver Tom Eadie wigwagged that a diver would be sent over as soon as the Falcon was lined up with the submarine tender Bushnell and the mine sweeper Lark. The mine sweeper Mallard, which had taken part in previous operations was not in the line.

Eadie, first diver to go down to the S-4 last Sunday, said the rescuers would attempt to tap a hole in the hull of the submarine at the torpedo room and attach an air line.

This will require the use of underwater floodlights such as were used in the S-51 salvaging operations. It will be necessary to weld the tapping machine to the hull. The machine is so constructed that when the hull is punctured and the drill withdrawn

Branded 'Fox' Fiend

EDWARD HICKMAN

With the search for him spreading throughout the western part of the nation, Edward Hickman, 17, former Kansas City high school honor student, was being sought today as the fiend who murdered and mutilated 12-year-old Marian Parker in Los Angeles after accepting $1,500 ransom for her safe return. Perry M. Parker, Marian's father, assistant cashier of a Los Angeles bank, was responsible for Hickman's conviction for forgery.

SCHOOLGIRL ESCAPES SLAVERS

Still dazed from her terrifying experiences, presumably at the hands of a white slave ring, which dragged her away from family and friends three months ago, Ella Eicher, 18, pretty McKeesport High School student, tossed restlessly on a hospital cot this morning while an anxious father and other relatives waited for a coherent account of her kidnaping.

Picked up unconscious at Penn and Millvale avenues last night, Miss Eicher was taken to the West Penn Hospital, where she regained consciousness long enough to tell detectives a lurid tale of kidnaping and forced detention in Ohio. Her clothing was almost in tatters and a handbag containing a few articles of feminine wear gave evidence of her supreme hardship. County Detective James Reddington, who has worked on the case since the girl's disappearance, visited the hospital this morning with the girl's father, J. T. Eicher,

Escapes Slavers

MISS ELLA EICHER

Miss Ella Eicher, McKeesport High School girl, claims she was kidnaped at the school September 6 by two men and a woman, taken to Ohio and kept under the influence of drugs. She tells of escaping from her captors and fleeing to this city. She was found unconscious last night in a street in Bloomfield and taken to Mercy Hospital. Detectives are on the trail of her abductors.

KILLERS GO TO PRISON

By International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21.—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl and Willis Beach arrived at State Prison here at 10:30 a. m. today from the Atlantic County Jail in Mays Landing, to begin service of a sentence of 10 years each at hard labor. They were convicted of voluntary manslaughter for the murder of the woman's husband, Dr. William Lilliendahl, near Hammonton on September 15 last.

The couple arrived in an automobile in the custody of Sheriff James Cimino and other officials.

ASSIGNED TO CELLS

The pedigrees of both were then taken in the outer office of the prison before they were assigned to cells.

The couple ate little of their breakfast before leaving for the Trenton prison.

"A more innocent woman was never sent to jail," Mrs. Lilliendahl said as she threw her things into a suitcase. "It is all a nightmare."

Beach was grim and silent.

As they stepped into the heated limousine, Mrs. Lilliendahl said:

"The only thing that helps me bear up now when I must go to prison is the knowledge that my friends still have faith in my innocence."

The widow was asked if she intends to seek a new trial.

"That is a matter for my attorneys," she answered briefly as she settled herself into the back seat.

YOUTH HELD IN KIDNAP-MURDER

By ARTHUR L. MAREK, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.—Despite his strenuous denials that he has any knowledge of the Marion Parker kidnaping-killing, Sydney Farkus, 22, a student at the University of California at Los Angeles, was arrested early today and ordered held for further questioning.

Farkus, who is said to bear a striking physical resemblance to William Edward Hickman, sought as the Parker girl's murderer, was taken into custody as he was walking alone on a deserted street in Beverly Hills.

The boy said he left home last night following a quarrel with his father.

In the meantime, "Get the Fox, dead or alive," is the drastic order under which Los Angeles police are working.

Waynesburg Prexy Riled by Special College "Fags"

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 21.—The ire of President Paul R. Stewart of Waynesburg College has been stirred so by the appearance here this week of cigarets under the name, "Waynesburg College Specials," that he is contemplating a damage suit against a New York tobacco firm for illegal use of the college name and seal.

The same method is followed in many college towns throughout the country, college authorities have learned, the name and seal of a school being used to popularize "smokes."

Gas Explosion "Accident"

The explosion of the 5,000,000 cubic foot gas tank of the Equitable Gas Company in Reedsdale street, Manchester, on November 14, was an accident, a coroner's jury agreed today after hearing 40 witnesses in the past two days tell the story of the blast that cost 28 lives.

The jury further agreed that the blast occurred when leaking gas came in contact with an electric welder used by one of the repair workmen of Riter-Conley Company.

The jury's one recommendation was that the American Gas Association or some such group be asked to lend its aid in future repairing of gas holders.

The human element was predominant tday in probe of the blast, which cost 28 lives and $5,000,000 property loss. Men limped to the witness box and told how they suffered injuries which had kept them long weeks in the hospital, and members of the first-aid team, first helpers on the scene of the accident, related grewsome incidents of rescuing the maimed and digging out the bodies of the dead.

Charles Shellbaugh, storekeeper for the Equitable Gas Company, who was working at the plant at the time of the explosion and was among the injured, was the first witness. He told of seeing a repair workman walking over the top runway of the tank with an idle welder in his hand. The workman applied the "juice," Shellbaugh testified, and an instant

Life Fight Won by Remus

"HEIR" ADMITS HE FAKED "KINDNESS" WILL; WANTED MONEY TO GIVE REAL CHRISTMAS TO TOTS, SICK WIFE

REMUS, AS HE FOUGHT IN SHADOW OF DEATH CHAIR.

George Remus, once the "Bootleg King of Ohio," killed his wife, Imogene, shown inset, after he had forced her taxi to stop in a Cincinnati park. He said she had been unfaithful to him while he was serving time in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. He accused Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., the prohibition agent, who sent him to prison, of stealing his wife's love while he was jailed. He pleaded his case on the "unwritten law"—and won.

ROMOLA.

All through the trial Romola Remus stood by her father. She was in court constantly, sitting at the counsel table, following intently progress of the trial.

RUTH.

Ruth Remus, daughter of the slain woman by another marriage, was another constant trial attendant. But she was there in hope of seeing her mother's killer convicted.

BANK OFFICIALS WILL NOT PROSECUTE HIM

In a squalid room on the second floor of 904 Western avenue, North Side, which serves as a kitchen, parlor and bedroom for his wife, two babies and himself, Charles W. Bonner, 47, last night told Sun-Telegraph reporters he had faked the "will" of Mrs. Isabel Coates Perry, bequeathing to him all of her property, valued at many thousands of dollars.

Bonner's admission that he had written the letter, was made known to J. L. Davidson, coroner's chief clerk, today by John M. Edwards, trust officer of the Potter Title and Trust Company, to whom Bonner had submitted the purported will late yesterday, the company being agents for Mrs. Perry's property.

Officers of the trust company quizzed Bonner and he admitted, they said, he had penned the missive. No action against him is contemplated, it is said.

"I did it last Saturday," Bonner told a reporter, "because my wife, there, must go to the hospital. There is to be no Christmas for any of us, and I was desperate with their suffering."

The wife turned white. Then she screamed.

"I don't believe it, daddy! I don't believe it!" she cried, and fell moaning to the bed. The two babies, Charles, Jr., and John, ran whimpering, and clung to her skirts.

Mrs. Perry was found dead in an attitude of prayer beside her bed last Wednesday in an apartment house she owned at 1534 Arch street. No relatives could be found until yesterday, when a brother appeared to claim the estate, which included another apartment and a considerable sum on deposit at the Potter Title and Trust Company Bank.

"It was reading in the paper about there being no one to claim her property that started me thinking about the scheme," said Bonner. "I wished to God I could have taken it out a moment after I dropped it in the box. Then this wouldn't have happened."

Then the man who is paid $21 a week to run the elevator at a North Side warehouse told of the dreams which possessed him of providing the best attention in a hospital for his wife and of seeing that Santa Claus came to the drab room they've called home since July 18.

"Oh, daddy, I don't believe it!" his wife moaned from the bed, time and time again. And patiently, sorrowfully, penitently, as often, he told her.

"Yes, I did, and I'm not going to deny a thing."

Bonner's wife told of their marriage in 1921 at Ravenna, O., a year after he had divorced his first wife, whom he married in 1910. His present wife is 22—25 years younger than her husband. Charles, Jr., is 3½, his brother, John, 2. They are beautiful, tow-headed babies.

"I did give a woman $5 and my raincoat in Akron once, in 1913," Bonner said. This was the "kind gift" which, in the "will" he forged the dead woman's name to, prompted her to leave him her property.

"I am a machinist. For 14 years I made valves, and it ruined my eyesight. For more than two years I have been hardly able to see at all, so when I apply for a job in my trade the eyesight test ruins me. We came here last July, and I got the job I'm on. What I'm afraid of now is that I'll lose it, as little as it is."

There won't be any Santa Claus at his home this Christmas. There may not be any food even.

The body of Mrs. Perry, which was claimed yesterday at the morgue by her brother James H. Gregg, of Orchard Park, Erie county, N. Y., lay today at Samson's undertaking rooms, Neville street, where funeral services will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. Interment will be made in the Allegheny Cemetery. She leaves two brothers besides Gregg and two sisters in different parts of the country.

GAS EXPLOSION "ACCIDENT"

later the tank was blasted. He said the welding machine had lighted up as the workman prepared to begin work.

Battalion Fire Chief Daniel Jones opened his story by declaring that he had turned in four fire alarms and then rushed to the scene where he saw "bodies of the dead strewn around." He was closely questioned about the number of bodies visible. He said he saw "a lot of dead bodies," but as the examination continued he amended his estimate to four bodies, "but had seen no more than this number.

The witness said that he had worked on the erection of the tanks "back in 1898 and had long expected them to blow up." He said that he remained on duty from the hour of the explosion until 10 p. m. Wednesday when he went to a hospital with blistered feet. He repeated that he had long predicted the disaster, and when the fire chief left the stand John E. Crawshaw, explosives engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines was recalled.

"Is it possible for natural gas in a gasholder to explode? Is a gasholder as a gasholder safe?" he was asked.

"Gas that fills a gas holder will not explode, but if it escapes it will burn on the outside when it mixes with air. A gas holder full of gas is not an explosive menace," the witness answered.

Employes of the plant and members of the first aid teams including Fred A. Manns, K. L. Anderson, J. M. Wachter, H. L. Smith, S. A. Oleson, H. P. Yost, John G. Baur, C. E. Donahey and Steve Kulik described in detail their work in recovering bodies and assisting the injured. Kulik was badly injured. In broken English he gave a thrilling description of the blast and of his escape from beneath tons of wreckage.

NO HOPE HELD

By International News Service.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 21.—Renewed salvage operations on the sunken submarine S-4 were well under way this afternoon as the rescue fleet, which for days has been held in the harbor here by rough weather, steamed out to the buoy marking the spot where 40 odd men went to the bottom in their steel cage last Saturday.

Although hope for the six men who escaped instant death when the S-4 was rammed by th Paulding and went down in more than 100 feet of icy water was practically gone, the rescue crews set about their work today as if the lives of their comrades depended on their efforts.

The gale, abating during the morning, again threatened to interfere with operations this afternoon as the rescuers set about laying the diving platforms. An effort will be made to force an air line into the S-4 as soon as the divers have cleared away the slimy mud gathered about the submarine, officials said.

Despite the frantic efforts being made in behalf of the men imprisoned in the cold, poisonous air below, it was generally taken for granted that no sign of life would be found in the S-4 when it is finally entered.

TWO FEET FROM DEATH

The low stone guard wall of Bigelow boulevard, overlooking the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, yesterday saved the life of Mrs. John L. inals and the feeble-minded that means little.

CERTAIN crimes might well be taken as prima facie evidence of mental characteristics that would justify steps that without taking life would cut off the criminal feeble-minded breed, as the fallows did for tens of thousands in olden times.

THERE is no doubt that tendencies to crime and feeble-mindedness in parents are visited upon children by the stern laws of nature and this may sometimes actually be seen. Many years ago a well-educated young man sentenced to the electric chair for killing a young girl said to this writer, who as a reporter had met him, "I want you as a favor to see me die and tell my mother, how I faced death."

SEEING the man die was not pleasant, telling his mother about it was not an agreeable undertaking. The young man died coldly, falsely affirming his innocence. His mother, a shriveled up little woman, waiting near the prison when told, "Your son died bravely" rubbed her hands, chuckled, and said "I knew he would, I knew he would." Her voice was as cold as had been that of the son who just then was having the top of his skull sawed off by the surgeons of the prison. You could see in that cold mother the source of the son's cold criminality.

IF IT were possible by sterilization, or otherwise, to prevent the birth of any children to the five per cent of criminals and feeble-minded, even that would not immediately do away with crime. "The Mendelian Law of Inheritance" of which the truth is firmly established, proves that all human beings are potential carriers of defects innumerable, including feeble-mindedness, but sterilization of the feeble-minded and criminal would reduce crime and insanity to a minimum in a very short time.

IT IS improbable that anything drastic will be done in this generation. Objections of great weight would be urged against any extensive application of the sterilization idea. But it deserves careful consideration as an alternative to inefficient capital punishment, with its long delays and numerous escapes after conviction.

NEWSPAPERS told yesterday of a criminal escaping from officers boarding a train in search of the Los Angeles murderer. The man that escaped, not the one they sought, was described by them as one who had been, "imprisoned for the murder of a woman and stuffing her body into a furnace, a degenerate murderer type." Immediately upon his conviction he could have been deprived of the power to to reproduce other men of his type.

IN SANTA MONICA a man telegraphed the police that he had been caretaker of a young man recently confined in a sanitarium for criminal attacks on young girls. The young man had eluded his vigilance and the caretaker thought his charge might have been guilty of the kidnaping and murder. That such creatures should be kept loosely guarded, and permitted without effective restraint to perpetuate their kind when science could easily, painlessly and legally make that impossible, says little for the common sense of civilization.

Some, sentimental and foolish, will object that the proposed scientific method of dealing with crime would be "interfering with the plans of Providence." That objection was offered most earnestly when anaesthetics were first discovered on the ground that they interfered with pain which Providence wished men to suffer. However, those who believe that Providence would object to any interference with kidnaping and murder, have opinions not worthy of much attention.

Three hours after the robberies the car was found abandoned at McCandless avenue and Dresden way, Lawrenceville.

NORTH SIDERS' TREE

SANTA ARRIVES EARLY

Santa Claus dropped down on the North Side a little early and left a gigantic Christmas tree to brighten the business section around old Allegheny city hall and the market. The tree, illuminated with myriads of colored bulbs, was erected in Ober Park by the North Side Chamber of Commerce. Firemen, acting as Santa's helpers, came to the rescue of the tree delegation when it came to hanging trimmings on the topmost branches. The tree stands in the center of a raised platform in the middle of the park at Federal and West Ohio street. Holiday exercises will be held by the commerce body in the next few days.

Malone Wants Probe To Go to Finish

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Following is a letter to William Randolph Hearst from Dudley Field Malone, expressing Malone's view of the Mexican expose papers:

December 20, 1927.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst,
137 Riverside Drive,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Hearst:

Of course I have not been happy over the association of my name, in those Mexican documents, with an alleged attempt to corrupt four Senators, and I am sure you are as anxious as I am to find out what reason or motives there were for the use of our names. But whether the rest of the documents, showing an apparent attempt improperly to interfere with the functioning of our government, are true or false still remains open to the searching inquiry of the Senate. Though I am one of the victims of the situation, I want you to know that I do not now and never have questioned your integrity or patriotic motives in publishing those documents.

If it was your opinion, as you have testified, that you did not believe that these Senators ever received any money or were offered any money by myself or anyone else, you were still faced with the conscientious duty to publish the documents, which seem to set forth an attempt to influence our government on the Mexican question. My own theory is, and has been, that the names of the four Senators and myself were picked out as names known to the public in order to conceal the real use of this alleged fund.

If you were going to be a party to manufacturing charges of corruption you certainly would not have picked out Progressive Senators whose policies you have supported for years, nor a man like myself to whom, throughout my political and professional life, you have always given the warmest support and friendship. Honest public men are naturally upset at charges against their integrity, but that is the very reason they should hesitate unjustifiably to question the honest motives of others.

For my part I stand ready to lend any assistance in my power to get at the bottom of this whole business, and to that end we need more light and less heat.

Faithfully Yours,
DUDLEY FIELD MALONE.

ELUDES SLAVE RING

a supervisor of the West Penn Railways Company. Her abductors made her believe that her father had been injured, she revealed, and induced her to enter the automobile on the pretext of taking her to him.

DRUGGED

Once in the automobile she was drugged and taken to Ohio, the girl told police. She described the house in the Ohio city where she was held a prisoner by the three, and police here have asked the Ohio authorities to try and locate the "hangout" of the alleged white slave gang. Most of the time she was under the influence of drugs, the young woman said. During that time she was mistreated and abused by her captors she told police.

Two days ago the young woman escaped from her "prison" and managed to make her way to Pittsburgh. She does not clearly remember how she got to this city nor how she came to be in the Bloomfield district where she was found. Detectives say she may be a victim of amnesia, as her condition and her story uphold this theory. She is very weak and does not remember all that took place since she disappeared.

The girl made her home with her uncle, Matthew Eicher, of 309 Atcheson street, McKeesport. The day of her disappearance she reported to school. Friends in school say she was enthusiastic about her studies and that she was a leader in school activities.

When the girl disappeared the theory was expressed that she had eloped with another student at the school who disappeared the same day. It was later learned that he left the city alone.

City detectives say that while the girl's story is not entirely complete, they are inclined to believe that she was kidnaped by a white slave ring operating between Pittsburgh and Ohio cities. They say there have been numerous cases of missing girls reported to the Missing Persons Bureau during the last three months. Ohio authorities are helping the local authorities check the girl's story.

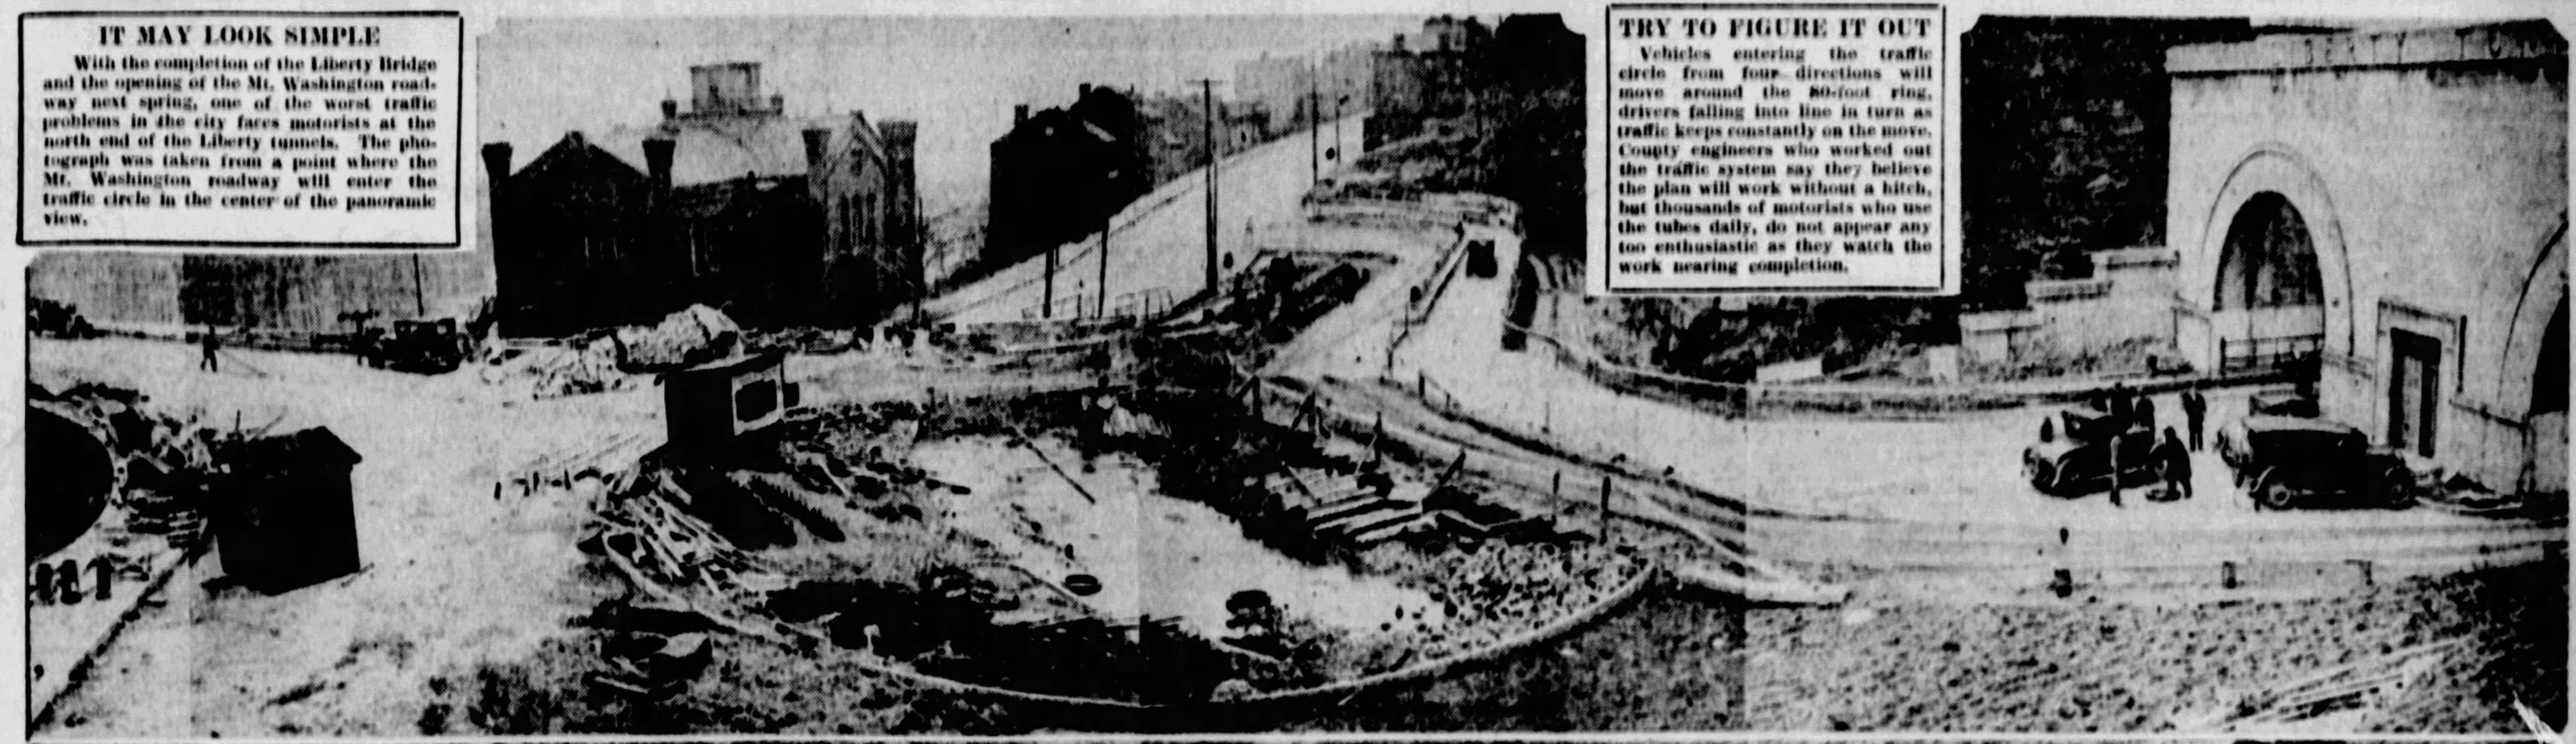
RUM LAW "INSULT" REMUS' LIFE TARGET

Problem in Traffic at Tunnels

POSTOFFICE BRANCH IS ROBBED OF $145



IT MAY LOOK SIMPLE

With the completion of the Liberty Bridge and the opening of the Mt. Washington roadway next spring, one of the worst traffic problems in the city faces motorists at the north end of the Liberty tunnels. The photograph was taken from a point where the Mt. Washington roadway will enter the traffic circle in the center of the panoramic view.

TRY TO FIGURE IT OUT

Vehicles entering the traffic circle from four directions will move around the 80-foot ring, drivers falling into line in turn as traffic keeps constantly on the move. County engineers who worked out the traffic system say they believe the plan will work without a hitch, but thousands of motorists who use the tubes daily, do not appear any too enthusiastic as they watch the work nearing completion.

REMUS TO HIT DRY LAW

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 21.—George Remus, acquitted of the murder of his wife, Imogene, "on the sole grounds of insanity," will dedicate the rest of his life, he says, "to stifle the insult known as the prohibition law.

It was by circumventing this law that Remus a few years ago became known as the nation's most audacious and spectacular bootlegger, building up a gross business of $100,000,000. He made a profit of some $7,000,000—and lost practically all of it. He knows the booze business as probably no other man does, and can speak with some authority.

Besides touring the country as a lecturer, he plans to write a book, "The Life of George Remus."

Remus probably would have gone scotfree for the slaying of his wife, whom he shot last October 6 in Eden Park, had not Judge Chester R. Shook eliminated from his instructions to the jury the straight "not guilty" form of verdict. The jury wanted to give Remus a Christmas present in the form of his freedom, but they could not under the law. So they did the next best thing—returned the verdict of "not guilty on the sole ground of insanity."

Remus will get a sanity hearing next Wednesday, Judge Lueders, of the Probate Court, announced today. Remus was denied bond, and until then must remain in jail, in accordance with yesterday's verdict.

DONORA WAR CHEST TO HELP BUILD SCHOOL

DONORA, Pa., Dec. 21.—Donora's unexpended war chest fund of $32,426.63 will be applied toward purchase of a school building site, as a result of a decision by the Washington county court complying with a request submitted by the American Steel and Wire Company, one of the largest contributors to the fund.

RAG-STUFFED PIPE FIRES DOVER HOME

DOVER, O., Dec. 21.—Flames starting in a furnace pipe in which workmen had stuffed rags to keep the pipe clean while remodelling the house caused $10,000 damage last night to the residence of Samuel J. Reeves, banker and manufacturer.

THIS SHOWS HOW COMPLICATED IT WILL BE

Here is an artist's sketch of the traffic plan devised by county engineers for the north end of the Liberty tunnels. The Mt. Washington roadway, now under construction, will be completed by next spring, and then there will be a tangle of traffic, users of the tubes say. Two of the most difficult problems will be the driver on Mt. Washington roadway heading for the downtown section across the Liberty Bridge, and the driver coming out of the tubes with the intention of turning up Mt. Washington roadway. The artist has shown several inevitable tangles by using different markings for the various routes. No prizes are offered for solutions, but no doubt county engineers would be thankful for suggestions.

LANG FOR WIDER STRAWBERRY WAY

The proposal to make Strawberry way a 60-foot street extending from Bigelow bulevard to Duquesne way was approved by Public Works Director Edward G. Land at a meeting of the City Planning Commission today.

"Steps should be taken at once to bring about this much-needed improvement," he told the members of the commission. "It will not only relieve traffic congestion in the downtown district, but would provide a direct artery from Bigelow boulevard to the North Side by way of the Ninth Street Bridge."

The cost of the project was estimated at $1,250,000 by U. N. Arthur, engineer of the commission. This estimate was attacked as too low by L. W. Monteverde, a member of the commission and former head of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. "It will be at least twice that," he predicted, pointing out that most of the property abutting on the alley fronts on main thoroughfares and would yield little in benefits.

"We have been trying to move traffic around the downtown triangle where there already is so much congestion," said Mr. Monteverde. "It seems to me this proposal would have the effect of attracting more traffic to an already congested district."

Charles M. Reppert, cihef engineer of the Department of Public Works, maintained that the proposed improvement would not have the tendency of adding to the congestion, but would relieve it by providing a direct artery to the North Side, taking the load from Sixth and Oliver avenues and enabling the public to use the Ninth Street Bridge speedily and effectively.

By widening Strawberry way, Reppert said, the city could secure quickly and comparatively inexpensively much of the benefit expected to result from the proposed major improvement plan of bridges, streets and viaducts connecting the Liberty Tubes directly with the North Side.

"Would the widening of Strawberry way be a substitute for that?" asked Morris Knowles, chairman of the commission.

"It would not be a substitute," said Reppert. "If this could be built in the near future at much less cost it would be of great help in relieving congestion. Both improvements will be required in the future."

William H. Stevenson pointed out that the new street would serve as a North Side connection from the new Liberty bridge, traffic moving to the Bigelow boulevard mouth of the thoroughfare by way of Tunnel street.

"I have heard objections to that, if the alley is widened, the new intersections would add to traffic troubles," he said. "The city is planning to install a traffic beacon system in the downtown district. The synchronized lighting system would answer those who object because of the new intersections."

The business interests of the city would lose a trucking service way if the alley were to be widened, objected William Mossman, representing the B. F. Jones, Jr., Properties, Inc., Willis L. King and George M. Laughlin, Jr. He said that the widening would not stop the loading of trucks with the result that both the trucks and the general traffic would be hampered, as is the case in some places along Oliver avenue. Every traffic advantage, he insisted, is offset by a disadvantage.

"Business men downtown want traffic," said Walter Rosenbaum, urging that the street be widened. "They want busy looking streets. But they want the traffic to move in an orderly manner." He predicted that it would be necessary in the future to construct a main thoroughfare along the wharves around the triangle and that the proposed improvement would fit in with such a project.

Thomas Watson, representing the owners of the new Clark Building and Stanley Theater, predicted that the opening in January of the new amusement house would add an additional traffic of 10,000 persons in the district. The present facilities are far inadequate, he said, urging the widening.

The general plan proposes widening of the alley from Bigelow boulevard to Liberty avenue and its extension to Duquesne way over Ninth street. The use of Eighth street was suggested as a possibility. Mr. Watson said that his clients preferred Eighth street, but that either plan was better than the present situation. C. A. Schuldice urged the Eighth street extension.

The commission has ordered its engineers to study the project in detail and to prepare new estimates of its cost. The proposal, negatived by two planning commissions, was revived by A. H. Burchfield, vice chairman of the commission. After the data has been secured by the commission an open hearing, to which all owners of abutting property will be invited, probably will be held before any definite recommendation is made.

POSTOFFICE BRANCH IS ROBBED

Two masked and armed bandits late last night held up the Barkley's Pharmacy at 1748 Chislett street and escaped with $145, part of it taken from No. 40 sub station of the Pittsburgh postoffice. After the robbery the two walked to the street, removed their masks and ran up Chislett street.

H. F. Barkley, manager of the store, told police that one of the robbers held a gun at his head while the other removed $25 from his pockets. The cash register was then opened and $95 was taken by the robber. Before leaving the two stole $25 belonging to the Pittsburgh postoffice from a corner of the store used as a sub-station. The bandits had been seen "loafing" near the store before the holdup.

EXPERTS DENY COUNTY DUPED

Testimony flatly contradicting previous statements of J. McClurg Donley, engineer for Controller C. C. McGovern, that the county had been duped by contractors in installing inferior safety barrier posts on county roads, was given by two expert witnesses at McGovern's audit hearing today.

Fred G. Wilsman, lumber inspector for various firms for many years, testified that chips cut by Donley from posts on the Buena Vista-Lovedale road, and pronounced by him to be chestnut or poplar, were locust as specified with the exception of one. It was unnecessary to mutilate posts by chopping, he said, to determine the kind of wood.

Harry J. Freeman, chief of the county bureau of tests and specifications, testified that yesterday he made an inspection of posts on the county-owned part of the Duncan avenue extension road and found all posts to be locust. On the part maintained by the State Highway Department, he said, poplar and other woods had been used.

Party For S-4 Victims Now Death Watch

By MILTON JILER.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 21.—A Christmas eve party for six couples will not take place Saturday night because the six men are at the bottom of the ocean in the S-4.

The six girls, two of whom are brides of three months and the four others sweethearts and fiances, last night were in various stages of grief, some hoping against hope, and others facing the darkness of despair.

The party had been planned to start early Christmas eve at the home of Mrs. Frederick Shields, and to continue into the morning. Invitations had been made by letter. The forthcoming party was the subject of much communication between wives, sweethearts and sailors. It was expected that two engagements would be announced at the party.

Those planning to attend were: John Joseph Fennell, of Lowell, Mass., machinist's mate on the S-4, and his sweetheart, Miss Jeanette Mercier, 16; Miss Nellie Johnson and her sweetheart, Paul Kemper, of Nant-y-Glo, Pa., machinist's mate on the S-4; Miss Mae Thomas and her fiance, Charles Bereford Calcott, machinist's mate on the boat; Miss Bertha Staron and her fiance, Joseph John Powers, coxswain of the S-4; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snizek and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. O'Shields, host and hostess at the party.

The local girls met the boys from the S-4 when that boat was in Bridgeport Harbor for maneuvers in June.

PASTOR LEAVES $16,000

The will of the Rev. H. K. Shanor, Lutheran minister of Beaver street, Sewickley, leaving an estate valued at $16,000 to his wife, Maria A. Shanor, during her life, and to his two sons and three daughters upon her death, was filed for probate today. The will also provides that the books of the minister are to go to the first grandson who enters the Lutheran ministry.

HOPE ALL BUT VANISHED -:- FOR CREW -:- OF SUNKEN SUBMARINE S-4

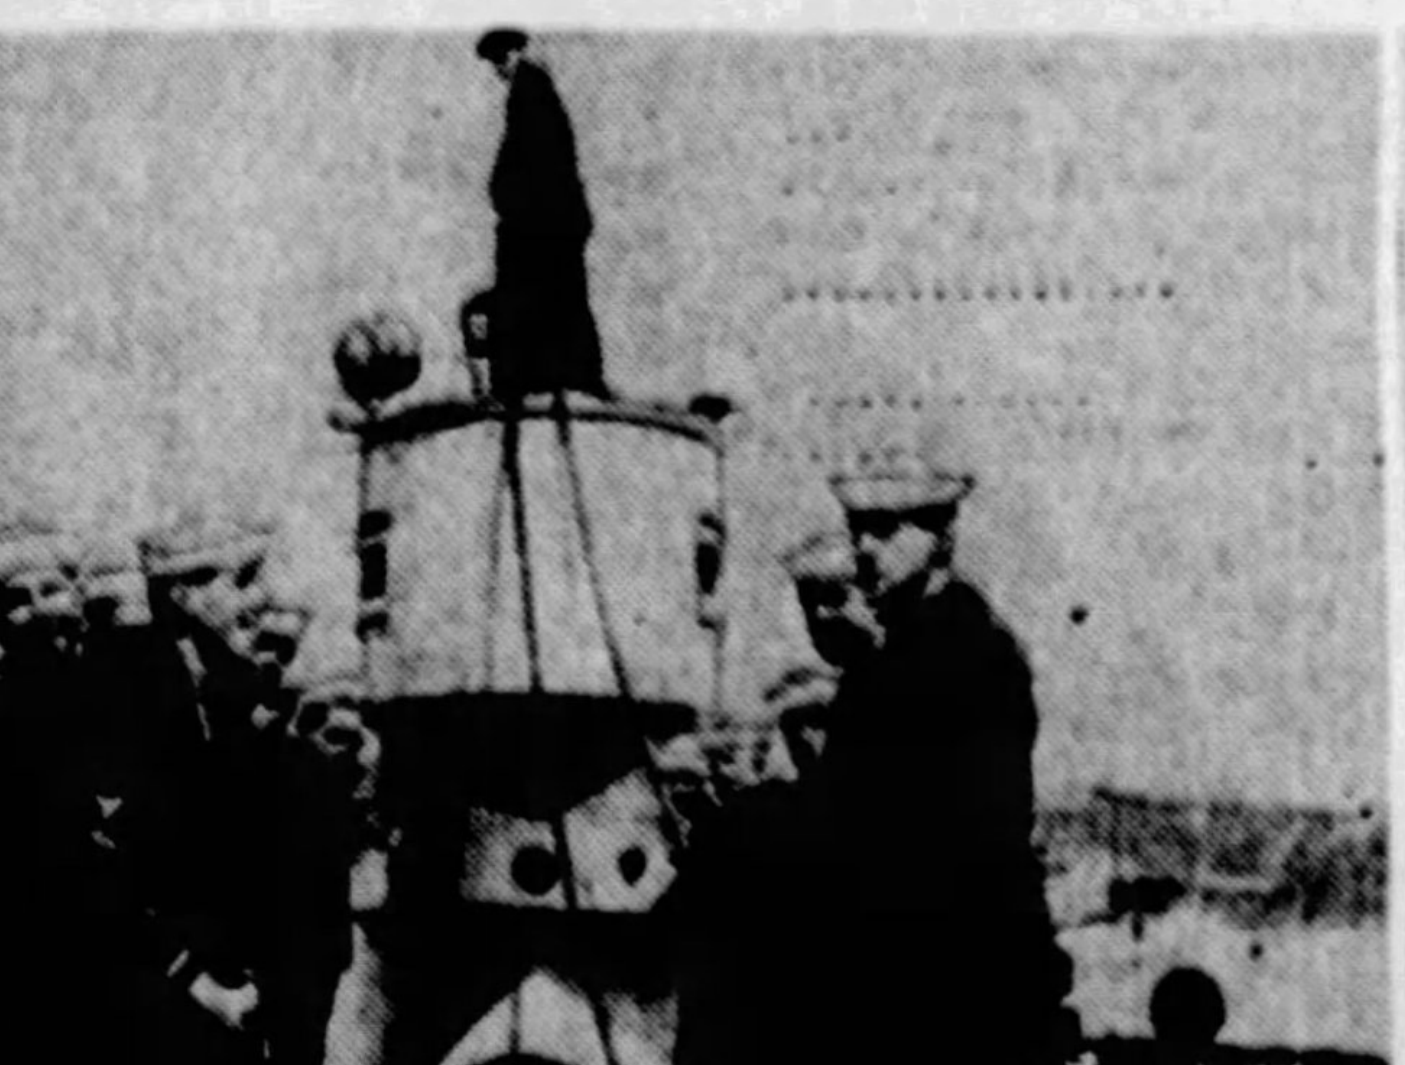
WHEN ALL WAS WELL.

This photograph of an "S" fleet riding anchor in San Diego Harbor a few weeks before the S-4 came east to meet disaster which sent her to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean off Cape Cod. Hope for the six men known to be alive in the forward compartment after she was rammed by the coast guard cutter Paulding has all but vanished. Inset is of James Milazzo, who was at the wheel of the Paulding when the crash occurred. The S-4 can be seen in the foreground.



CREW TRAPPED WITHOUT WARNING.

And this shows her crew but a few days before the fateful accident. Forty men and four officers are believed in the ship now lying in 120 feet of water near Provincetown, Mass. While the more optimistic naval officials believe there is yet hope some may be saved, the general impression is that all are dead.

FAMILIES GRIEF-STRICKEN.

News of the tragedy brought no tears to Mrs. Samuel Snizek, New York; just a cold, dry anguish for her boy. Frank Snizek, a member of the sunken boat's crew.

Still Time For Gifts To 20 Neediest

The campaign which The Sun-Telegraph has been conducting for the relief of the Twenty Neediest Cases of poverty and suffering in Pittsburgh, as reported by the charitable organizations, will be terminated Saturday. Contributions should therefore be made without further delay.

While it is true that relief in the form of necessities of life for some weeks is to be given these unfortunate families, and not merely toys for the children and bountiful holiday dinners, it is desired to tender it in the form of a Christmas present; hence the need that the whole amount be on hand Saturday. There is yet time to make donations to this cause.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon yesterday contributed $50, representing a collection taken up among attorneys in his court, supplemented by his own gift. There were a number of other interesting contributions yesterday, among them being several from organizations.

One contributor wrote: "My own bank account is certainly nothing to boast about, but I have my health and a job, which I know many unfortunates in our city do not have, and, while my donation is exceptionally small, it is my hope that it will help to ease conditions a little for some one in worse circumstances than I."

The suggestion is made by a contributor that a gift to the Twenty Neediest Cases Fund will help to ease the conscience if made by those who have offended against society and desire to make reparation.

The Twenty Neediest Cases have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America.

Checks and money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, or if preferred, to one of the societies named.

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sun-Telegraph of November 27.

One case was then repeated each day. All cases are being described for the third time this week. Here are cases Nos. 10, 11 and 12:

Case No. 10

This family has the sincerest sympathy of all who know them. The father used to work in the mills and had no difficulty in providing for his children. Several years ago he developed tuberculosis of the hip. This has caused the shortening of one leg and makes it very difficult for him to obtain work. He is devoted to his wife, who is dying with tuberculosis, and to his children. The care of the household falls on the 15-year-old daughter, who plays the part of the little mother to her little brothers, 4 and 8.

Fuel, food and clothing must be furnished.

(Reported by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor.)

Case No. 11

How can a woman with eight children, all under 16 years, shelter, feed and clothe them when her husband has tuberculosis and is spending the last few months of his life in the hospital?

This mother thought she was solving her problem in part when she obtained employment. To her, food was a more pressing need than education and she kept her older children away from school day after day to take care of the babies while she went to work. It was hard to make her understand that she could not do this and work out a plan for the family. A working certificae was obtained for the oldest boy, and he is now earning $1 a day. This, the entire income of the family, is barely sufficient to pay the rent. Food, fuel and clothing must be provided.

(Reported by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor.)

How 20 Neediest Cases Money May Be Sent

Designate the particular case you wish to help.

Checks or money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., or to the following co-operating organizations:

The Associated Charities of Pittsburgh, Fulton Building.

The Catholic Charities, Diocese of Pittsburgh, Wabash Building.

The Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, 428 Duquesne way.

The Salvation Army, 425 Second avenue.

The Volunteers of America, Volunteer Building, Pittsburgh.

Case No. 12

This fast growing family has been having a hard time finding sufficient to keep themselves in health and strength. The father is a carpenter, but has been ill for some time and as a result the five young children have gone many times without sufficient food. The mother is considerably handicapped because the children are all so small. It has been necessary not only to try and see that they have enough food, but also to plan to improve the health of the family.

(Reported by the Salvation Army.)

Cases Nos. 13, 14 and 15 will be described tomorrow.

NEW MEXICAN SENATOR DIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Death has removed from the Senate one of its outstanding Democrats—Senator Andrieus A. Jones, of New Mexico.

Victim of frequent attacks of angina pectoris, the Senator died at his residence here last night in his sixty-fifth year. His condition, weakened by a cold that had confined him to his quarters since the start of this session of Congress. Senator Jones was unable to overcome a sudden recurrence of his ailment. The Senator last was stricken during the closing session of the Sixty-ninth Congress, but was believed to have materially regained his health.

BLAST DAMAGES BUILDING

An explosion of undetermined origin, followed by fire, last night did damage to the three-story building at 928 Penn avenue occupied by the Schlesinger company, estimated at $5,000. The explosion occurred on the third floor of the building and the fire was confined to that floor. The concern is a wholesale dealer in boy's clothing. Traffic in Penn avenue was halted for about half an hour.

PARTING WAYS WORK SUCCESS

Eighty per cent of the 11,837 men who have been helped by the Parting of the Ways Home since their release from prisons, have made good and are "going straight," records of the organization show. The home was started 14 years ago and is supported entirely by public subscriptions. The annual drive for financial aid is being conducted now. Donations may be sent to the home, 216 East Stockton avenue, North Side.

BRANDS THREE H'S MOTORISTS' NEMESIS

MINERS' BUNDLE DAY IS SMASHING SUCCESS

delivered to the central depot. A large quantity of the material was immediately taken to mining camps where the need is greatest.

Collection of clothing will continue. Justice of the Peace S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City telephoned that the people of the Beaver Valley would be glad to help if transportation were furnished, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America at once arranged for trucks. It is expected that bundles will be collected in all the towns between New Castle and Pittsburgh.

A number of other communities in the Pittsburgh district are working to the same end. Hundreds of telephone calls were received by those in charge of Bundle Day from persons unable to deposit their offerings at the engine houses or other receiving stations. An effort will be made to obtain enough trucks to call at the homes of all these persons.

A ministerial committee representing all churches of every denomination met yesterday and directed the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, pastor of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church and chairman of the social service commission of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ, to draw up an appeal to the people of Pittsburgh to help the needy miners' families. It is expected that the appeal will set forth the situation as noted by Prof. Colston E. Warne of the University of Pittsburgh and other sociologists in recent investigations. It will be read in the churches next Sunday.

Dr. Edward N. Clopper, head of the Federation of Social Agencies, attended the ministers' meeting as a liaison officer representing the central committee of social workers that will administer the relief fund. Dr. Urmy announced that the county commissioners will give free use of the old South School, Diamond and Ross streets, for storing and distribution of bundles.

Grandfather of Kidnap Victim Carnegie Man

Interest in the Los Angeles murder mystery was increased here when it was recalled that Marian Parker, the victim, is a granddaughter of a well known physician, Dr. William C. Parker, who for many years was a resident of Chartiers borough, now Carnegie, and practiced throughout the southern section of the county. He left here in the early 90's and settled in California, Dr. Parker, now aged more than 80 years, has a magnificent home in St. Andrew's place, Los Angeles, and has retired.

Dr. Parker lived in what is now Fifth avenue, Carnegie. At that time he had three children, William, Kenneth and a daughter. Kenneth died in his boyhood and Perry M. Parker, father of the kidnaped girl, was born after the family moved to the West.

During his residence in Carnegie Dr. Parker took a leading part in public affairs and was well known among the older residents of the district, who have expressed sympathy for the family and are outspoken in their demands for the capture of the child's murderer.

NAB KIDNAP SUSPECT

$1,500 for the life of his childish captive, has eluded an army of pursuers for three days and four nights in a daring attempt to escape an inevitable fate.

Shrieking sirens, plunging police cars roaring through the night, motorcycle officers ceaselessly patrolling the outer arteries of a great city, grim-visaged men walking the platforms of railroad stations, rumors and wild reports spreading wherever men and women gather.

This is the dim picture of the abnormal condition in a vast American community today as the gigantic man hunt for the brutal killer goes tirelessly on.

The nerves of 2,000,000 persons within the confines of Los Angeles are raw and fretted with the strain.

Eight thousand men under the command of Chief of Detectives Herman Cline, the largest number ever engaged on a single criminal case in the police history of this city, are seeking William Edward Hickman. Five hundred deputy sheriffs and constables are devoting their entire attention to the case, aided by 2,000 special deputies sworn in for emergency duty.

Twelve thousand Legionnaires have mobilized, and are scattered on patrol throughout Los Angeles county.

Flitting in and out of this city's far-flung confines, the elusive Fox incarnate has been reported first here and then there, now furiously driving a stolen auto, then astride a thundering motorcycle, in a mad dash to break through a gradually tightening cordon.

Will the "Fox" fight at bay?

Bring him in—dead or alive.

While the chase pressed on men learned in science and criminology were aiding detectives in determining how Marion Parker was put to death before her body was carved to pieces and finally given back to her distressed father.

RECONSTRUCT CRIME

With bits of mute evidence, found in a veritable "horror chamber" in a Bellevue avenue apartment house, the deserted lair of the killer Fox, these investigators were reconstructing, piecemeal, the most atrocious crime in the annals of a civilized community.

Blood stains found spattered inside a porcelain bathtub, in which the girl is believed to have been butchered, and blood splotches on the bathroom wall were being analyzed for proof that here was where Marion was put to death.

A half-eaten box of chocolate-coated cherries and a paper bag of hazelnuts, found in the "murder house," were also seized to analyze for possible traces of poison which may have been given to the child-victim before she was hacked to pieces.

Small quantities of oatmeal porridge and tapioca pudding, found in the kitchenette, which convinced detectives that the girl had dined in her death cell, also were being analyzed.

That the killer may have dealt a more merciful death to his victim than is evidenced by all of the so-far discovered indications of a torture murder became a possibility when William Edward Hickman was revealed as a "chloroform bandit" as well as a child kidnaper-slayer.

RAIDED DRUG STORES

Proprietors of three drug stores, victims of a series of recent daring robberies, have positively identified Hickman as the desperado who raided their stocks of ether, chloroform and sleeping tablets.

A new theory that at least three men murdered Marion Parker, and hacked the child's body to pieces, was advanced here today.

This belief was born when Edward Steizried and his wife, who live in the house where Hickman occupied an apartment, told police they saw Hickman and two other men leaving the building together last Saturday evening.

CARRIED BUNDLES

The three men were carrying a suitcase and several mysterious bundles, Steizried said, adding the time was approximately 7 o'clock, an hour and a half before the kidnaper-killer sold back to Perry M. Parker his child's mutilated body.

The possibility that the little Marion was put to death and hacked to pieces in some other dreadful spot and her dismembered body smuggled into the killer's late hangout was brought to light by a newly found informant.

The janitor of the apartments told police that on last Friday night, during the night on which Marion is now believed to have been murdered, he saw Hickman sneak into his rooms, carrying mysterious bundles under his arms.

Twice in the same night Hickman drove away in an automobile and each time he returned with the mysterious bundles. One time he lugged a suitcase into his rooms. Done up in five newspaper bundles and a black suitcase, the remaining parts of Marion's body were found in Elysian Park on the following Sunday morning after the butcher had flung the girl's head and mutilated torso from an automobile and sped away.

TOY MISSION WORKERS STAGE FINAL RALLY

Cash Contributions For New Playthings

Today and tomorrow will see the final rally of the friends of the Toy Mission in gathering gifts of toys, books and dolls for the annual distribution on Christmas eve to the children of poor families in the city. Beside the donations of toys, cash contributions are being turned over to the mission and The Sun-Tele Auxiliary for the purchase of new playthings.

The gifts collected by trolley car conductors throughout the city and suburbs and sent to the various car barns of the Pittsburgh Railways Company have been collected and turned over to the mission.

"It is still not too late to send toys," said Manager George L. Bond. "Every gift received up until Friday will be used, and cash on hand by that time will be applied to the purchases of gifts in cases where they are most needed. This is the last call for The Sun-Tele Auxiliary trucks, and persons who leave their packages at the various stations will have them brought to us promptly."

This is the last day for the street car conductors' collections. Packages should be left at The Sun-Tele agencies listed below.

Guard against sore throat

We've rolled around to it again—the season when a wicked cold or a nasty sore throat may lay you up for weeks. Most of us can't afford that; nothing coming in; everything going out.

In avoiding colds and sore throat, one of your most valuable aids is Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

After exposure to cold weather, or sudden changes in temperature, after mingling with crowds, after your feet have been wet—gargle with Listerine when you get home.

It may be—and very probably will be—means of saving you a trying siege of illness. Listerine, being antiseptic, immediately attacks the countless bacteria that lodge in the mouth, waiting until bodily resistance is low to strike.

For your own protection against cold weather complaints you ought to make a daily habit of rinsing the mouth and gargling with Listerine.
Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo.

GOSSER TELLS HOW TO SPEED UP MAILS

Postmaster George W. Gosser paused during the holiday mail rush today to point out to the public two means of insuring speedier and better delivery—special delivery service and special-handling service.

The special-handling service, price 25 cents, while not including special delivery, consists of expeditious forwarding of parcels. The special delivery rate is based on poundage of mail: 10 cents for parcels not exceeding two pounds, 15 cents for parcels from two to 10 pounds and 20 cents for parcels in excess of 10 pounds.

Inasmuch as there will be no carrier deliveries made anywhere in the United States after noon Monday, Mr. Gosser urged use of both services as "disappointment-prevention."

Europe Skates While Radio Plays Dance

By Universal Service.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Ice skating to the tune of dance music broadcast by radio is the latest diversion in Europe's cold wave. From Amsterdam comes the report that all the canals of Holland are frozen over and that the gay Dutchmen are doing fancy skating thereon.

Athens reports all Northern Greece under a blanket of snow, with communication interrupted.

British forecasters predict a break in the cold wave and higher temperatures within a few days.

LINDY TO START TOUR NEXT WEDNESDAY

By Universal Service

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21.—Uncle Sam's "Lone Eagle" will start his aerial conquest of Central America next Wednesday.

With his good-will conquest of Mexico virtually complete, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has tentatively selected that day for the start of his voyage over the Latin-American countries to Panama, and thence to Havana.

Lindbergh ordered gasoline and lubricants shipped to points in Central America which he will touch on his Southern tour. In some instances, railroad men said, the gasoline and oils will have to be transported by truck as there are no rail lines between some of the cities on Lindy's tentative itinerary.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 21.—The "Lone Eagle's" mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, flying to Mexico City, arrived in Tulsa at 5:16 o'clock yesterday.

Mrs. Lindbergh came here from St. Louis. She expects to greet Col. Charles Lindbergh in the Mexican capital Thursday afternoon.

EVERSON MAN DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID, DIES

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Dec. 21—John Earnesty, 33, Everson millworker, swallowed an ounce of carbolic acid and died at the home of a friend in Kiefertown last night.

Santa Invades Court Room; Pays Fine

The Yuletide spirit prevailed yesterday in the court room of Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, when Tony Romin, of Clark street, was about to be returned to jail because he was unable to pay a fine imposed for violating the national prohibition law. Assistant United States District Attorney J. A. Richardson, prosecuting, offered to pay the fine, as did also Attorney Benjamin L. Steinberg, assistant city solicitor, a spectator.

Finally a compromise was reached by each furnishing 50 cents of a $1 fine in order to square Tony with the court. Judge Gibson was lenient with Tony when he learned that he had been in jail six weeks awaiting trial, before deciding to enter the plea.

FOR MEXICO

Here is one of the many aristocratic Mexican girls who made a pilgrimage barefooted to the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe as a penance and to pray for the settlement of the religious dispute in Mexico. More than 250,000 Catholics went in pilgrimage to the Villa de Guadalupe.

BEECHVIEW LOAN OFFICERS SUED BY STATE

Peter G. Cameron, State Banking Commissioner, through Frank W. Jackson, special deputy, has entered suit in equity in Common Pleas Court against 21 former officers and directors of the Beechview Building and Loan Association, to show cause why the defendants should not be liable for $102,000 loss which the loan association sustained by reason of mismanagement. This is the building and loan association in which the Meeder brothers of Beechview were involved. The former officers named defendants are J. I. Robinson; S. R. Palmer, J. A. West, C. E. Harris, Elmer Meeder, Edward Meeder, C. G. Stricker, J. B. Roussell, O. M. Lewis, C. F. Meeder, T. Harry Chew, G. J. Sharpless, David Taylor, Stanley Rawa, William A. Thurby, M. C. Meeder, George Balsbaugh, David S. Buck, R. J. Carr, C. M. Conklin and Clarence Harbarth.

BROKE DRY LAWS, JAILED 4 MONTHS

Simon O. Biyshak of Forward township was sentenced yesterday in the Federal District Court to serve four months in jail and pay a $100 fine when he pleaded guilty to two complaints charging violations of the prohibition law. Nick Dyetelich, convicted of selling and possessing intoxicating liquor, was placed under parole for one year.

Other defendants in liquor violation cases were fined as follows: Joseph Zanin and Stanley Burvorkez, $500 each; John Savor, $200; Dora Savor, $75; Frank Taiunto and Guido Penzi, $50 each.

SLIPS ON ICE, IS KILLED BY TRAIN

George Leros, 29, of 221 East Lacock street, North Side, car cleaner, was instantly killed early this morning when he slipped on the ice as he jumped from a passenger train backing out of the shed in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Twenty-eighth street. Leros, who had boarded the train to be taken to the outskirts of the yard, where he was working on empty passenger coaches, fell in front of the train and his body was cut in two.

SUES NEIGHBORS FOR REMOVAL OF BRIDGE

Alleging that a small bridge was removed from a right-of-way to her property on the Saltsburg road, Penn township, leaving her but a dangerous footpath between her home and the road, Elsie V. McClinton entered suit in equity in Common Pleas Court against Welcome T. Lewis and Daisy Lewis, his wife.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Four Young Girls Make Bow to Society in Busy Holiday Season Week

THIS is an exciting week for society folk for, in addition to all the usual festivities attending the holiday season, four young girls will make their formal bows to the social world of their parents,

Nan Bunton, debutante daughter of the C, C, Buntons, the second bud of the week, is being presented at a tea dance this afternoon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, Mr. and Mrs, Bunton are receiving with their daughter at the entrance to the ballroom, A bank of cibotium fern forms a background for the receiving party.

Mrs, Bunton is gowned in draped black panne velvet, while a gold and white frock is worn by the debutante, who is carrying a Colonial bouquet of varied shades of red roses, tied with deep crimson and dark red and green ribbons. In the ballroom festoons of southern smilax, laurel and poinsettias are used and in the reception room the same decorations are employed. In the sunroom small tables are arranged with centerpieces of poinsettias and lighted with burning red tapers in green holders.

Mrs. Bunton has as her aides, Mrs. Clifford M. Budd, Mrs. Albert Robinson Budd, Mrs. James K. Boyd and Mrs. William McCune. Some of the buds of the season are Nan's aides.

Eunice DuPuy, daughter of Mrs. William A. Atkins, of Indianapolis, and the late Col. Charles Meredith DuPuy, came out yesterday afternoon at a tea dance given by her grandparents, the Herbert DuPuys, of Morewood avenue, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Eunice will be the guest of her grandparents throughout the holiday season. She has been in the city but a short time.

Mrs. DuPuy, who is receiving with the bud and Mr. DuPuy, is wearing transparent black velvet and Eunice's gown is of rose brocade with a black velvet hat to complete her costume.

Christmas decorations, of course, are used. Poinsettias and silver icicles conceal the chandeliers, with evergreen trees banked in the corners.

The guest list is comprised almost entirely of the debutantes, the school set and other members of the younger set home for the holidays. Much interest was added to the affair by the presence of the members of the Yale University Glee Club, which gave an entertainment last evening in Syria Mosque.

Among the new affairs planned for the sub-debs is a bridge luncheon Mrs. Cooke Bausman of Woodwell street will give on Thursday, December 29, in her home. The honor guest will be her daughter Louise, who goes to the Winchester School.

The few Pittsburghers who have been in New York are planning to return to the city for the holiday season. Mrs. W. Harry Brown, one of the city's prominent social leaders, will return tomorrow from New York.

Every day we hear of more members of the school set returning. Eleanor Lang, Elizabeth Lupton, Mary Jane Miller, Jane Schlotterer and Elinor Waddill returned Saturday from Linden Hall, Lititz, Pa.

Miss Julia Stevenson, of South Pacific avenue, will entertain with a bridge luncheon in her home Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Emily Nash, of West Swissvale avenue, Edgewood, whose marriage to George H. Edel, of Brownsville, will be solemnized February 4. Last Saturday Miss Nash was guest of honor at a party given by her sister, Mrs. Melfard Anderson, in her home in Edgewood.

Miss Elizabeth Bowers and Miss Evelyn Shaner Bowers, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bowers, of Crafton Heights, will arrive home today from the Randolph-Macon College for Women, where they are seniors. The Bowers girls are graduates of the Southern Seminary, Virginia.

Mrs. Leslie N. Crichton, president of the Mount Holyoke College Club, has appointed Mrs. Henry Lloyd Cleland as chairman for the Christmas breakfast to be given next Wednesday in the Twentieth Century Club. The committee includes Mrs. Maurice D. Cooper and Miss Helen Booth. MRS. H. C. RELLER GUEST AT LUNCHEON OF CLUB

Mrs. H. C. Reller, a past president of the Woman's Club of Pittsburgh, was honor guest yesterday at the club's Christmas luncheon in the Congress of Clubs and was presented with a gift from the club. The gift was a handsomely bound book in which Mrs. Reller is to record her travels on which she will leave early next month and which will take her around the world, into 30 countries and 65 cities. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Congress president, made the invocation and Mrs. Eliza J. Moore led the salute to the flag, Mrs. Joseph B. Drake welcoming the guests. Mrs. J. C. Schreiner had charge of the program, which was opened by soprano solos, Christmas songs, by Mrs. Adele Eggers Furniss, with Mrs. George D. Herwig accompanying. The Glaspell-Cooke play, "Suppressed Desires," was presented by Mrs. George L. Price, Mrs. George Morecroft and Mrs. S. Stingel. Mrs. Estelle Medley sang, accompanying herself, and Mrs. Furniss sang a second group, accompanied by Mrs. Eda Keller Kennedy, who also gave several songs. The program closed with three lovely readings by Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, each of which was chosen for its fitness to the season.

Mrs. Drake was presented with a poinsettia plant and Mrs. H. O. Price, who had been a team captain in the Congress membership campaign, was given the club's prize of $25 with which to make Christmas purchases for children in the West Penn Hospital. For these same children the members brought gifts of jellies and toys yesterday.

ADDITIONAL CLUB NEWS

Christmas contributions of food have been asked by the welfare department of the Congress of Clubs for the wives and children of the Castle Shannon miners. The donations are to be left at the clubhouse Friday. Mrs. Walter F. Cooley, chairman of the department, and her committee members have been co-operating with the Toy Mission in its work and the collection for the miners' families will be an additional holiday activity.

Lang Hukill and Walter Millar, in solos and duets, with Mrs. Chester Johnston accompanying, and Mrs. B. W. Lewis and Mrs. E. C. Roddy with readings, made up the program presented yesterday at the Christmas party of the Bellevue Woman's Literary Club. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. D. A. Herman, Euclid avenue, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mrs. Elmer Kidney's social committee had charge of the tea hour.

Following its custom established years ago, the Young Women's Club entertained 25 mothers and babies of "The Strip" at a Christmas party yesterday. Each guest, both young and old, received a gift, and there was a tree and a program of games and singing. The affair took place in the Franklin Saving and Trust Building, Twenty-eighth street, and was in charge of the social committee of which Mrs. D. Allen McCully is chairman.

Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, chairman of international relations in the State Federation, is writing the club women of the state requesting each one to express to Senator David A. Reed and Senator William E. Borah "a Pennsylvania woman's hope for the success of a practical plan for outlawing of war." Mrs. Johnston suggests, "Write as a Pennsylvania club woman and perhaps as the mother of a son. Real letters direct from women like members of the State Federation have an influence."

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society will be held Sunday afternoon, January 1, in the Y. M. and W. H. A. Election of officers and directors will take place.

URGES CURB IN BANK NUMBERS

Unrestricted opening of too many banks should be curbed, in the opinion of Lawrence S. Bell, vice-president of the Frst National Bank of Wilkinsburg, who yesterday addressed the members of the Credo Club of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Bell showed that in the eastern Federal Reserve Bank districts serving 50,000,000 population there had been comparatively few bank failures between 1921 and 1927, while in the western states there had been a large number. In the Dakotas there had been one bank for each 750 population. He proposed having a clearing house examiner for Pittsburgh to report on the condition of banks.

NEW KIDNAP THREAT: GIRL'S GUARD DOUBLED

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Authorities doubled the guards about the home of B. R. Debs here following the latter's receipt of a second blackmailing letter threatening to kidnap his 7-year-old son Herbert.

In the first letter, the would-be extortionists demanded that Debs place $1,500 in his shop. As a result of the first missive, Herbert, his brother Lewis, and his sister, Rosalind, are being escorted by police to and from school.

"FUNNY FOLKS" HERE BUT THREE DAYS MORE

Final Comic Book Supply on Stands

Three more days, and "All the Funny Folks," comics character story by Jack Lait, will be no more as a Christmas gift.

But in those three days, news dealers and news stands everywhere will have on hand a final Christmas supply of the funny books. The price, 69 cents, will be the same, whether bought from the news dealers and through the "All the Funny Folks" Department of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Many thousands of the books have been sold, and several thousands have been received to meet the last-minute rush.

The book, of 112 pages, is a jingling, merry story, illustrated by 500 color drawings. It tells the story of the comic characters, and while written primarily for children, has been found very enjoyable by adults.

BRITAIN PLANS FLYING AMBULANCES FOR FIELD

Surgeons will be able to operate on patients while traveling through the air at two miles a minute as soon as the fleet of flying ambulances, which has been ordered by the Royal Air Force of Great Britain, is completed. They are intended for use in outlying parts of the empire, where troops are a long way from ordinary medical aid.

WE'LL GIVE YOU $2 For Your Old Shoes

Then Repair Them Like New—And Give Them to charitable institutions regardless of creed on New Year's Day—if you purchase a new pair of shoes NOW.

FREE

Ending Saturday Evening, Dec. 31st

Bring or wear any old pairs of shoes you own and trade them in on any pair of shoes in the house.

Last year, after perfectly restoring the shoes at Petty's Repair Shop, 136 Stanwix St. (Opposite Joseph Horne Co.), over 9,000 pairs were given away—Won't you help us to make it 10,000 this year?

DEATH ROLL

David A. Foster

David A. Foster, 53, prominent in business in McKeesport for a number of years, died yesterday in his apartments in the Hotel Schenley. Mr. Foster was born June 22, 1874, in Versailles township and was a son of Alexander D. and Amanda L. Foster. He moved to McKeesport with his parents and after finishing school, entered the furniture business with R. E. Stone. In 1900 with V. A. Auld he organized the firm of Foster & Auld and the original business is still carried on under his name in McKeesport. Mr. Foster had been active in the business affairs of McKeesport and in the oil and gas business of the tri-state district. Interests which he controlled discovered the McKeesport gas field in 1919. He was a director of the Union National Bank of McKeesport and the Versailles Cemetery Company, also of McKeesport. He was a member of Youghiogheny Lodge of Masons, the Youghiogheny Country Club and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Elva Coon Foster, daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. O. C. Coon of Homestead; one sister, Mrs. E. P. Junker, of McKeesport, and two brothers, Samuel D. Foster, treasurer of Allegheny County, Pittsburgh, and Edwin A. Foster, of McKeesport.

James W. Sargent.

James W. Sargent, 73, a resident of Emsworth for the last 45 years, died Monday at his home, 206 Center avenue. Born at Ellicott City, Md., October 20, 1845, Mr. Sargent came to West Elizabeth when a young man and shortly after entered the produce and wholesale grocery business in Pittsburgh. For the past 18 years he had been with Cruikshank Brothers Company. For more than 50 years he had been an active member of the I. O. O. F. and held membership in Clifton Lodge No. 1066, since its institution. He was active in its organization and also of the Bellevue Encampment. He also was a member of the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Nancy Ann Nolder Sargent; three daughters, Mrs. A. W. Cruikshank, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. S. I. Lindsay, of Collier, W. Va., and Miss Doris Sargent, at home; three sons, David A., at home; James A., of Elyria, O., and John H. Sargent, of West View; a sister, Mrs. Emma Rickard, of Emsworth, and nine grandchildren.

Mrs. Malinda S. Wilson.

Funeral services for Mrs. Malinda Schnatterly Wilson, 73, widow of Lewis W. Wilson, formerly of Pittsburgh, who died last Friday at the Uniontown hospital, were held at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Ethel Roden Gerwig, 12 Kensington circle, Gilmore terrace, Uniontown, on Monday. Burial took place at Sylvan Heights cemetery, Uniontown. Mrs. Wilson had been an active member of the Great Bethel Baptist church, Uniontown, for the last 40 years. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Pleasie Jane Roden, of Uniontown, and Miss Emma Maak Wilson, of New York City; one son, W. Wood Wilson, of Wilmington, Del.; one sister, Mrs. Anna Davis, of Greensboro, and six grandchildren.

John F. Rohrer.

John Franklin Rohrer, 94, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Groff, 7143 Meade street, yesterday. He had been in the real estate business for 50 years. He was a member of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church and Harrisburg lodge No. 629, Free and Accepted Masons. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Harry Groff Hubert and Mrs. David Robert Harris of New Castle, and three sons, Jay Frank Rohrer, Harrisburg; George G. Rohrer, Portland, Ore., and Frederick F. Rohrer of Pittsburgh, and nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Leo J. Loughren.

Leo J. Loughren, 46, died yesterday in his home, 1037 Vance avenue, Coraopolis. He was born in Warren, O. He came to Pittsburgh when he was 10 years old and lived in the First ward. He was for a time in the employ of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company. Later he became associated with C. L. Saxton Real Estate Company. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church; Coraopolis Council, No. 2555, Knights of Columbus; F. O. E., No. 1123 and L. O. O. M., No. 1090. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Flack Loughren; two sons, Edward and Leo J. Loughren, Jr.; his mother, a brother and sister.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd Martin.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd Martin, 80, wife of the late William H. Martin, and mother of W. H. Martin, Jr., superintendent of Wilkinsburg public schools, died Monday night in the home of her son, 1166 South avenue Wilkinsburg. She was born in Mechanicstown, O., and had lived in Wilkinsburg 25 years. She was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg. Besides her son, she leaves four grandchildren.

Frank J. Cerny.

Frank J. Cerny, 28, of 1215 Voskamp street, died Monday in Mercy Hospital. He was born on the North Side and was a lifelong resident of the Pittsburgh district. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Janet Oswald Cerny; his mother, Mrs. Marie Simanek Cerny; three brothers, August Cerny of Detroit and Charles and James Cerny of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Buyna.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Reed.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Reed, 97, widow of James R. Reed, died in the Kenmawr Hotel, Shady avenue, yesterday. She was born in Mercer, Pa., July 31, 1831, and was a sister of the late A. J. McKean of Mercer county. In April, 1851, she was married and came to Pittsburgh. She was for many years a member of the Third United Presbyterian Church and later joined the Third Presbyterian Church. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Lyon.

William K. Hunger

William Kingsley Hunger, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hunger of 404 Hancock avenue, Vandergrift, died yesterday in Durham, N. C. He was a graduate of Gettysburg College, University of West Virginia, Duke College and at the time of his death was in the senior law class of the University of North Carolina. He was a Mason.

GIRL RISES FROM "DEAD" AS FAMILY MOURNS HER

Bundle Day Proves Big Success

COASTER KILLED, 7 HURT AS BOBSLED HITS AUTO

HEARS OWN FUNERAL SERMON

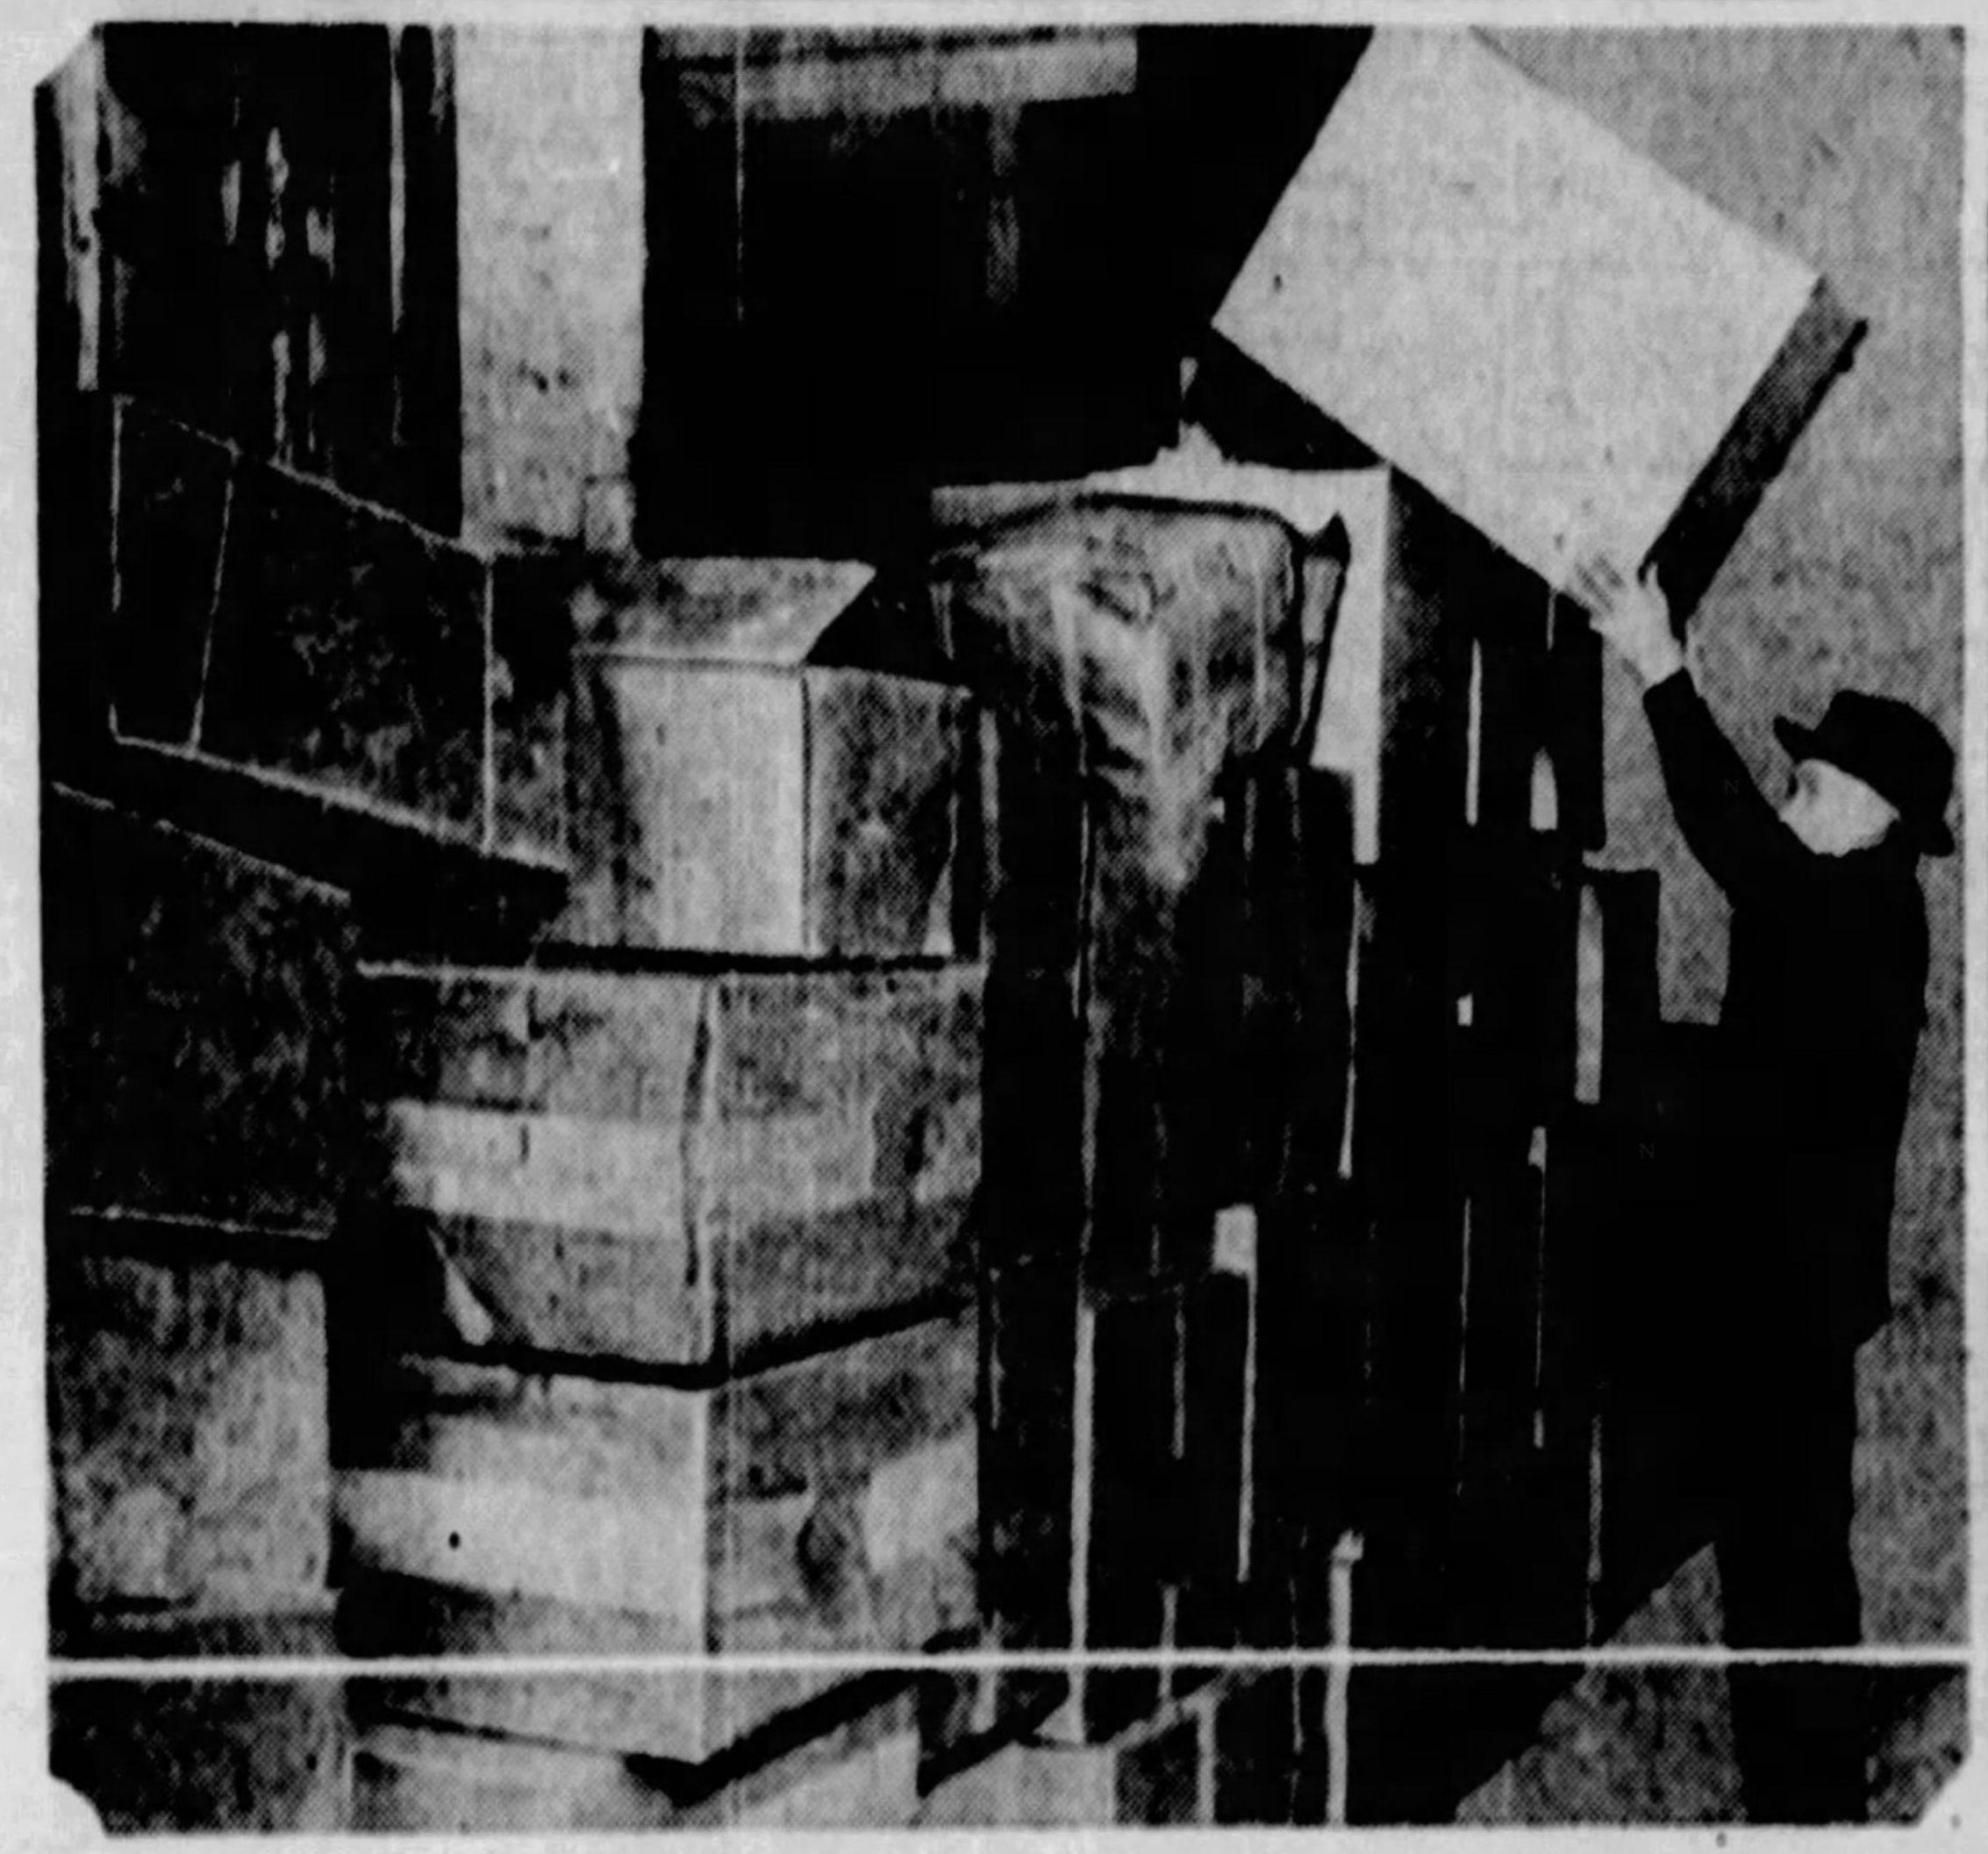
LURAY, Va., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Having listened to a funeral sermon preached over the coffin in which she spent the night, unable to signal those who believed her dead, Miss Fannie Broyles is alive today at her home near here.

A brother, James Broyles, who stood about the casket with other mourning relatives, noticed a twitching of his sister's eyelid, and the funeral services were halted and resuscitation efforts begun.

In a short time the girl was able to talk. She said she was aware of all that occurred around her as she lay in the casket, but, still stunned from a blow on the head from a tree limb that fell upon her, was unable to move or speak.

Finally, she said, her fear of being buried alive must have revived her nerves, so that one eyelid fluttered.

Under a physician's care since Saturday, when the supposedly dead girl came back to life, she is declared to have fully recovered.



SUN-TELE'S APPEAL WINS TREMENDOUS RESPONSE

From all parts of the city, the county, in fact from throughout the Pittsburgh district, contributions to The "Sun-Tele Bundle Day" poured into city fire stations and the United Mine Workers headquarters yesterday. The clothing and groceries will go to aid the hard pressed families of striking miners, now forced or soon to be forced from their company-owned homes. The Sun-Tele photographer snapped a group of volunteer workers preparing the donations to be taken to mining towns.

SHE JUST WANTED TO HELP

This is Nora McGuire, "from just around the corner." At least, that's what she told the packers at the miners' union headquarters, 1903 Fifth avenue. "My papa said for me to come down here and see if I could run errands or anything to the Bundle Day men," she said. Needless to say, they found something for the young lady to do, carrying wrapping paper, hunting twine and a dozen other needed chores.

NEW CASTLE BOY DIES; OTHERS IN HOSPITAL

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 21.—One boy was fatally hurt and seven other coasters injured when the bobsled on which they were speeding down East Long avenue hill crashed into the rear of the auto of Harry Phillips as he turned into Grimes street at 10 o'clock last night.

James Robinson, 11, died in New Castle Hospital this morning from injuries. Others taken to the hospital are Charles Fleming, Edward Connors, Robert Vaughn, Richard Clark, Edna Space, Clara Norris and Edith Clark.

The latter's condition is serious. Several others were shaken up. All the victims ranged from 11 to 23 years.

FOUR FINED ON RUM CHARGE

Adam Samson was fined $500, Joseph Samson $200, Anthony Laurnoff $50 and Neil Phister $50 when they pleaded guilty today before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court to a charge of illegally importing liquor. They were arrested December 10 at Erie on the fishing boat Ruth, on which 200 bags of Canadian ale, each bag containing 24 quart bottles, and 50 cases or whisky were found. Adam Samson and his brother, Joseph, admitted bringing the liquor from Canada on the Ruth.

Drill Hole for Santa to Enter Bank Vault

BRIDGEPORT, O., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Cash in the vault of the Bridgeport National Bank was made available to merchants and Christmas shoppers today when an electric drill cut a hole through it large enough for a man to enter. The vault had resisted all efforts to open it for two days. Much of the cash in the town was sealed in the vault, the other two banks here having failed during the last 18 months.

BROTHERS DIE WITHIN THREE WEEKS TO HOUR

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Dec. 21.—James Johnson, 73, died today from a paralytic stroke on the same day and hour of the death of his twin brother, exactly three weeks ago.

DIN PUZZLES SHOPPERS; IT'S NEW BOAT

Prolonged blasts from a hundred steamboat whistles, saluting a new towboat on her maiden trip, startled Christmas shoppers shortly after 11 o'clock today.

It was the Carnegie Steel Company's new steamer "Allegheny's" initial run on the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers. The boat left the Wood street wharf carrying about 100 officials of the company and guests.

With the new boat, the steel company now has a fleet of 14 towboats. The "Allegheny" is under the command of Capt. L. H. Crawford, who has spent 30 years on the rivers.

The boat is 175 feet long, 24 feet wide, and has a draft of 4 feet, 8 inches. She is of the western river type, with four boilers and two twin tandem compound condensing engines. The wheel is 21 feet in diameter.

Sydney Dillon, chief mechanical engineer of the steel company, designed the boat.

SIX DROWNED AS SKIFF UPSETS IN SWOLLEN RIVER

BENTON, Ala., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Six persons were drowned here today when a skiff overturned, plunging them into the rising waters of the Alabama River.

The skiff, carrying Jim Nichols, a sawmill operator, and five Negroes, two of them children, overturned when it was caught in a swift current while attempting to cross the stream at a ferry. All the bodies were recovered.

Gangster Threatens Woman With "Ride"

Mrs. Frances Root, 4811 Baum boulevard, formerly of Chicago, today feared for her life after being told that Ernest M. Weber, alleged Chicago gangster and holdup man, now in jail, had threatened, when he is released, to come to Pittsburgh and take her "for a ride," which in Chicago parlance means death.

Harry Root, husband of Mrs. Root, declared he would make an information against Weber for surety of the peace and have a detainer lodged against him, so that when he is released from jail in Chicago he will be rearrested.

Mrs. Root denies a story told by Weber to Chicago police that she and a Mrs. Salene Kahl had stolen clothing and furniture from Weber's Chicago apartment while he was in jail there a year ago for robbery. She said today that Weber had roomed at her home, 1120 Fullerton street, Chicago, for less than a month when he was arrested for the robbery, and had no furniture and very few clothes, and that she had left the clothing in the apartment when she came to Pittsburgh with her husband.

Mrs. Kahl, also accused by Weber, is said to be living in Chicago.

"I Do Not Want to Marry Staley Drummond," Lily Told Her Mother

What Has Gone Before

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled child of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS who have always lived far beyond their means. Lily has been reared to be beautifully useless, and her highest ambition is realized when she becomes engaged to STANLEY DRUMMOND, a wealthy bachelor much older than herself. On the morning after he asks her to marry him he telephones to say he is coming to see her that afternoon, and Lily's mother asks him to stay for dinner. Lily begins to look ahead and to wonder what life would be like if she had to eat dinner with Staley Drummond all the rest of her life. She likes him, and the thought of his money entrances her, but she wonders if she ought not to be more deeply in love with him than she is, if she is going to marry him. She starts out in the rain to see her friend, SUE CAIN, to ask her to be maid of honor at her wedding in June. On the way to the restaurant where Sue is lunching she sees a very good-looking man watching her in the street. She feels herself oddly attracted by him before she notices that he wears a uniform and is standing beside his taxicab. Moved by a sudden impulse, she gets into the cab and tells him to drive her back home. She forgets all about Sue Cain until she is in the cab. The car stops on the way out to her father's house, and the driver cheerfully gets out in the rain to see what is wrong with his engine. He tells Lily how much motors attract him and starts to tell her about some new automobile part he is inventing and then stops as if he thinks he is talking too much and the drive ends in silence. As Lily gets out of the cab she takes the card with his name, "Pat France," and his photograph upon it, and slips it into her purse. That night, after dinner, when Staley and she are sitting before the fire and she is trying to convince herself that she loves him, her mother comes to the door and says that a taxi driver is waiting to see her about something.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WHOSE picture is that?" she asked, as the girl swept the identification card into the pocket of her combing jacket.

"It's just a picture of a man I know," replied Lily, airily, "nobody that matters."

"Well, I think he must matter a very great deal if you have to hide his picture from your own mother!—And anyway, I don't know what you're doing with it, when you're engaged to marry a fine chap like Staley Drummond. Any other girl we know would be tickled to death to be in your shoes, and here you are mooning over another man's photograph! What's the matter with you, Lily Lexington? What ails you?"

Lily flung her tortoise-shell brush down on the dresser and jumped up. She faced her mother with all the irritation she had felt all day burning in her scarlet cheeks and bright eyes.

"Oh, I don't know what's the matter with me!" she stormed. "Except that I don't want to marry Staley Drummond, and I don't know how to get out of it!—I don't like him. I wish I'd never seen him—I wish you hadn't been ding-donging it into me for a whole year that he was the only man in the world for me!—If I marry him, you can just congratulate yourself on spoiling my life for me—" And she flung herself, face down into the pillows of her bed, and sobbed and sobbed and sobbed.

Mrs. Lexington couldn't remember her having a tantrum like this for 15 years—not since a long-ago summer day when she had wanted to go to a circus and couldn't go because she had the three-day measles.

She stood looking in helpless anxiety at the supple slim figure across the bed and made a movement as if she were wringing her fine big hands.

"My dear little girl," she said in real distress, "I don't want you to marry Staley Drummond if you really feel this way about him. If you're in love with another man, I wouldn't want to see you tied to Staley if he were as rich as Rockefeller." She sat down heavily on the edge of the bed and patted her daughter's heaving shoulders.

"Nobody knows that you're engaged to Staley," she said sensibly. "The thing for you to do is not to let anyone know about it until you're sure of yourself. See a great deal of him and of the other man, too—and perhaps you'll know what to do when June comes."

"When June comes I'll marry Staley—and you know it, and I know it," said Lily with bitterness, sitting up and tossing back her lovely hair. "And if you knew who the other man was, Mother, you'd just pass right out of the picture! You'd just die."

STALEY WAS PUZZLED

"What's the matter with you tonight?" he asked.

She was calm and pensive now. She dried her brimming eyes and laid her cheek against her mother's rouged and powdered cheek.

"I'm a little fool," she said with a long sobbing sigh. "I care for Staley. You know I do—but if he calls up tomorrow from Middletown, tell him I'm sick in bed with a headache, will you?"

CHAPTER IV

IN THE first place, it had been a most surprising thing that Lily ever noticed Pat France.

And in the second place it was still more surprising that she ever let herself go on thinking about him, as she had.

For Lily was a first-class little snob under her prettiness and her young charm.

She never had paid any attention to people unless they had something that she wanted—money or friends or influence.

The only times she ever noticed Carrie, the housemaid who had worked for her mother for five years, was when she wanted her to fasten a dress for her or clean a pair of silver-cloth slippers or perform some such task for her.

On the morning following her meeting with Pat France Lily opened her eyes at 10 o'clock, after almost 12 hours of refreshing sleep and wondered how she could manage to see him again that day.

She stretched out a slim arm and rang the bell beside her bed. She heard its faint buzz in the kitchen, and presently Carrie came up the stairs with her breakfast tray.

"Mrs. Lexington has gone to a meeting of the Consumers' League. She told me I was to tell you," the maid said, setting the tray down upon the bedside table. "She'll not be back for lunch."

As she started for the door, Lily called her back. She smiled at the small, red-cheeked little woman in her very sweetest and most friendly way.

"Carrie," she said, "if a long-distance telephone call comes for me, will you say I'm in bed ill with a headache?"

Instantly Carrie's face was all concern. "Shall I get your some aspirin, Miss Lily?" she asked.

Lily smiled. "No, it's not that bad, Carrie. It's just bad enough to keep me from talking over long-distance. Understand?"

Carrie nodded her dark head, with its hair parted in the middle and drawn back into a knot. "I don't like to tell lies for people, and that's the truth," she said, setting a small, square chin. Carrie had been with the Lexingtons for so long that she was no longer shy with them. She was very outspoken, naturally, too.

"Listen to me, Carrie," Lily said. "You don't want to lose your place here, do you? You—" Then she stopped abruptly, as she saw that she was saying the wrong thing.

"Carrie," she began on another tack," suppose you were in love with a man so much that you couldn't bear the thought of another man telephoning you from the town where he was, just to talk lovey-dovey things to you? Just as one woman to another, wouldn't you pretend you were too ill to talk?"

Carrie's small, cheerful face softened. "I'll tell Mr. Drummond you're sick with a headache," she decided suddenly, after two or three minutes of thought, while Lily sat sipping coffee in a most woe-begone way.

"You're a nice girl," said Lily, "and if you open that top drawer of my dresser you'll find a pair of yellow silk stockings that Sue Cain gave me when she came home from Paris. . . . They're too small for me, but they'd just fit your tiny feet, Carrie. You take them."

But Carrie gave her head a vigorous shake. "And where would I be wearing yellow silk stockings with embroidery all up the sides of them to the knee? I wouldn't feel right in such flum-a-diddle." And she went back to the silver she was cleaning in the pantry downstairs, and to Aggie, the cook, who tried for full 15 minutes to find out what she had been talking about upstairs—and tried in vain.

At 11 Lily rang the bell once more and asked Carrie to do some more telephoning for her.

She was dressing to go out, and she sat before the dresser rubbing liquid powder into her flawless skin and taking a puff at a cigaret every few seconds. Her street clothes lay over the back of a chair beside her.

"Carrie, I want you to do one more thing for me," she said in her musical voice. "I want you to call up Miss Ann Barney and tell her I can't come for lunch today, but that I'll be there later for the bridge game. Explain to her about my headache, won't you?"

"I Do Not Want to Marry Staley Drummond," Lily Told Her Mother

And Carrie trotted away without saying a word, but with a look on her face that showed her strong disapproval of such white lying.

"Aren't you afraid someone will see you if you go out, and tell Miss Barney about it?" she asked, coming back into the room for the breakfast tray.

Lily did not answer.

She was not afraid, of course. She wasn't the least bit afraid of Ann Barney finding out that she had fibbed to her. She wasn't afraid of what anyone knew or thought about her, suddenly.

All she was afraid of, as she dressed and set off on foot for the street car line, was that she might not see Pat France and his blue eyes that day.

Now, Lily naturally knew very little of taxicabs and their habits. She had rarely used them.

But it seemed reasonable to suppose that if she had found Pat France standing in Albemarle street the day before, she might happen to find him in the same place today. She seemed to remember that there had been a sign near the tailor's shop that had read: "Taxi Stand," when she had stopped there to look in the rain-spotted mirror.

The minute she turned the corner she saw him.

He was sitting in his cab this time, staring straight ahead of him as if he were thinking hard.

She walked straight up to it, opened the door and got in before he saw who she was. Then he frowned in a surprised sort of way and asked her where she wanted to go in a voice that was nothing more than a deep growl.

"Well, I want to talk to you first," said Lily, with her most ravishing smile, "so just drive me around, and then I'll have you take me to the Barney house, 'way out on Montpelier road. Do you know where it is?"

He nodded as he started his car. Everyone knew Ann Barney's father's great white house that was a copy of George Washington's home, Mount Vernon.

Lily sat back against the tufted leather cushions of the cab while it jolted along for a good half hour. She noticed that the little ising-glass pocket still was empty, and thought of the identification card under the sachet-scented lining of her dressing table drawer at home.

"Stop the cab for a minute now," she said when it reached Dutton road, empty under the bare trees and the gray sky, at this hour.

He pulled up at one side, under a willow tree whose branches were like a harp in the high wind.

"I wanted to tell you that I have your identification card," she began, sitting on the little jump seat. "I don't know why I took it yesterday—but I did."

To her amazement he showed no astonishment at all. "I knew that you must have it," he said, indifferently. "I had just cleaned up my cab before I saw you yesterday, and when I dropped you at your house I went straight to a friend's house and talked business for three or four hours. So, you see, nobody had been in the cab but you."

"Do you want it back—the card?" asked Lily.

The man shook his head. "No, I'm going to sell the cab on the first of April, anyway," he said evenly. "So I won't need the card."

"You're going to sell the cab?" Lily repeated, feeling as if some door were closing in her face. How would she see him after he sold the cab? "What are you selling it for?"

He gave her a look that was half amusement and half resentment. But he answered her question:

"I want the money I'll get for it. I want it for my invention—my piston ring. That's what I drove the cab for in the first place. It gave me a lot of time to myself to work on the ring, and there's quite a lot of money in it for such short hours."

Lily wondered what his idea of "quite a lot of money" could be.

"How much money do you make?" she wanted to know.

But this he would not answer. He turned suddenly in his seat and asked her if she were ready to go to the Barney house now—and if not, where did she want to go? His voice was sharp and matter of fact.

"What time is it?" she asked him.

It was half-past one.

"Well, I may as well go to the Barneys'," she said, and sat in stony silence while they drove along the wet streets toward it.

"I won't see this man again," she promised herself. "After all, we have nothing in common—not a thing! And he doesn't want to talk to me, and tell me about himself—and what he is and does is none of my business, anyway."

She got out before the house and paid her bill without a word. And without a word she ran up the white stone steps of the porch and rang the bell.

"I came for lunch after all!" she cried when Ann Barney came out into the hall to meet her. "My headache went, and I was as hungry as a hunter. So I came!"

And then she decided, like a flash, to burn all her bridges behind her. After all, these people who were to be here today were her own kind—and Staley's kind. She belonged with them. They understood her and she understood them, and she would spend her life among them.

What was a taxi driver to her, after all, no matter how straight his nose, how broad his shoulders, or how blue his eyes?"

"Ann," she said, as she took off her coat in Ann's luxurious little dressing room, "I want to tell you a wonderful secret about Staley Drummond and myself."

CHAPTER V.

"I KNOW your news—I know what it is!" said Ann Barney. "You're going to marry Staley, aren't you?"

Lily smiled. "Yes, but how did you guess?" she asked, and Ann picked up her hand, where Staley's diamond glittered and flashed. Her own smile was a bit strained as she looked at it.

Ann Barney's people had dollars where the Lexingtons did not have pennies.

She had been born and brought up in the lap of luxury. She had had governesses. She had gone to school in France for four years. She had been all around the world twice.

And yet she was not the spoiled and pampered darling that Lily was. She was sensible and kind and good, and she looked sensible and kind and good from the top of her dun-colored head to the soles of her low-heeled shoes. Where Lily's clothes were hand-sewn silk, Ann's were fine, plain linen. Where Lily's fingernails were like bits of polished pink coral, Ann's were clipped short and square like a trained nurse's nails. Where Lily's skin was ivory and early June roses, Ann's was freckled and tanned.

Ann was about the last person on earth who looked as if she cherished an unrequited affection for any man.

But Lily knew that she did. She had noticed the way Ann flushed up whenever Staley Drummond walked into a room where she was, and how she looked when anyone spoke his name.

And so she felt a bit embarrassed and guilty now when Ann put her big, muscular arms around her and kissed her on both cheeks.

"Well, I think that's just fine, Lily," she said, with such hearty enthusiasm that Lily was almost persuaded for a minute that she meant what she said.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," she said, brightly. "We'll announce your engagement at lunch today! I'll have some white bridey-looking flowers and candles put on the table, and we'll turn the bridge club meeting into an announcement luncheon for you!"

WELL, my dear, my WORST appreHENsions as to what he inTENded if I decided to help him to get HEP to it at this point were REALized toDAY because ARab told me he was practicably ready to ROLL over and BUTler himself with disMAY on account of my deciding not to enLIGHTen him at this point because he said it was going to be so HELPful to know about PSYchoanALysis because he was going to USE it, sort of, to find out why this odd PHWHEN youth was born in BROOKlyn and ARab said I'd promised to disCOVer why NOIsy was so DUMB by PSYching him—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean you might KNOW Arab would just have some terribly TRIVial iDEA about how to apPLY this PSYchoanALysis because I mean the way he TALKS about it you would think it was just some sort of an odd PAStime for people's aMUSEment instead of a terribly TRICKy SUBject sort of inVOLVing all your MENtal comPLEXities or something, do you know what I mean? ANYways, my dear, I'm SIMply NAUseated with the SUBject of psychoanALysis at this point because it BORES me to SOBS because I've deCIded it's nothing in the LONG run but a lot of TRIPE and I feel I simply NEVer want to hear it MENtioned aGAIN—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Madge Feels Dread as Philip Veritzen Seems to Draw Nearer to Her

I HAD much food for troubled thought during the rest of our journey home from the mountain inn where Philip Veritzen had staged our conference over the plans which he had brought home from Europe. Fortunately, Lillian, on whose presence I had insisted, comprehended my abstraction and camouflaged it by keeping up so rapid and sparkling a conversation with her old friend, the great theatrical producer, that he had little opportunity to observe my silence.

It was not the idea of Philip Veritzen's projected trip to the east end of the island which troubled me. It was his statement that he meant to make the Bayside House his home for the next few weeks, coupled with his offhand announcement that he would need to consult me frequently about the work.

There was something about the whole thing which did not ring true. Before my employer had sailed for Europe we had discussed very fully the work which I should do during the summer, and there had been a very definite agreement that I should not come into the offices during the summer. My offer to Eleanor Lincoln to ask him down to our section of the island had been partly a desire to gratify the earnest desire of the stage-struck girl to see him, and partly as a punishment to Dicky for suggesting the visit.

I do not count myself a vain woman, but I could not help the deduction that the plans Mr. Veritzen had brought home even if he went most minutely into them with me, did not warrant the frequent conferences which he evidently had in mind. And I could not help remembering Lillian's cryptic warning: "There's trouble enough ahead for you with that lad without going out of your way to meet it."

Was it always thus, I wondered with women who went into the professional world to cope with men on their own ground—did the personal equation inevitably creep in, and have to be taken into consideration?

It was something with which I never had had to deal in the days before my marriage when I earned my living by being what Dicky termed "a history shark" in one of the city high schools. The few men whom I met were too old, or to extremely young, or too staid to present any problems.

But I remembered most vividly that in my secret service work with Lillian during the war, I had been obliged to consider that personal note with each of the men whose associate I had been, Hugh Grantland, Allen Drake, Harry Underwood—each in turn had presented a distinct emotional problem to me.

And now—Philip Veritzen?

The question stayed with me during the whole of the journey home, and materially interfered with my enjoyment of the supper served on the veranda of the famous restaurant upon Riverside overlooking the Hudson, a building pre-Revolutionary in date and old-time charm, and which, when bathed in moonlight as it was while we supped there, has few equals in the world for beauty of setting.

That despite Lillian's efforts my employer had noticed my abstraction I discovered, when we drew up to the door of Lillian's hotel at the close of our journey.

"I am afraid the day has been too much for you, Mrs. Graham," he said solicitously. "You have been so silent for the last few hours."

"Indeed it hasn't," I assured him earnestly. "I think I have been too busy enjoying it to talk."

"'At-a-girl," Lillian struck in. "Too perfect a lady, bless her, to intimate the truth, that she couldn't have got a word in edgeways if she had been inclined to be garrulous. Remember, Phil, old dear, that when you and I are in full cry, it's a brave and hardy mariner who makes any attempt to deflect our course."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Fine, Clear Skins Within Reach of All

EVERYBODY admires a beautiful skin. No matter how irregular the features may be, if the skin is clear and firm and smooth, it overshadows every defect in facial contour. The peaches and cream complexion, the delicate olive tint, the bronze or burnished type—it matters not what type or coloring may be present, it attracts and holds the eye.

DR. COPELAND

You may see a face so striking in its appearance that you immediately set the owners down as "beautiful." Careful study of the features may show that they are far from perfect. The nose may not be right, the cheek-bones may be high, or the face may be pinched.

The fact that I have just stated explains why many a face considered beautiful does not photograph well. The picture shows the features, but leaves out the perfection of the wonderful skin.

There can be no doubt that irregular features are forgotten when the covering is free from blemishes. It is true, too, that perfect features go for nothing if the skin is rough and pimply.

You have it in your power to make and keep a lovely skin. The first step is cleanliness.

When I say this I mean cleanliness of the body and cleanliness of the intestinal tract. Needless to add, cleanliness of the skin of the face and neck must be had.

You cannot be clean without water, abundance of water, inside and outside. The poisons of the body cannot be dissolved and carried away without water. There can be no clearness of skin without a cleansed interior.

There must be vigorous exercise, producing free perspiration, to cleanse the pores of the skin. Likewise, this sort of exercise gives a beautiful pinkness to the face.

If your pores are large they may not be self-cleansing. Without the vigorous use of a wash cloth, the dirt is not removed. Even then it may be necessary to wipe off the skin with alcohol and then cover it with a cleansing cream. In its turn the cream is carefully wiped away, leaving a clean surface.

The pores of the nose are likely to be large. If they accumulate dirt they add an unpleasant appearance. Pretty soon a pimple forms and the beauty is spoiled.

Everybody should wash the face and neck thoroughly before retiring. Then a cleansing cream may be smeared on the nose and left till morning. After washing with warm water and soap, gentle pressing will empty the pores. Without this effort there may be pimples all the time.

Pastry and confectionery must be taken in limited quantities and at meal time only. The blood must have a chance the rest of the time to cleanse the system. If it is loaded with food it cannot carry off waste.

Green vegetables, fruit and salads should be taken every day. Then with plenty of water to drink you are on the way to beauty.

Answers to Health Queries

B. H. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is 15 years old and 5 feet 4 inches tall?

2.—What can I do to straighten slightly rounded shoulders?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 119 pounds.

2.—Try wearing a brace.

L. C. Q.—What will clear my complexion? During the hot weather I am troubled with pimples.

2.—What will darken the eyelashes?

A.—Careful diet and regular elimination should bring about results. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Try applying 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment; this will tend to increase the growth of the eyelashes and cause them to appear darker.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, December 22

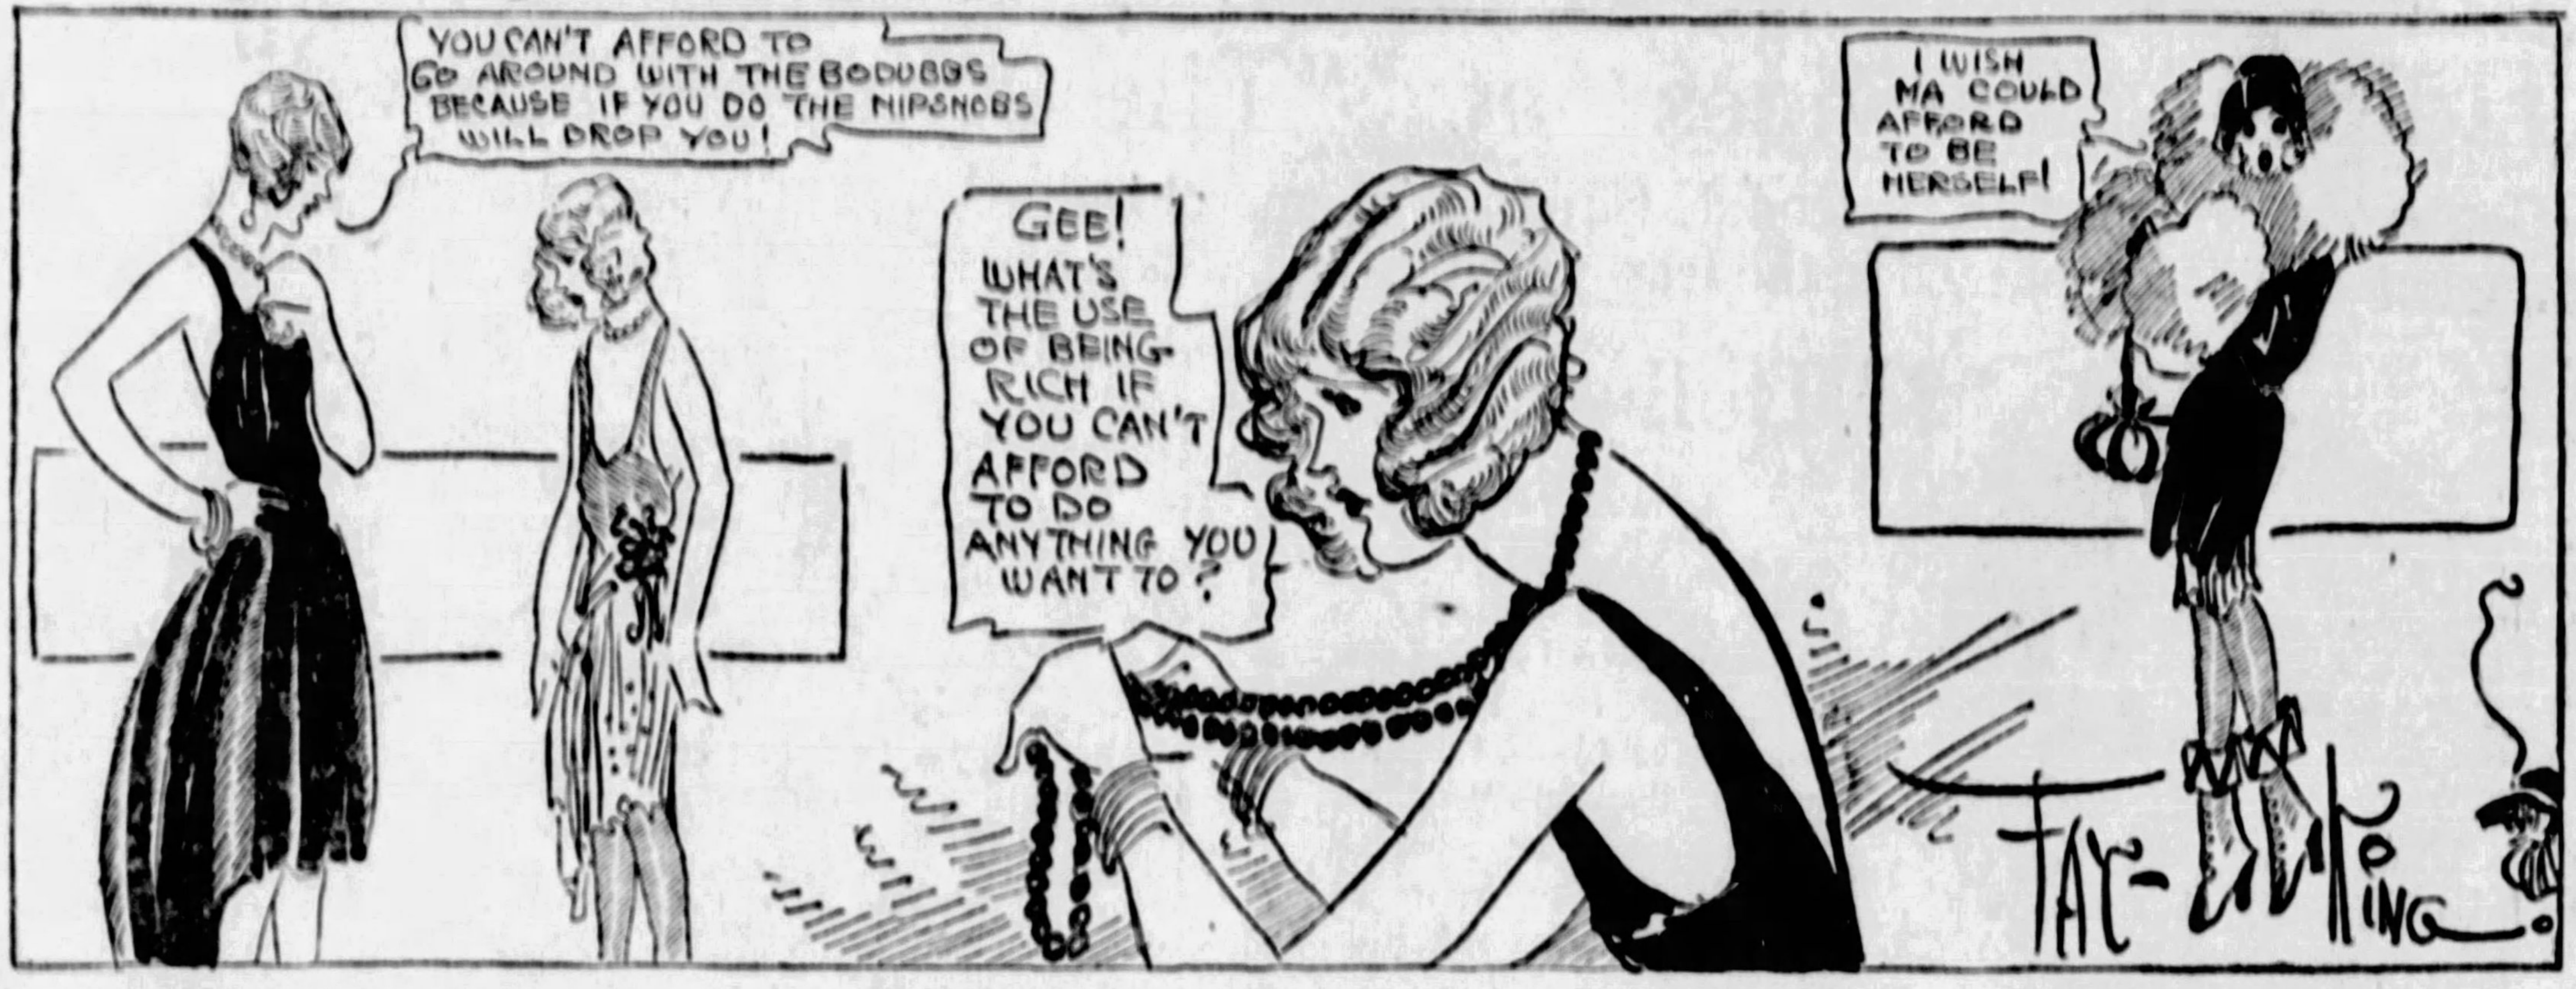
THE sidereal operations for this day point to many forms of conflict, opposition and obstruction. The forces are of a generally devastating nature. It is urged that these be met with resolution, perseverance and a cool judgment which would bend the most obstinate circumstances to a superior will and wisdom. Haste and impetuosity would but add to the menacing conditions.

Be careful as to physical dangers in traveling or with electrical power.

Those whose birthday it is may best meet a year of conflict, obstruction and abrupt visitations of divers natures by calm and resolute conduct, meeting all adverse conditions by determination and perseverance. Safeguard the health.

A child born on this day should be given a careful and thorough training to help it to surmount obstacles in life. Self-control and cool judgment may assist it over rough and dangerous places.

Fay King Points to What the Rich Can't Afford



YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO GO AROUND WITH THE BODUBBS BECAUSE IF YOU DO THE NIPSNOBS WILL DROP YOU!
GEE! WHAT'S THE USE OF BEING RICH IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO DO ANYTHING YOU WANT TO?
I WISH MA COULD AFFORD TO BE HERSELF!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

MONEY can make a lot of difference!

It's no cinch to have to pinch along on one's pennies, but it is often a bigger bore to have to live up to one's dollars!

Some of the new-rich have found this out.

They one thought that pinching along in comparative poverty was about tht worst'thing that could happen to anybody, until they learned that suddenly acquiring a fortune opened new avenues of economy that they never dreamed of before.

How much tougher it is not to be able to "afford" things that you can afford—so far as money is concerned!

But sudden fortune is certain to develop sudden ambitions along social lines! It is then that those who thought they never could afford anything just because they didn't have money, find that now they can't afford many other things just because they have got money!

They can't afford NOT to be seen at affairs that bore them, as they once could not afford to go to places that did interest them.

They can't afford to stay at home for fear people would think that they can't afford to travel.

They can't afford to know many people they'd like because other people they don't like but MUST know—wouldn't approve.

So living up to one's income can be hard as living within it.

They find, alas, that the struggle to gain social prestige is sometimes more of a hardship than the struggle against poverty!

Working Off Energy

By LUCY LOWELL

"EXPRESSION must equal impression," said Elbert Hubbard.

The experience which comes to you and moves you profoundly, whether it be the first sight of a beautiful picture, a sunset in the mountains, the witnessing of some noble deed, is bound to store up within your being energy.

And this energy must be given out in some manner, else you will become as a boiler with the safety valve tied down—destruction to yourself and danger to others.

There are, of course, a number of ways of eliminating this excess of energy. Some do it through writing, some by painting pictures, many more in the less pretentious manner of mere conversation—sharing the experience with a friend.

And these are the right and proper outlets, I should say, for pleasant experiences for those, shared, must have an uplifting effect upon others quite as they have upon your own spirit.

But not all experiences in this life of ours can be happy ones. And to go about striking down another's thought with darkness, killing his faith and burdening his shoulders with the adverse thing which has happened to you is, I believe, equal to destroying his sight and his body.

There is another harmless manner in which the energy generated by adversity may be eliminated. That is by work.

Put your body in motion and your mind will keep pace with it so naturally as to release fresh, health-giving currents of thought—streams to wash away all bitterness, disappointment, corroding memories.

Keep yourself busy with work and there will be no time for temptation to burden others with your ills. And the work, if it be of the right sort, will benefit those others as well as yourself.

Liver en Casserole

For this dish a fresh beef liver may be used, though the preference is always for calf's liver. Wipe a casserole dish with a cut bud of garlic and butter generously. Slice a pound of liver and rinse quickly in cold water, dry, dip in melted butter, dust with flour and lay in the dish. Dust with pepper and salt, then cover with a Spanish onion sliced very thinly, sprinkle with a tablespoonful of chopped pepper and celery leaves and sprinkle a teaspoonful of sugar. Cover the surface with halved potatoes and turn over all a cupful and a half of stock or chicken broth. Cover and cook for an hour in a medium oven.

Simple Vamping

(Lesson Four.)

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE understanding of misunderstood men is the beginning of vamping.

EVERY man is "misunderstood" by somebody—his wife, his sweetheart, his employer or the world!

But there is an ART of "understanding" a man.

First of all, you must understand that he works too hard, that he is too kind-hearted, and that he is always being imposed upon. Every man will agree to that.

HELEN ROWLAND

That his judgment is always right—even when it turns out to have been wrong.

That, even though he may have yielded to his little weaknesses and followed his foolish impulses, he is always animated by higher and finer ideals.

That, while he may have spent most of his life doing trivial things, he was really cut out to do big, splendid, magnificent things.

That he hates deceit, but is constantly being driven to it, just in order to preserve the peace and "keep things running smoothly."

That, while he spends most of his evenings with beautiful dumbbells, who amuse and flatter him, he is really looking for an intelligent high-souled woman who will uplift and inspire him.

That he can't HELP it if the women pursue him—God made him so fascinating.

That, no matter how many women he may have kissed and forgotten, he really has beautiful, shining ideals of love, marriage and women.

That he is a lonely soul, who has never really been appreciated.

That he is full of "untapped reservoirs," undiscovered genius, and unrecognized ability, of which nobody knows except himself.

That he is not really selfish or spoiled, but fine and sweet and noble and magnanimous—at heart.

Any woman who can convince a man that she understands all this, will soon find herself elected to the enviable position of "the only woman who really understands" him.

The main difference between a vamp and a wife is that the vamp coos, "I understand you, darling!" while a wife snaps, "I see through you, old dear!"

Milk Toast

Trim the crusts from one-day-old bread and toast carefully so that it is a golden brown and not burnt. Arrange the slices in a deep dish. Bring a pint of rich milk to boiling point, add a tablespoonful of butter, a half saltspoonful of salt, a level teaspoonful of sugar and two teaspoonsful of cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk or cream. Stir steadily as the milk thickens and remove from the fire. Raise each slice of toast so the milk covers it and turn the remainder over the top. Cover closely to keep hot until served. Currant jelly is nice with the toast.

OINTMENT WORTH $100 A JAR

TO MAN WHO SUFFERED CONSTANTLY FOR FIVE YEARS

Healed leg entirely

Spokane, Wash., March 21:—"While working in a stone quarry, I slipped and cut my leg and blood poisoning set in. The doctor stopped this, but my leg refused to heal. It became a running sore and hurt me so I could hardly do my work. I wore bandages constantly for five years, using several remedies without success. One day a friend recommended Resinol Ointment and after I had used ten jars of it my leg was entirely healed. This ointment is worth $100 a jar to me, and I will never be without it in my house again."—(Signed) W. P. Bower, Box 593.

Resinol Ointment should be in every home. It's invaluable for cuts, burns, blisters, chafing, etc., as well as more serious skin disorders. All druggists sell the Resinol products.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

WAFFLES

Plain or Chocolate

A Tested Recipe

2 cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons Crisco
½ teaspoon salt

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Separate eggs and add milk to beaten egg yolks and stir into dry ingredients. Add milk and Crisco and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour by spoonfuls on very hot Criscoed waffle iron. Serve hot with honey or maple syrup.

For Chocolate Waffles, add two tablespoons melted chocolate with the melted Crisco and follow recipe above.

I use Crisco, not only for my waffles, griddle cakes and hot breads, but for every shortening and frying use. Crisco gives me light tender cakes that you cannot tell from those made with expensive butter; flakier pie crusts; fluffy golden biscuits and all kinds of fried foods without smoke, unpleasant odor or waste.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

Crisco is the trade-mark for a superior shortening manufactured and guaranteed purely vegetable by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A.

SUES POLICEMEN FOR WRECKING HIS HOTEL

Oliver Grise, proprietor of the Grise Hotel, 49 Eleventh street, which, he says, was wrecked by a raiding squad November 12, today entered suit for $20,000 damages against two police lieutenants and four patrolmen, as the alleged "wrecking crew."

The defendants are Lieut. Philip Marmo and John Schnurr and Patrolmen Joseph Lynch, William Rasmus, Daniel Owens and William Kessler.

CHARGES MALICE

The bill of complaint filed in Grise's behalf by Attorney Ralph P. Tannehill, avers that the six officers wrought great damage to Grise's hotel "maliciously."

The six accused officers were haled before the police trial board, but no action has been taken. Copies of the testimony taken before the trial board were transmitted to Council yesterday. Magistrate A. D. Brandon, of Morals Court, also sent to Council a report of the hearing at which Grise was discharged, the morning after the raid. The reports were "received and filed." Grise made a claim upon the city of $12,101.

Night Club Girl Fulfills Vow to Kill Self

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Alice Munn Prevo, 27-year-old night club hostess and a "stepchild of life," as she once said, has made good her threat to kill herself. Her body, a bullet wound through the heart, was found in her boarding house room yesterday.

Once before she had tried suicide but failed. Recovering from the poison she had taken then—it was last June—she said: "The next time they'll take me to a morgue, not a hospital."

Mrs. Prevo figured in the "bathtub murder mystery" of Mrs. Carl Wood last spring, her testimony absolving her husband, Delbert Prevo, from suspicion.

Two letters, one to her husband and one to the police, were found.

"I would like to be buried by my father and mother in Walla Walla, Wash.," she wrote, "but if no one has the money, the Potter's field is just as well."

Helping "Him" Select "Her" Gift

Selecting a distinctive gift for a woman is a simple performance at McCreery's. Gifts of quality are noted in every department and those most pleasing to women are described on this page.

And we make gift shopping easy for men! Courteous and attentive salespeople are in every department to serve, and if further assistance is desired any floorman will summon a personal shopper who will shop with you or for you.

The McCreery name on your Christmas package will indicate to "her" that your remembrance is exceptional.

Negligees and Robes

Silk Robes trimmed with bands of velvet, rows and rows of marabou, or flattering ostrich edging. Quilted patterns of exceptional fineness and crinkly silk preserve the appearance of daintiness and make the comfortable padding unsuspected.

$27.50 to $47.50

Lighter negligees and breakfast coats—particularly pleasing to the woman with early leisure hours—are made of crepe de Chine, velvet brocaded Georgette or silk crepe with gorgeous velvet flowers interestingly appliqued. Marabou and ostrich lend their effective prettiness.

$27.50 to $57.50

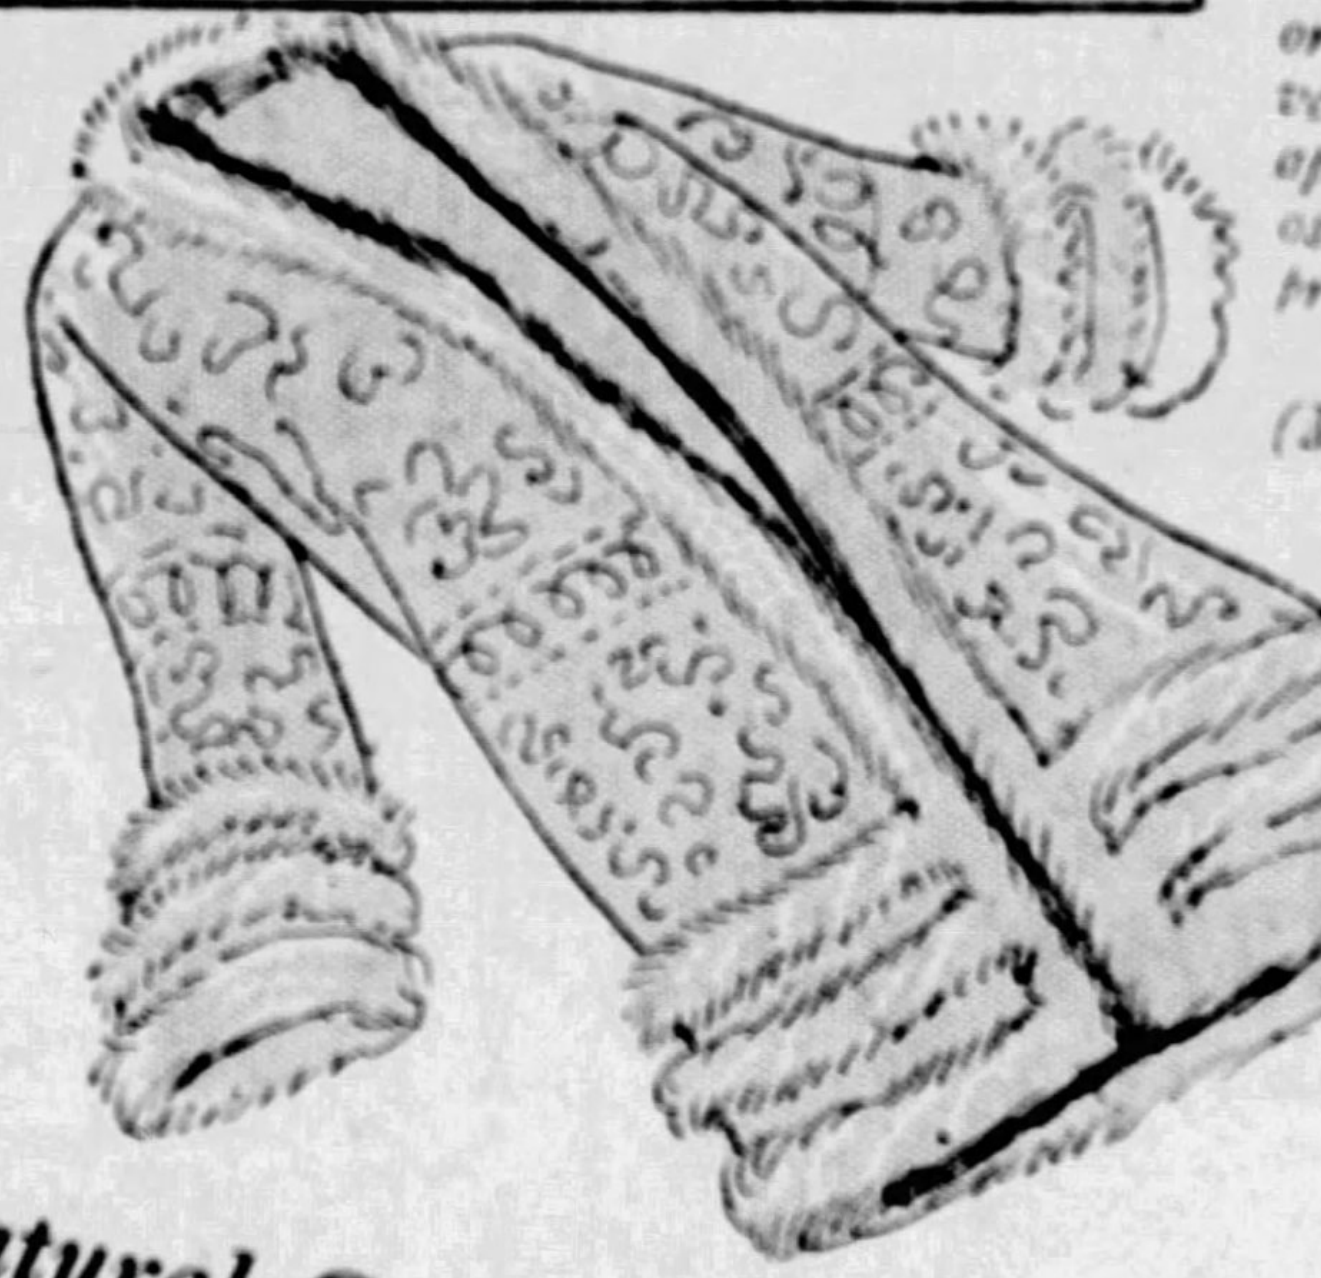
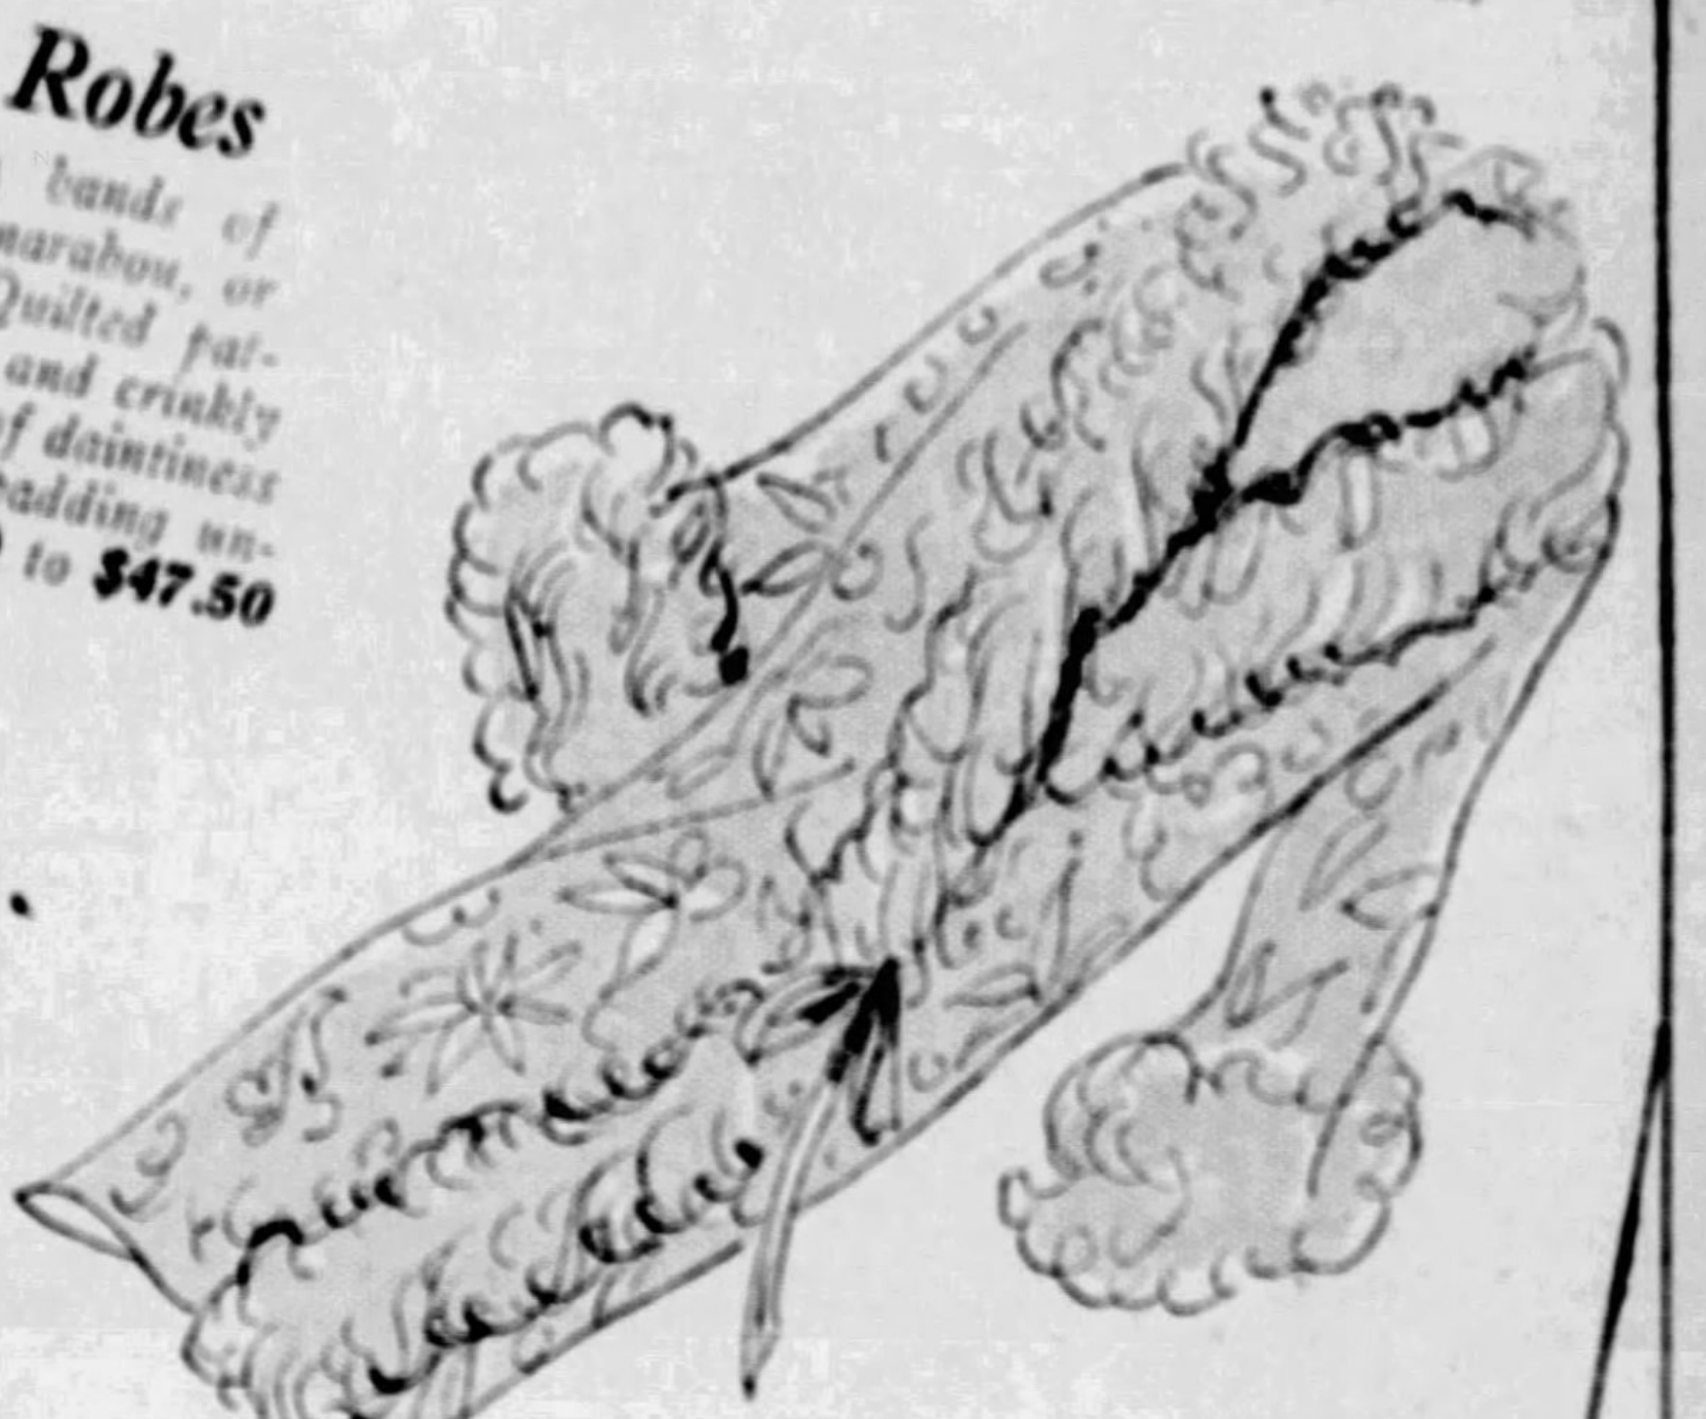
(McCreery—Fourth Floor)





The Gift Feminine—Silk Lingerie

No more universally appreciated gift than silken lingerie exquisitely dainty and beautiful with delicate coloring made doubly alluring with wide lace edgings and tiny rosebuds or advancing to perfection with untrimmed, but no less lovely, designs.

Chemise—in every possible variation with much or little lace, in the delicate lingerie tones or the sophisticated black.

$7.95 to $12.50

Gowns—with lace yokes and tiny pockets, with rosebud wreaths and unbelievably fine embroidery, with tiny pleats bidding for unusualness.

$10.00 to $29.50

Step-ins and Bloomers—tailored modes with a small embroidered design the only adornment, or lace trimmed with small ribbon flowers.

$5.95 to $7.95

Monte Blue, Loaned to M-G-M, To Be Supported in Tropical Photoplay By Cast of Natives

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.

MONTE BLUE will be missing from his favorite haunts in Hollywood for the next three months. He is sailing December 30 for Papeete to play the male lead in "Southern Skies," Robert Flaherty's drama of the tropical South Seas, now being filmed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Hunt Stromberg, under whose supervision this tale, adapted from Frederick O'Brien's story, is being produced, has had his eye on Monte for a long time. But Jack Warner sets a high value on Mr. Blue's services and it wasn't until yesterday the two companies could come anywhere near agreeing as to a salary.

Monte will be the only white person in the cast. His leading lady will be a native chosen from the girls on the island, and the rest of the cast will also be native. Mr. Flaherty, W. C. Van Dyke, and the whole technical staff left for Papeete a month ago to obtain locations and assemble a cast.

Mrs. Blue will probably join Monte later after he looks the situation over and finds what the living conditions offer. At least he will spend Christmas at home.

What a vogue there is at the moment for circus stories. Seems to me there isn't a studio in Hollywood without a circus wagon or two, a tent with a sawdust ring, and a few trapeze bars. Things do run in cycles you know. Paramount has now chosen "Circus Life," an original by James Creelman, as the next starring vehicle for their team of film lovers, Fay Wray and Gary Cooper. It is particularly interesting that a circus story should be chosen because when the announcement was made that Miss Wray and Mr. Cooper were to be teamed together in the future, it was stated that an effort would be made to have another Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman combination. And everyone knows "The Magic Hour," one of the latest pictures made by Banky and Colman, had a circus as a background.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's own private discovery, Louise Lorraine, is about to lend her presence to "Chinatown Charlie," Johnny Hines' next picture. And what a time Johnny had finding the right girl for the part. He looked them all over, had tests made, and finally decided that Miss Lorraine was the girl. She and Harry Gribbens so far represent the cast chosen. There is a very good part for a small girl but so far none of the children who have applied have qualified. Now dear mothers, please don't flock to the studio with your young hopefuls for probably by the time this appears some little girl will be located.

I must keep faith with my public. I promised to tell the name of the Fox picture in which Estelle Taylor will play the feminine lead. Right you are, Miss Taylor will play opposite George O'Brien in "Honor Bound." This is the story to be directed by All Green dealing with the heart-breaking system in vogue in certain southern states of selling prisoners to large corporations for whom they are forced to work. Production will start about January 9, giving Miss Taylor a chance to finish "Lady Raffles" for Columbia. Looks to me as if she'll be somewhat busy.

There is a holiday spirit in the air. Traveled to United Artist studio to say hello to Joseph Schenck and found that he had been persuaded by Douglas Fairbanks to desert the studio for a game of golf. John Considine tried to entertain me in Mr. Schenck's absence by showing me some photographs of John Barrymore and Camilla Horn in "Tempest." How that girl does photograph, and as for Mr. Barrymore, he looks so well in his Russian uniform that he will probably have all the women flocking to the theater to see him. Saw Billie Dove on the avenue looking in a shop window. Meant to take a mental note of what she was admiring so I could tell Irwin Willat. Saw Viola Dana in Robinson's, Hollywood's department store. And that's all for one day.

Al Jolson threatened to bury his head in the sand and keep out of public view if "The Jazz Singer" was a flop. Apparently he thinks it is anything but a flop for he is leaving New York in a few days to come to Hollywood and be here for the opening of the Criterion Theater. Report hath it that the comedian is so well pleased with his first motion picture that he is all set to come out in the spring and make another picture for Warners.

Five Ladies Fair -:- Of Stage and Screen -:- Who'll Soon Be Seen

RUTH GORDON heads the cast of "Saturday's Children," coming to the Pitt next week as the holiday attraction.

MOLLY O'DAY and Sally O'Neil are coming to the screen in "The Lovelorn," film version of the serial which ran in The Sun-Telegraph.

MITZI is coming to the Alvin later in her newest production, which bears the title, "The Madcap."

FRANCES MARCHANT is a dancer in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," in the Nixon Christmas week.

Two Young Actors Remain With Paramount

Nancy Carroll and Jack Luden, young motion picture players, have just signed new long-term contracts with Paramount.

Miss Carroll, called "the most Irish girl in Hollywood," has the desirable part of Rosemary Murphy in Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose," now being filmed by Paramount. She is a discovery of Miss Nichols, who happened to see her from a window as she was puzzled over the casting of the leading woman role in "Abie." Miss Carroll is a New York girl of Irish parentage and appeared for several years in musical shows.

The new contract places Miss Carroll in a similar situation with Ruth Taylor, who won fame over night when selected for "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Luden is a graduate of the Paramount school and has appeared mostly in Western pictures. He had the lead in "Shootin' Irons."

Stars Put into Wax For Historic Museum

Dolores Del Rio and Warner Baxter have just had a plaster cast made of their faces. A Los Angeles wax works will mould their features and forms into a pose that they held during the production of "Ramona." Miss Del Rio, who stars in the Helen Hunt Jackson story, will be seen in her original "Ramona" costume and Baxter will be dressed as the Indian, Allesandro. The wax studies are to be placed in a Los Angeles museum of California history. They will depict the "Ramona" era, which dates back to 1880.

Drama and Music Listed in New Programs

"The Shanghai Gesture," which deals with the night life in a notorious resort in Shanghai, China, will be the attraction in the Alvin the week beginning Christmas Day, December 26, and playing the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Florence Reed heads the cast of 71 persons, of whom 42 have speaking parts and 14 are Chinese. The sale of seats will begin Thursday morning.

Moran and Mack, who have acquired much fame through their phonographic record, "Two Black Crows," are coming to the Nixon Christmas week, opening Monday, matinee, December 26, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, for one week only, in the Earl Carroll "Vanities." The seat sale opens tomorrow.

Maxwell Anderson wrote "Saturday's Children" in five weeks, Guthrie McClintic staged it in three, the result was a 40 weeks' run in New York and a long Chicago engagement. With Ruth Gordon it comes to the Pitt for Christmas week, opening with a Christmas matinee and playing the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees. Seats are on sale.

It is said that Julian Eltinge, female impersonator, headlined for the Davis next week, knows more about women's clothes than do most women. He makes it a study in order to keep his act up to the minute. The motion picture feature will be Bebe Daniels in "She's a Sheik."

Fan Mail Spells Applause for Film Stars

Fan-mail—the applause of the movies! Pouring in from hundreds of thousands of admirers in every quarter of the world, letters to Emil Jannings, Pola Negri, Adolphe Menjou, George Bancroft, Esther Ralston and other stars and players in the Paramount studio tell the story of distant handclapping.

"We can't reach you with the sound of our hands," says a letter received by Emil Jannings as he was engaged in making his latest starring picture, "The Last Command," "but we can write and tell you how much we like your work."

That is the secret of fan-mail—the desire on the part of audiences to let their favorites know what they think of their work. When Clara Bow gets 20,000 letters in a month, she knows that there has been a storm of applause in thousands of theaters throughout the world as her latest picture flashed on the screen. When Pola Negri opens letters from Australia, Hong Kong and Morocco, she knows that people widely separated in language and customs have enjoyed her work.

"When I first entered pictures, I missed the direct contact, the feeling of warm approval which came across the footlights," says Jannings. "Now I get the same thing—through fan-mail. Letters from hosts of unknown friends warm the heart and give the player fresh courage to continue to aim at the highest standards"

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

IT WILL be a real Pittsburgh victory from every angle if the Panthers are triumphant over Stanford and the California climate in the big football battle at Pasadena one week from next Monday.

Not only will it be a Pittsburgh-trained team that grapples with the Scarlet, the preparations of the players for the game being continued in the home atmosphere at the Pitt Stadium until almost the latest possible hour, but now it develops that even Pittsburgh water is to play a part on the long journey to the coast and during the game itself.

COACH SUTHERLAND and the Pitt athletic officials have taken every precaution to reduce to a minimum the disadvantage at which the Panthers will be placed in playing in the warm California climate.

The departing date was put back to December 26, so that the locals would have a stay of only two days in Pasadena before the game, and the team has been coached to nurse itself as much as possible in the early part of the contest instead of allowing itself to be weakened by Pop Warner's weakening tricks.

And now it has been decided not to take any chances with drinking water to which the Blue and Gold gridders are not accustomed. The players will carry with them on the trip the same kind of distilled Pittsburgh water that they drank here during the regular season, and from the time they leave this city next Tuesday night until the game on January 2 is ended, they will not use any other water for drinking purposes.

IN ORDER that there may be an adequate supply for all members of the squad, the management has made arrangements to carry no less than 150 gallons of distilled Pitts-

WITH all the goings-on in the flyweight class these days, it is most peculiar that our own Willie Davies of Charleroi hasn't been getting a tumble. Newsboy Brown and Corp. Izzy Schwartz fought it out in New York the other night for the championship, and the New York Commission yesterday declared Schwartz the champion as the result of his victory. At the same time a Frenchy Belanger of Canada and Ernie Jarvis of England boxed in Toronto, with the former winning. Now Belanger is slated for a battle with Schwartz for the "undisputed" championship. Meanwhile Davies is left entirely out of the running and there doesn't seem to be a whisper of protest from any quarter. Yet Davies has whipped Schwartz three times out of four starts and has won from Brown and hasn't had a chance to box either Belanger or Jarvis.

SOMEHOW, I can't help but feel that Davies is getting a bad deal, after all of the eliminating he has done on his own hook in the flyweight division, and I wouldn't blame him a bit if he should get an idea that there ain't no Santy Claus.

What's that I hear? A voice saying Willie hasn't been going so well lately and has eliminated himself?

Hasn't he lost to Johnny McCoy in the California tournament? And didn't he go right to Philadelphia and lose to Midget Wolgast upon his return from the coast? And then on to

ONE of the most promising basketball stars in the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League this winter is Eddie Jesko, dependable forward of the Goldensons of the South Side.

A crack shot and a heady player at all stages of the game, Jesko has proved to be one of the most important cogs in the Goldenson floor machine. Jesko is the type of a player who appears to go best when the battle is close.

His accurate shooting and coolness under the most trying situations have played prominent roles in keeping the South Siders in the running for the first-half championship of the P. & O. League.

Jesko, if his work in the early-season games can be regarded as a criterion of his ability as a basketball star, should rank among the leading forwards in light first-class ranks this winter.

NOTES of the BOXERS

SOLDIER JONES, who boxes George Godfrey at Motor Square Garden next Monday afternoon, claims two knockout victories over Jack Renault, who holds a similar triumph over Godfrey. Although the records do not show it, the soldier alleges he stopped Renault in four rounds and in nine rounds at Sherbrooke, Can., and then lost a 10-round decision to him. The record books credit Renault with the nine-round knockout victory and the triumph on points. The soldier is working in the outdoors in his native Canada for the meeting with Godfrey and will come here primed to give the Black Shadow the battle of his career.

Danny Davis of Cincinnati wants to bring Bulldog Joe Lockhart here for a battle with Teddy Welch or any of the other lightweights. Welch got a referee's decision over Lockhart at Marietta, O., and the verdict was very unpopular with the fans, Danny declares. Lockhart has boxed Reddy Blanchard, Tony Sanders, Farmer Joe Cooper, Mickey O'Dowd, Syd Conn, Joe Benjamin, Shifty Dando and others well known to the fans.

Tony Ross will go through with his 10-round main bout with Young Piazzi at Carnegie tomorrow night, despite the injury to his right hand suffered in defeating Harry Dudley at Motor Square Garden Monday night.

Eugene Criqui's Comeback Fails

PARIS, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—An attempt by Eugene Criqui to come back in the ring failed dismally last night when the former featherweight champion of the world lost by a technical knockout in the sixth round to Tiger Humery, one of several claimants of the French championship.

Criqui's gameness was the only redeeming feature of the bout, in which he was outclassed from the start.

No, folks, this is not Daniel Boone. The young man is one of the most talked-of baseball stars in the majors, none other than Hazen (Ki) Cuyler, erstwhile Pirate star, who recently was traded to the Cubs for Sparky Adams and Pete Scott. Cuyler is shown on his return from the woods after he bagged a good-sized deer. A crack shot and a lover of the outdoors, Ki goes into the woods soon after the curtain is rung down on baseball.

Indoor Links Here

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE LARGEST indoor golf course in the country is being constructed at this time in the center of the city, and will be opened around January 4, it was definitely learned today.

The Ellingswood brothers, who have laid out similar courses in New York and other eastern centers, are working on the project, along with several local men prominent in golf circles.

The course is laid out on a space of more than 5,000 square feet, and includes water as well as virtually all of the usual hazards. There is a variety of holes in the 18, most of them seemingly difficult to negotiate.

Two or three nets adjacent the miniature links will give players a chance to loosen up on a full swing. Regulation size mashie niblics, niblics and putters will be used in playing the layout. Two or three professionals

Hornsby Denies Debt

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—A general denial of indebtedness to Frank L. Moore, Cincinnati betting commissioner, was made yesterday by Rogers Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants, and former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, testifying in defense of Moore's suit again him.

Moore, a former intimate friend of the ball player, had sued for $45,075, alleging Hornsby owed that amount for unsuccessful horse race bets which Moore had made good for the second baseman among transactions between them totaling $321,995 from December, 1925, to March, 1926.

Before Hornsby took the stand, however, Circuit Judge McElhinney whittled down the amount of the suit to $36,230 by sustaining demurrers to two counts wherein evidence given

PITT, DUKES LOOM AS LIKELY CHAMPS

By JESS CARVER.

THE Tri-State district college basketball campaign, which opens tomorrow night on the Bluff when Duquesne's Debonair Dukes meet Ohio Wesleyan in what might be termed a "warm-up" engagement, will very probably develop into a four-cornered race among Pitt, Duquesne, Grove City and Westminster for top honors.

Right now, with little known of the strength or weaknesses of the majority of the teams, the Panthers look to be far and away the best quintet in the section, and in all probabilities, will wind up out in front by a comfortable margin. They seem to be almost certain Big Four champs, being stronger than they were last season when they raced through the competition furnished by Tech, West Virginia and Wash-Jeff with but one defeat.

In the Class B Conference, the Dukes and Westminster seem to have an edge over Waynesburg, Thiel, Bethany and Geneva. Waynesburg will be strong, but I doubt if the Jackets have improved enough over last year to force the Dukes and Westminster. If any team wins the championship, which has been a Duquesne possession for three years, besides the Dukes, it will be John Lawther's fine United Presbyterian five.

In Non-Conference ranks, Grove City, with four veterans back, will be the dangerous item, possible more so than last year when Bob Thorn brought his Crimson here to Pittsburgh and knocked Pitt off the night before Pitt trimmed Michigan. But Wash-Jeff, twice downed by Pitt, beat Grove City and so did Allegheny, and the Grovers failed to benefit much through beating Pitt.

METHODISTS CHAMPS

Allegheny will have to build a team without the services of Avalon Bill McClure, the star of last season's Methodist five and the man who played the best individual basketball in the section. Coach Baker has Moon, Thompson, Slaven, and a little

THE Reds are after Johnny Gooch of the Pirates, according to authoritative information from Cincinnati. The report states that B. Dreyfuss left New York before Jack Hendricks could take up the matter of a deal involving the sorrel-topped catcher. It also is reported that waivers were asked on Johnny, the Reds refusing to give clearance. The waiver proceedure does not always mean that a club is ready to dispose of a man over this route. Very often the papers are sent out as trade feelers.

CINCINNATI has two first-string catchers—Hargrave and Picinick—who hit from the right side of the plate, while both Smith and Gooch, the Pirate mainstays, bat lefthanded. There is a logical reason, then, for a deal. Gooch was not himself last season. He is a normal .300 batter and one of the smartest catchers in the game. He is likely to have a big year in 1928 and the Pirates will not Carter vs. Eichenmiller, at Kalmer's, Oakland.

Charley Ellis lost the fourth block of his 500-point three-cushion match with Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago last night and today holds a scant lead over the Westerner of three points.

Ellis took the first two blocks on Monday and won the third yesterday afternoon, going into the play last night with a lead of 18. He won the block by a 50-40 score.

In the evening, however, his play faltered, while Thurnblad rallied and the Chicago star won by a 65-50 score. Ellis had two runs of six.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, in his first appearance here since 1925, defeated Otto Reiselt of this city, the champion, in both afternoon and evening American League matches yesterday. The scores were 50 to 47 and 50 to 42.

New York and lose to Corp. Izzy Schwartz?

Correct, but—

I HAVE the word of Jim Buchanan, Davies' manager, that Davies really didn't lose the McCoy fight and didn't lose the Wolgast fight. He admits Willie lost to Schwartz, but he injured a hand in that battle and will bet his entire end that Schwartz can't repeat in a return bout. The decision in favor of McCoy, who finally won the California tourney, was a coast scandal and almost wrecked the elimination, and the verdict in favor of Wolgast in Philadelphia was rendered by the referee after the judges had split. And some months before Willie had handed the same Wolgast a drubbing in Atlantic City. And the man who put Izzy Schwartz out of the coast tourney was none other than Davies, who had beaten the Corporal twice before in bouts at McKeesport.

Seemingly, if Schwartz is all Davies has to beat to become flyweight champion, gaining the laurels will be only a matter of getting a fifth bout with the New Yorker. Yet all one reads in the public prints these days in connection with the flyweight championship has to deal with the activities of Schwartz and Brown and the veteran McCoy and Belanger and Jarvis. How come?

AND how come, also, that Davies doesn't appear oftener in Pittsburgh, which is his home town as much as Charleroi? Especially with a dearth of local cards?

Willie has not boxed here since the middle of last March, when he defeated the dangerous Willie LaMorte of Cleveland after decisively outboxing Newsboy Brown in the Motor Square ring. Both of these bouts drew good-sized houses, demonstrating that Willie is a fine card with the local fans and can be built up into a better one, yet he hasn't been brought back so far this season, which hasn't been overproductive of good gates.

Willie's most recent bout was with Luis Carpentero of Columbus, whom he defeated at McKeesport. On January 4 he boxes Cleveland Phil Goldstein, a bantamweight, at Cleveland. He ought to be put on here soon afterward against one of those ritzy flyweight pretenders. If they're giving him the run-around elsewhere, it's up to his home town to get behind him and see that he gets a chance to win the title. His record over the last two years proves that he's the class of the entire 112-pound field. He was off Fidel LaBarba's calling list while the latter held the title, and that's pretty fair proof that he's there.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs overcame their non-scoring jinx last night by defeating the New York Americans, 4 to 2. Sensational playing by Lionel Conacher and Red Green was outstanding.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs have offered $15,000 for the services of Sailor Herberts, center and much sought player of the Boston sextet in the National Hockey League. The deal is said to hinge on whether Boston can secure Cooney Weiland, who is on its reserve list, from Minneapolis.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Aurel Joliat, winger of the Montreal Canadiens, leaders in the National Hockey League race, has flashed from an obscure position in the scoring list to the top, standings announced today by President Calder show.

Including contests of December 18, Joliat has 11 goals and three assists to his credit for a total of 14 points. Howie Morenz, his teammate, is second with seven goals and five assists.

The Canadiens' pair have passed Frankie Boucher, New York Rangers' center, who had held the peak position. Boucher is in a deadlock for third honors with George Hay, left wing of the Detroit Cougars, with 11 scoring points.

To Surpass Tex's Arena

By MURRAY LEWIN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Announcement was made yesterday by Humbert Fugazy of his plans to erect a new sports palace, rivaling the new Madison Square Garden in size and splendor.

The new amphitheatre is to be located on the block bounded by Twelfth avenue, and Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth streets, facing Dewitt Clinton Recreation Park. This location is almost as favorable at that of the Garden, it being accessible from all parts of the city, Brooklyn, Long Island and New Jersey.

At a cost of $5,000,000 an arena will be erected on this site that will have a seating capacity of 30,000, exceeding that of Tex Rickard's emporium by more than 8,000. The arena will be devoted to boxing, hockey, cycling, basketball, athletic events and trade expositions.

Ground is to be broken as soon as the weather permits. Fugazy hopes to have the arena ready for occupancy by the start of the 1928 indoor season. The company has been incorporated in Albany under the name of the Metropolitan Coliseum, but the arena will be known as the Fugazy Arena. It has a capitalization of 200,000 shares of preferred stock at a par value of $20, and 300,000 shares of common at no par value.

Fugazy is president of the new sports company. His board of directors and stockholders will be announced within the next two weeks. Among them, Fugazy said, are listed the names of many who are prominent in the financial world.

It has long been his ambition to displace Rickard as the leading boxing promoter in the country, but he has been sadly handicapped by lack of an indoor arena large enough to give the Garden any serious opposition.

CHILLYSAUCE

let him get away for a song and dance.

FEW boys entering baseball show as much all-around skill as possessed by Joe Bush, who has just signed another contract with Connie Mack. There is a broad hint out that Joe will try for an outfield berth. The veteran was in attendance at the recent meetings in New York, but did not affirm or deny that he would switch his allegiance to the fly-chasers.

IF Joe were to take the game more seriously he would have better prestige and credits. A wildcat would hardly scare him and he has the ability to back up his courage, but he was too unruly for Donie Bush and B. Dreyfuss. The fact that Connie Mack is taking him on again may mean that Joe will concentrate more on the sport.

JOE thought he was through as a pitcher quite a few years ago. He injured his arm to such an extent that he could not throw curve balls. He showed inventive genius in this crisis by originating the "fork" ball, a peculiar offering that wore out the patience of more than one good hitter. Indeed, Bush enjoyed his best year after he was deprived of a hook. He won 26 games and lost seven for the Yanks in 1922. Joe has figured in five world series.

JOE says he still has the power of his arm on straightaway throwing, which indicates that he would have no trouble in this connection if he takes to the outfield as a means of livelihood. Any player will tell you that Bullet Joe can sock the ball and he runs the bases like a regular performer. He has many friends who hope he will make the best of his latest opportunity.

MACK and other American Leaguers are scheming and planning these cold months in their efforts to break the Yankee flag trust. The patient fans of Philadelphia thought the A's were about ready to smear the Yanks this year, but Connie's team turned out to be White Elephants in a sense that had not a pleasurable thrill.

THE Cubs were not the only club that sought Johnny Butler, Brooklyn infielder. Pittsburgh was among a flock of teams that tried to land this sure-handed smart performer. The Dodgers wanted to send Johnny to Milwaukee, but they hastily learned what other pilots thought of him. The Cubs eventually landed him over the swap route. Thirdbaseman Charlie Pick goes to Brooklyn in the deal.

burgh water in the baggage car that will be attached to the two Pullmans occupied by the Panther party.

Pitt may not succeed in defeating Stanford, but it is evident that the Blue and Gold chiefs are not overlooking any bets that may serve to lighten some of the handicaps of playing in a strange climate.

WHILE he is too fair a boy to question decisions or to offer any alibis, Red Chapman expressed the opinion after his quick victory over Tommy Crowley at Motor Square Garden Monday night that he would have won the featherweight championship in his battle with Benny Bass at Philadelphia if Bass had not butted him over one of his eyes.

Chapman admits that it was an accident, and that Bass was innocent of any intent to injure him in that manner, but as it happened in the late stages of the bout and the former Pittsburgh newsboy was going well at the time, he thinks that the injury deprived him of a victory and the championship upon which the New York Boxing Commission has refused to place its stamp of approval.

BARRING the injury to his shoulder suffered when both boxers fell to the floor at Motor Square Monday night, and which is expected to mend quickly, Chapman says he is in better shape right now than ever before in his career. There is only one thing that he wants, he says, and that is another match with Bass for the title.

CHAPMAN'S confidence in himself in his present form is well founded, in the opinion of the fight fans of this district who saw him knock out Crowley in 1 minute and 27 seconds.

Ordinarily a fighter does not furnish a good line on his ability in such a short period, but, despite the brevity of the bout, it was clear to every one that Red has the class. He did his job in such a clean, quick and workmanlike manner as to leave no doubt that he is one of the best bits of Queensberry goods in the game today.

THERE was a striking contrast between victor and vanquished in the dressing rooms after Monday's bout. Whereas Chapman was lighthearted and oozing even championship confidence, Crowley was downcast and appeared to feel that he had been humiliated.

It is no pleasant experience to be defeated before a crowd of your home friends and acquaintances, even if the bout goes the limit and you lose only through a decision on points, and in this case, Crowley felt all the more keenly the humiliation of having been knocked out in such a short time.

For a time he was hardly able to speak, and when asked how he was feeling he merely muttered "all right" in a low tone.

TO MAKE sure that the absence of his usual spirit was not due to an injury, the state boxing commission's physician was called into the dressing room. The doctor quickly pronounced Tommy in good shape physically, and it was deduced that his trouble was only low spirits, resulting from the feeling that he could hardly look a friend in the face after making such a poor showing to be knocked out before the first round had progressed much farther than the half-way mark.

That the deduction was right was shown a few minutes later when Tommy began to cry.

However, he soon pulled himself together and is now proving that he is himself again by asking for another match. It was a tough backset for Crowley, but his friends are confident that he soon will fight his way to the foreground again. You can't keep a good man down.

CONGRESSMAN MORIN BACKS WEST POINT

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—West Point would lose its standing as a democratic institution in sports should it adopt rules for eligibility of football players as demanded by the Annapolis Naval Academy, Rep. John M. Morin (R.), of Pennsylvania, declared in a statement issued yesterday.

As chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, Morin said that the policy at West Point makes for democracy and puts no handicap on the Cadets.

"I strongly approve the attitude which the superintendent of the Academy, Maj. Gen. Winans, has taken on this question, and I will support him in it to the end.

"From my own knowledge of West Point I believe adoption by West Point of eligibility rules such as proposed by the superintendent of the Naval Academy, is not only entirely unnecessary to preserve athletics at West Point on the basis of purely amateur sports, but that such adoption would be a direct violation of the democratic spirit in the corps of Cadets.

"Every Cadet at West Point has exactly the same rights, privileges, opportunities, prohibitions and restrictions that his classmates have.

"If a Cadet coming to West Point has graduated first in his class at Yale or Harvard, he is entitled to first place in his class at West Point only if he can make it.

"If he were a Red Grange before he entered West Point, he is entitled to be on the West Point football team only if he can make it. No handicap is placed on him because of his brilliant record."

RANGERS

score as low as it was. The remainder of the Pirate defense was hard-pressed at all times by the fast and heavily attacking Rangers, said attacks being led by Ching Johnson, Murdoch and the Cook brothers. Johnson scored in the second period when he flipped the disc past Worters after Murdoch had led a three-man rush through the Bucco defense.

With Boucher breaking up many Pirates assaults in mid-ice, Johnson and Callighen stopped the Pittsburghers when they neared the net and forced them to take long shots, which Goalie Chalbot stopped in fine fashion.

In the third period, Bunny Cook scored again for the Rangers when both McKinnon and Drury were banished from the ice for excessive roughness.

The Pirates threatened in the opening period when Chalbot almost let Hib Milks' shot drop into the net, and on two other occasions, Milks engineered neat drives that kept the Ranger goalie busy.

The Buccos fought hard, but their play lacked the teamwork necessary to pierce the Ranger defense. The lineup:

PITTSBURGH—0.		RANGERS—2.
Worters	G.	Chabot
McCaffery	R. D.	Callighen
Burke	L. D.	Johnson
Milks	C.	F. Boucher
Darragh	R. W.	W. Cook
McCurry	L. W.	F. Cook

Pittsburgh spares—Drury, Cotton, White, J. McKinnon, Rothschild, Smith. Ranger spares—Gray, Boyd, Murdock, Scott, Thompson.

Scoring: First period—None. Second period—Johnson from Thompson, 9:07. Third period—F. Cook, 7:31.

Penalties—McKinnon 2, Callighen 3, McCurry 2, F. Cook, Cotton 2, Johnson 3, Milks, Boucher, Drury.

Referee—Cooper Smeaton.

also will likely be in attendance to give lessons if desired.

The new layout will be completed before the week is out, but the decorations and sundry minor things about the place will cause the opening to be delayed a short time.

Tournaments for professionals and amateurs are to be held on a comparatively large scale.

It is located on the second floor of the Woolworth Building, at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street.

LOREN MURCHISON'S CONDITION IMPROVING

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Physicians today expressed high hope for the recovery of Loren Murchison, Olympic sprinter, who has been seriously ill for a fortnight. Serum treatment for the cerebral spinal meningitis from which he has been suffering is being continued.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

South Hills nosed out Perry, 16 to 15, and Allegheny defeated Oliver, 28 to 12, in Girls' Senior High School League court tilts yesterday. Other results were: Munhall, 27, North Braddock, 8; Schenley, 32, Cathedral, 17; Leechburg, 26, Freeport, 12; Alumnae, 21, McKees Rocks, 18.

SAINTS KEEP ALLEN

ST. PAUL, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—There will be no change in the management of the American Association Saints next season, the club has announced, Nick Allen being retained for another year. Oscar Roettger, obtained from Brooklyn, will be used at first base.

chap named Blair, to work out his first team salvation.

Allegheny won the district championship last season after a close and thrilling race when West Virginia turned in a surprise win over Wash-Jeff in the closing game of the season while Pitt was defeating the Methodists on their own floor 25-24.

West Virginia, Wash-Jeff and Carnegie Tech seem to have just fair prospects, though powerful quintets may come out of Tech and West Virginia. Wash-Jeff is playing a very light schedule and is going to be handicapped during the early part of the season by having to get along without Andy Kerr, who is still playing around with football out on the coast.

Carnegie Tech is also going to have it tough right from the start, with six consecutive ball games scheduled away from home.

The local season will have somewhat of a double inaugural, Pitt meeting Dartmouth here Friday night as sort of a kick-back to the Duquesne-Wesleyan game tomorrow.

Pitt will start work for the Dartmouth game this afternoon in the Stadium pavilion, having pulled in from the West late last night, more than tickled with the four triumphs scored at the expense of the leading Big Ten teams.

The Dukes are worrying around with injuries and illness, and are far from the condition that Coach Davies would like to have them for the game tomorrow.

did not roll as well as in the afternoon and 10 more frames were entailed for its completion, with the result that 58 sessions were required.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The world's 18.2 billiard championship seemed destined today to pass from Welker Cochran to Jake Schaefer, Chicago challenger.

After three blocks of play in their 1,500-point match, Schaefer had established a commanding lead of more than 200 points over the champion, with only two more blocks remaining.

When he won his third consecutive block last night with an unfinished run of four, Schaefer had accumulated 900 points to Cochran's 590, an advantage of 310 points, apparently too great for the titleholder to overcome.

MAKE COURSE HARDER

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—The number four course at Olympia Fields, world's largest golf club, where the National open championship will be played next summer, will be made more difficult in preparation for the tournament. Changes agreed upon today add about 250 yards to the length of this course, particularly at the eighth and eighteenth holes.

due in a large measure to their ability to upset the dope when they are picked to lose, will be afforded another chance to vanquish a favorite tonight when they clash with the McKeesport Junkers at the South Side Market House.

The Succops are just about getting their bearings and stand a good chance of upsetting the powerful Junkers tonight. When the South Siders are playing their natural game they compare with the best light first-class teams in the vicinity.

A defeat for the Junkers at this stage of the season will virtually eliminate them for the first-half championship of the P. & O. League.

DRIBBLES

The Young Men's Hebrew Association passers are busily engaged preparing for their next two battles, both of which loom as two of the hardest scheduled for an amateur team in this section. Next Saturday the Bellefielders meet East Liberty Y, and the following Thursday clash with Geneva College at home.

The McKees Rocks Business Men will attempt to accomplish what no other club has done so far this season, defeat the Duquesne Lafayettes, when those two teams clash in an Allegheny County League game at Duquesne tonight. The Rock quintet scored its first victory of the season Monday night when it defeated the Goose Goslins on the Hamilton School floor.

Followers of junior basketball are overlooking the fine showing of the Moon Klinsing Juniors this winter. This team, including Gabler, Heiman, Kamboly and Linsley, is setting a rapid pace in junior circles and should rank among the leaders at the close of the season. Teams desiring this attraction call Lafayette 0211.

by Moore was that he gave that amount to Mrs. Hornsby for bets placed by her and lost, on behalf of her husband. The court held Hornsby was not liable for money given his wife.

Hornsby denied specifically that he owed Moore $4,920 which the betting commissioner said he had paid Phil McGuire, a New York sportsman, at Hornsby's request.

GORDONS AND BUTLER TO BATTLE TONIGHT

The Doc Gordon Club will invade Butler tonight to meet the crack Butler Y. M. C. A. basketball team. Geneva College originally was scheduled to meet the Butler team, but the collegians were forced to cancel at the last minute.

Last night the Gordons were scheduled to play the Avalon Scholastics on the Taylor Allderdice floor, but the Avalon quintet failed to put in an appearance.

"JIM" REED TOSSES HAT INTO PRESIDENTIAL RING

STORMY PETREL IS TIRED OF SENATE

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Senator "Jim" Reed of Missouri, around whose white hairs have surged more political storms than are visited upon most men in public life, has determined upon his political future.

He is going to "shoot" for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928. If he gets it well and good; if not, there is the slippered ease of private life stretching ahead of him. He is tired of the Senate and wants no more of it.

This is the background for the statement issued here today by Samuel W. Fordyce, chairman of the Democratic state committee of Missouri, proclaiming the Reed candidacy. It was issued with Senator Reed's knowledge and consent and it said that:

"Under no circumstances will he again become a candidate for the Senate."

Thus the die is cast with considerable finality. It is the White House or retirement for the stormy petrel of Democratic politics. Senator Reed is 66, although his vigor belies his years.

The Missouri friends of Senator Reed were moved to make their position clear at this time because of stories appearing in newspapers friendly to the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith that Senator Reed was "withdrawing" from the Presidential race in order to again become a candidate for the Senate from Missouri. Today's statement is expected to set at rest all such future reports and stories.

ENTERTAIN AT PRESS CLUB DINNER

MARSHALL SISTERS

Give the little girls a hand, boys, for they are going to appear at the annual dinner of the Pittsburgh Press Club in the William Penn Hotel tonight. They'll show the press agents, advertising men, public relations directors, telegraph operators, politicians and newspapermen the act they've taken over "big time" booking.

BOB BRANDIES

Bob Brandies and his orchestra will also be on the Press Club program. The Marshall sisters are appearing in front of Brandies' band at the Aldine this week.

3,500 Newsies Going To Sun-Tele's Movie

More than 3,500 newsboys of Pittsburgh will be entertained in Loew's Penn Theater next Saturday morning when the Newsboys' Christmas party, arranged by the Sun-Telegraph and L. Lanning, manager of the theater, will be held.

Starting with a feature picture, Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight," there will be special entertainment for the news sellers that will last nearly two hours.

The Chaney picture, full of thrills and mystery, was chosen especially for the boys because it holds an entertainment factor particularly alluring to the imagination of youth. It will be the first showing of the picture in Pittsburgh, for it is not to be released here until January 7, as a regular show for the public.

Tickets can be obtained this afternoon and the remainder of the week from the circulation manager of the Sun-Telegraph. All the newsies are invited.

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH NEAR WARREN

WARREN, Pa., Dec. 21.—Three were injured when an automobile driven by O. E. Gustafson, of Kane, was struck by a train at Glade crossing, near here last night. Janet Stewart, 22, of Kane, suffered a broken collar bone; Linea Swanson, 22, of Ludlow, and Gustafson, cuts and bruises. Gustafson was driving the young women to their homes from a local business college. The car was demolished.

COUNCILMAN'S AUTO WRECKED BY TRAIN

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 21.—Councilman Robert Mock, of Roaring Spring, and his son Earl, 19, leaped from their car an instant before it was struck and hurled 50 feet by a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train on the Henrietta branch this morning, after the auto stalled on a grade crossing.

Important New Movement; Restricting Production.

By B. C. FORBES

SOMETHING very important—revolutionary almost—is going on which may affect our daily lives.

We used to have fierce industrial competition, with prices and wages in one industry booming for a period, followed by disastrous depression and painfully widespread unemployment. Then there began to develop moves toward co-operation—you may recall the famous "Gary dinners" before they were banned. The World War inspired supreme efforts to expand production extraordinarily. Peace brought immense surpluses of man products. And since then the United States has suffered from overproduction—suffered in some directions quite severely.

HOW could this new evil be remedied?

The need for corrective action was dire. For example, oil was being rushed out of the ground by the most wasteful methods in quantities far beyond our consumptive capacity, with the consequence that this precious national asset has been and is being deplorably wasted and millions of investors in oil shares have suffered acutely.

War stimulated inordinately the growing of sugar. Again, peace brought very awkward oversupply, ruinously low prices for growers and, consequently, far-reaching troubles.

Our productive capacity was found to exceed demand in such other industries as steel, shipbuilding, copper, coke, chemicals, cotton and woolen manufacturing, lumber, cement, shoemaking, packing, automobile, cotton growing, coal, agriculture.

THE terrible business collapse of 1920-21 was one fruit of the abnormal conditions created by our excess productive capacity. The general price level fell drastically. So did security quotations. Unemployment became widespread. Agriculture suffered severely. Banking failures and commercial failures soon were strewing the country.

Although partial recovery was not long in setting in because of the natural figure and wealth and initiative and enterprise of this wonderful land, there was still left surplus productive facilities in many industries.

WHAT we are now witnessing—although many people have hardly noticed it—is a most significant movement aimed at restriction of output.

THE oil people have figured most prominently in this fundamentally important movement. They have made no secret of their purpose.

The newspapers lately have recorded international efforts to reach an agreement looking to the curtailment of sugar production.

There are now "institutes" or "associations" or other comprehensive bodies interested in eliminating or at least modifying overproduction and other evils afflicting various basic industries. Secretary of Commerce Hoover's activities directed at stopping waste and bringing about standardization and simplification in various industries have been crowned with far-reaching results. Yet one effect of this particular phase of the dynamic secretary's work has been to make it possible for different industries to increase the production of the relatively limited number of sizes, qualities, etc., of products, included in the standardized lists.

However, the many meetings held under the auspices of the Department of Commerce have made it easier for leaders to come together and talk over the problems of their particular industry.

THE question arises: Will this whole movement looking towards restriction bring inevitably a fresh measure of government regulation?

Are we facing the liberalizing of the Sherman law and other statutes against combinations tending to restrict trade and, as a corollary, the enactment of new laws to make sure that the public shall not suffer from co-operative action designed to effect restriction of unnecessary output?

THE question, the problem, is many-sided. One thing can be said: If any industry or industries so act that restricted output results in unfair prices to the public, then those guilty can expect ruthless, punitive action by Congress and by the courts.

Overproduction admittedly is an evil. Restriction can be so conducted as to become either a blessing or a worse evil than overproduction.

It is up to our business leaders to decree which it shall be.

COPPER STOCKS HIT HIGHEST IN YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP.)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment imparted widespread irregularity to today's stock market. An opening out burst of strength was featured by the heavy accumulation of the copper shares, nearly a dozen of which attained their highest prices in years. Several of the insurance and surety shares jumped 5 to 15 points.

Marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4½ per cent coincident with the calling of about $25,000,000 in loans, started a broad selling movement just before midday which wiped out many of the earlier gains and sent a number of issues crashing 2 to 11 points below their earlier high levels. The stiffening of money was attributed to the usual heavy withdrawals of currency in preparation for the holidays.

By early afternoon the market started upward again under the leadership of the oils, buying of which was influenced by the unusually large decrease in crude oil production last week. A substantial increase in steel mill operations also had a cheerful effect on sentiment, but the sharp drop in freight car loadings in the week ended, December 10, compared with the correspondings weeks of the two preceding years, aroused some misgivings as to the actual trend of current business.

Greene Cananea Copper was the hardest hit on the reaction, breaking 11 points to 134. Radio, Du Pont, American Machine & Foundry and several others dropped 3 points or more. Losses of 1 to 2 points were spread over a broad list and included such favorites as U. S. Steel, General Motors, New York Central and Atchison.

The closing was firm. When a new bulge began in the coppers, enabling Greene Cananea to recover most of its 11 point drop, and lifting American Smelting to 185¾, highest for all time, buying spread to the remainder of the list. United States Steel worked up close to 150 and General Motors crossed 125. Total sales approximated 2,900,000 shares.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Money Advance Halts Rise.

A raise in the call money rate to 4½ per cent, as against recently prevailing 4 per cent, brought the stock market advance to halt around noon and was followed by concentrated selling in some of the issues which have been leading the upturn. The situation was further complicated by the so-called technical corner in Greene Cananea Copper, which suffered a sharp reaction as the street board stock exchange authorities were displeased with the condition existing in that stock. Heavy withdrawals in anticipation of coming month-end and year-end settlements was accepted as the reason for the money flurry. Some observers believe a 5 per cent rate for demand loans may be seen before the end of the year, but they contend it will be a temporary affair.

—I—

Punta Alegre Dividend Prospects.

At the annual meeting of Punta Alegre Sugar Company Chairman E. R. Thayer, in reply to stockholders as to prospects of dividend resumption, stated it was a hard question to answer, as the earnings are predicated on the price of sugar." He said there are a number of artificial factors in the sugar situation that the business has not been good for two or three years and it is his belief the company should adopt a conservative policy and build up working capital. Directors were re-elected.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Sales of paints and varnishes by Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company have been greater this year than in 1926. Pyroxylin lacquer, sold under the trade name, Minit, continued to develop in volume. Cement business was somewhat unsettled during much of the year. Chemical sales increased. Plate glass prices showed further declines during 1927 and reduced automobile output curtailed the volume of glass demand. Placing of new models into production by several leading automobile producers will add to plate glass sales early in 1928, but there is little reason to believe prices will be stronger. Improvement in paints and varnishes has tended to counteract partially the depression in the glass end of the business, but it is likely that net income for 1927 will be less than in 1926, when $10,010,947, or $20.36 a share, was earned on the 491,802 shares of $100 par capital stock. Company has no preferred stock and no funded debt outstanding. In 1925 $12,122,811, or $24.65 a share, was earned. Stock is on $5 annual basis.

Byers Hits New High.

A. M. Byers registered a new high record price in the early market as advices were received from Pittsburgh telling of tests of the Aston process which prove its commercial success. Subsequently, the stock receded on profit taking. The new patented Byers process will materially reduce the cost of producing wrought iron so that product will become more of a competitor with steel.

Lone Star Displays Upward Tendency

Stocks got away to a slow start on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with prices showing no material changes from last night's closings and the volume of business restricted to odd lots in most cases. The first half of the session was featureless.

Carnegie Metals, current favorite of the element, failed to develop any activity in the early dealings despite the fact that mining shares on the New York Stock Exchange exhibited unusual strength. However, interests on the bull side of Carnegie are still confident of further improvement and express the opinion that the selling yesterday was merely profit-taking on an unimportant volume of the stock purchased at considerably lower levels.

Lone Star Gas appeared to be shaping itself for another move although there was not much spirit in the trading today. The stock was ex-dividend 50 cents a share yesterday, but made up the deduction this morning. Stockholders have approved the proposed capital increase from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 and there is a general assumption that this is preliminary to declaration of a stock dividend.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 6 points, active months showing net declines of about 6 to 9 points after the call under southern selling or realizing by recent buyers probably influenced by rather easier Liverpool cables.

Offerings were light and the market steadied up on renewed covering, combined with trade buying which was accompanied by reports of a better spot demand in the South. January rallied from 19.08 to 19.16c, the general market showing net advances of 4 to 5 points at the end of the first hour.

Liverpool cables reported hedging and local liquidation in the market there, but fair trade calling and also freer buying of cotton cloths by India.

The bulge from the opening decline was checked by a renewal of pre-holiday realizing and prices eased off to 19.05c for January and 19.23c for May or about 15 points below yesterday's closing figures. There appeared to be a better demand at this level, however, and the market steadied, prices at midday showing net advances of about 7 to 10 points on covering and trade buying.

IN MEMORIAM

IN loving memory of our Dear Mother Mary Murray, who died 5 years ago today, December 21, 1922.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they'll wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

Sadly missed by her children, grandchildren and all who loved her.

New Issue

50,000 Shares

Woodworth, Inc.

Preference Stock Convertible Share for Share Into Common Stock at Any Time On or Before December 31, 1937.

Ralph H. Aronson, President, summarizes his letter to us as follows:

BUSINESS AND HISTORY: A new corporation is being organized to acquire the business and properties of Woodworth, Inc., the business was established in 1854. The company is one of the leading producers of high quality cosmetics and perfumes in the United States. Its products, sold under the trade names "Karess," "Viegay" and "Fiancee," have a nation-wide distribution in department stores and drug stores. The company has 13,000 accounts on its books. The business has been built up solely on the quality of its products with practically no advertising. Sales have increased 426% during the past five years. A national advertising program will be inaugurated immediately with a modest beginning.

Approximately 85% of the business of the company is made up of face powders, lipsticks, compacts, rouges, and creams of various kinds, while the remainder consists of perfumes. The manufacture of cosmetics and perfumes is one of the most rapidly growing industries in the United States. The government census of manufactures reports the value of these products manufactured in 1925 at $147,392,000, an increase of 477% over 1914.

EARNINGS: Net profits, after the elimination of certain non-recurring charges, averaging $37,740 per annum, and Federal income taxes at current rates, for the four years and eleven months ended November 30, 1927, are as follows:

Year	Net Profit As Above	Per Share Preference Stock	Times Preference Stock Dividends	Per Share Com. Stock
1923	$335,556	$ 6.71	2.68	$2.10
1924	379,522	7.59	3.03	2.54
1925	541,485	10.82	4.32	4.16
1926	515,809	10.31	4.12	3.90
1927 (First 11 Mos.)	514,346	10.28	4.48	4.00

Such net profits for the eleven months ended November 30, 1927, were $514,346, equivalent to 4.48 times dividend requirements for the period on the 50,000 shares of preference stock presently to be outstanding, and after provision for such dividend requirement, to $3.40 per share on the 100,000 shares of no par value common stock presently to be outstanding.

Net profits as above for the four years and eleven months ended November 30, 1927, averaged $465,095 per annum, or 3.72 times annual dividend requirements on the preference stock presently to be outstanding, and after provision for such dividend requirement, to $3.40 per share on common stock presently to be outstanding.

DIVIDENDS: The preference stock will be entitled to cumulative dividends of $2.50 per share per annum, payable quarterly commencing March 15, 1928. Since January 1, 1924, the company has distributed over $1,000,000 in dividends, an average of $270,000 per year.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: All of the 50,000 shares of preference stock and the 100,000 shares of common stock to be presently outstanding, will be issued in connection with the acquisition of the business and property of the existing company. Of the 60,000 additional shares of common stock authorized, 50,000 shares will be reserved for the conversion of the preference stock and the remaining shares are on option (at prices substantially below the offering price) to individuals (not members of the bankers' organization) who will be associated in the management.

CONVERSION PRIVILEGE: The preference stock will be convertible share for share into common stock of the company at any time on or before December 31, 1937. If any share of preference stock is redeemed prior to the expiration of the conversion privilege, the holder will be entitled to receive, in addition to the redemption price, a warrant for the purchase of common stock as stated in the certificate of incorporation.

LISTING: Application will be made to list the common stock on the New York Curb Market.

MANAGEMENT: The writer, who has had many years experience in the cosmetic, perfume and drug businesses and during the past year has been vice-president and general manager of Woodworth, Inc., will be president of the company. Associated with him as executives will be men thoroughly experienced in the various phases of the business who have been with the company for many years and have been in large part responsible for building it up to its present important position in the industry.

We offer this stock if, when and as issued and accepted by us, subject to the approval of our counsel

RESTAURANT SOLD THROUGH SUN-TELE AD
CLARENCE H. PUTNAM
REAL ESTATE AND LOANS
MEADVILLE, PA.

December 15, 1927

Sun-Telegraph,
Pittsburgh, Pa.,
Gentlemen:

In your issue for November 27, you carried my business for sale ad as follows:

FOR SALE—Paying Meadville restaurant; owner retiring; long lease, send for particulars. Putnam, Meadville, Pa.

Several replies were received. And on December 14 a new owner took over the business. Being one of your readers.

The classified advertisement cost me 93 cents.

Contracts on this one advertisement amounting to twelve thousand dollars were signed.

You had the newspaper, I had the business.

Yours very truly,
CLARENCE H. PUTNAM

You can sell your business too, if you do as Mr. Putnam did. Just call GRANT 5400 and an experienced ad taker will assist you in wording your advertisement for the best possible results.

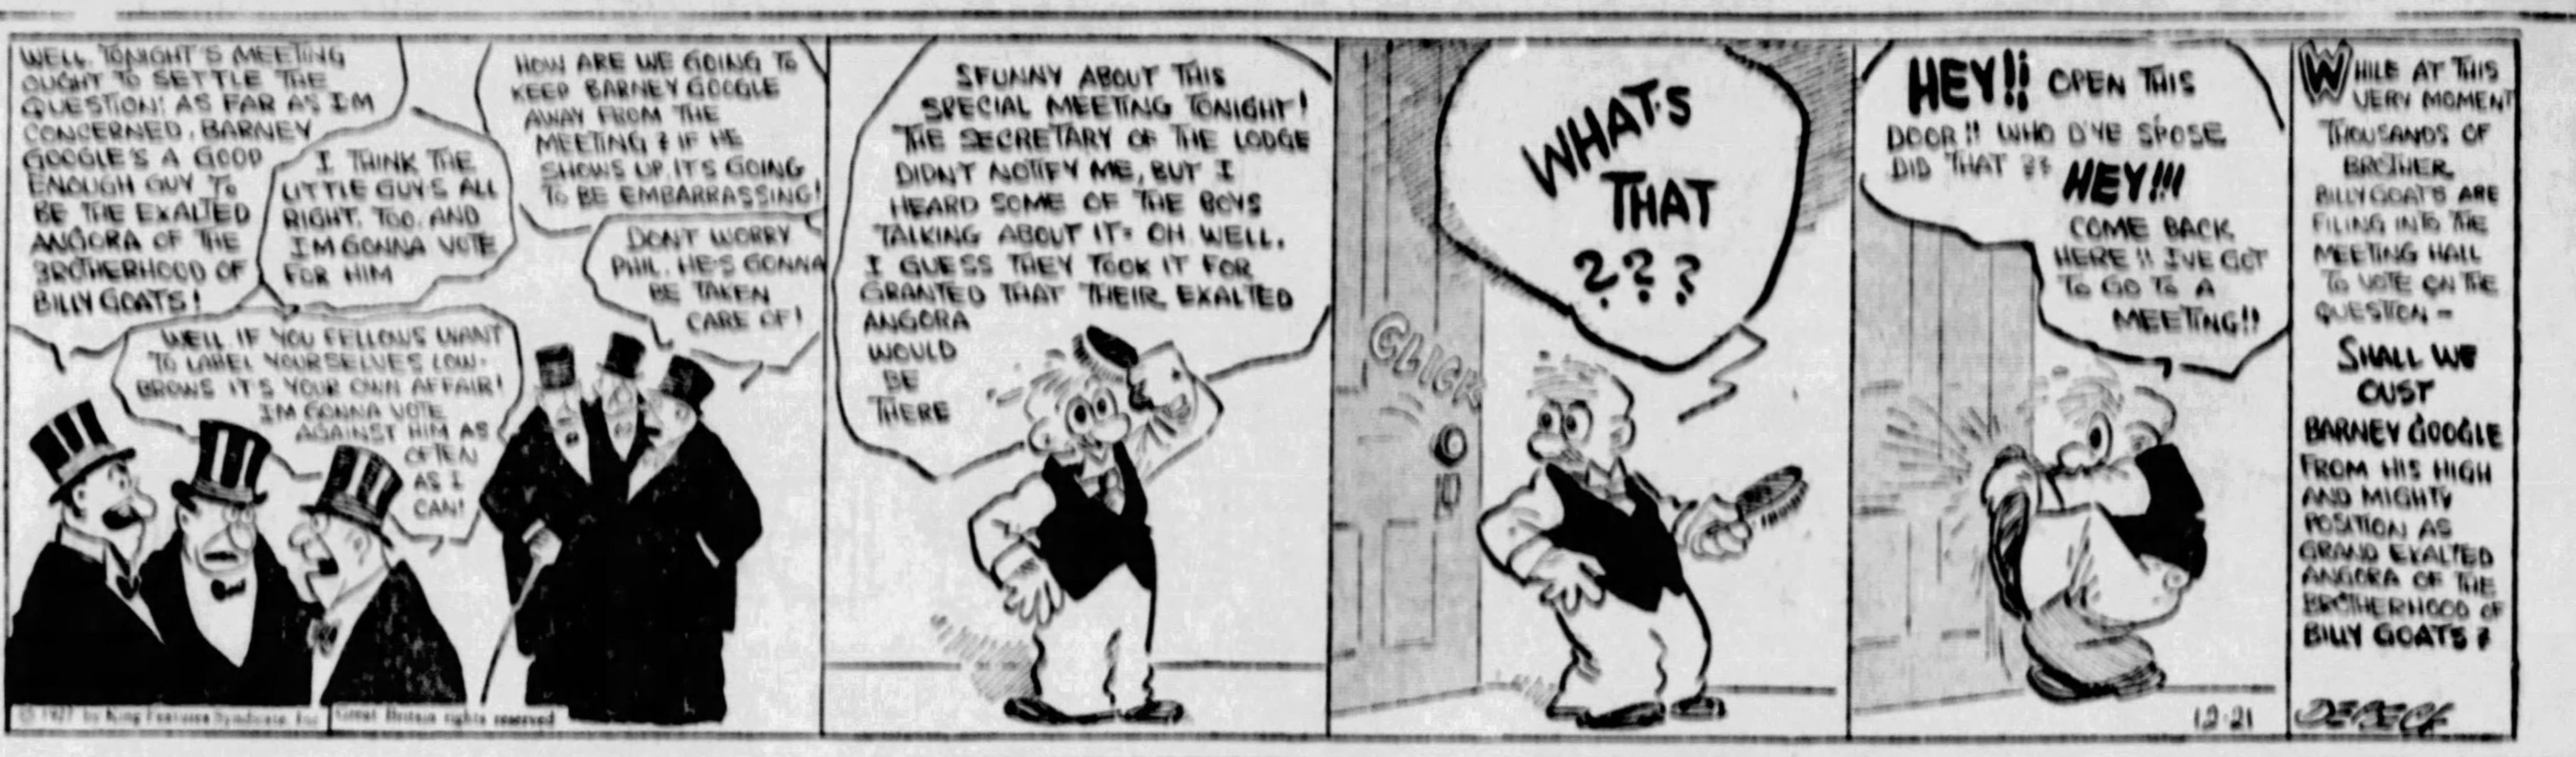
BARNEY GOOGLE AND SPARK PLUG . . . . The Question Before the Lodge



WELL, TONIGHT'S MEETING OUGHT TO SETTLE THE QUESTION! AS FAR AS I'M CONCERNED, BARNEY GOOGLE'S A GOOD ENOUGH GUY TO BE THE EXALTED ANGORA OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF BILLY GOATS!
I THINK THE LITTLE GUY'S ALL RIGHT, TOO, AND I'M GONNA VOTE FOR HIM
WELL IF YOU FELLOWS WANT TO LABEL YOURSELVES LOW-BROWS IT'S YOUR OWN AFFAIR! I'M GONNA VOTE AGAINST HIM AS OFTEN AS I CAN!
HOW ARE WE GOING TO KEEP BARNEY GOOGLE AWAY FROM THE MEETING? IF HE SHOWS UP IT'S GOING TO BE EMBARRASSING!
DON'T WORRY PHIL, HE'S GONNA BE TAKEN CARE OF!
S'FUNNY ABOUT THIS SPECIAL MEETING TONIGHT! THE SECRETARY OF THE LODGE DIDN'T NOTIFY ME, BUT I HEARD SOME OF THE BOYS TALKING ABOUT IT: OH WELL, I GUESS THEY TOOK IT FOR GRANTED THAT THEIR EXALTED ANGORA WOULD BE THERE
CLICK
WHAT'S THAT ???
HEY!! OPEN THIS DOOR!! WHO D'YE S'POSE DID THAT ?? HEY!!! COME BACK HERE!! I'VE GOT TO GO TO A MEETING!!
WHILE AT THIS VERY MOMENT THOUSANDS OF BROTHER BILLY GOATS ARE FILING INTO THE MEETING HALL TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION— SHALL WE OUST BARNEY GOOGLE FROM HIS HIGH AND MIGHTY POSITION AS GRAND EXALTED ANGORA OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF BILLY GOATS?

JULIUS CAESAR GNATLY! SPEAK! WHAT'S WRONG? YOUR FACE IS AS WHITE AS A SHEET! HAVE YOU BEEN BETTING ON HORSE RACES AGAIN? OH I KNOW—
SWEET, I JUST SAW BUNGLE IN THE HALL. HE'S FREE. AT FIRST I THOUGHT I WAS LOSING MY NOODLE. THE NEXT THING I KNEW HE HIT ME SO HARD ON THE BACK THAT I ALMOST SWALLOWED MY PLATE, AND HE TOLD ME A FLEET OF HIGH PRESSURE LAWYERS HAD MADE OLD JOHN LAW LOOK SILLY. THAT'S GOOD, EH?
CHESTER, WHAT DO YOU THINK? BUNGLE IS OUT! FREE AS AIR! HE GOT HOME THIS MORNING! I WAS AFRAID TO LET THE CHILDREN GO TO SCHOOL!
WHAT! LORETTA, ARE YOU SERIOUS? DO YOU KNOW WHAT YOU SAID? LORETTA, LOOK AT ME! LORETTA LISTEN...
I HAD JUST DROPPED A MIRROR. IT BROKE INTO A THOUSAND PIECES. THEN I HEARD A NOISE IN THE HALL. I PEEKED OUT THE DOOR. IT WAS BUNGLE! I GASPED! I WAS STUNNED! I WAS.....
DARLING THIS PROVES WHAT I'VE ALWAYS SAID ABOUT THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION. JUSTICE HAS BEEN TAKEN FOR A RIDE.

BUGS BAER Says

THE present game of bridge is derived from the ancient Persian game of garrump.

It is played by four people, two on a side, and eight kibbiters, who are roving umpires.

The most important share of bridge is the feature known as the convention. This idea was derived from the Signal Corps of the United States Army. The conventions inform your partner what cards you hold in your hand.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

In very good bridge circles the conventions are mostly below the table. It is necessary for a beginner to wear shin guards in order to protect him from his partner's signals.

The game starts by the dealer bidding the strength of his hand. The strength of the hand should go right from the fingers up to the brain. But with most bidders it stops at the wrist.

Having bid one club, the bidder looks at his partner like a mouse in a vinegar barrel. This convention means that he wants to be taken out. His partner takes him out by bidding three spades.

This takes his partner out, but puts them both in deeper. The opponents glare at each other. The dealer then bids five diamonds and is doubled by his partner, who has joined his opponents.

This play is given to illustrate the fact that every bridge player is really playing three people, his two opponents and his partner.

This educational feature on bridge will be continued until exhausted. Mr. Baer is the best known authority on bridge in the world. For over thirty years he was Work's dummy.

MORE ABOUT LEGS

Ladies' legs are no TREAT to
GENTLEMEN of leisure any more,
NOR does the tired business man
Get much THRILL out of the Shapely EXTREMITIES of the PONIES in the ballet.
Feminine legs have LOST
Their kick, and SOME men
Are SORE.
A GREAT man said recently that
A CLEVER woman should show
ONE leg, and THAT by ACCIDENT, because the most
COMMONPLACE man KNOWS
That she has ANOTHER
EXACTLY like it.
But WOMEN are contrary.
Many prefer to show BOTH.
For in THESE days it is more
Chic to APPEAR CARELESS
Than to BE COY.
SOME girls, it seems, are now
Wearing nude legs instead of Nude STOCKINGS. They, must be Either VERY young or very,
FOOLISH. Probably they Are BOTH. A CLEVER woman
Wears BARE legs in two places—
The BEACH and in—
Her BEDROOM.

U. S. Finances Shining, Thanks to Mellon Genius

The country has again attested the brilliance of Secretary Mellon's management of the Treasury,

His offerings of $250,000,000 of 3¼ per cent one-year Treasury certificates of indebtedness was subscribed five times,

Instead of $250,000,000 of these Government securities, the public wanted twelve hundred and fifty millions,

What has raised the credit of the United States Government to the point where it is not just gilt-edged, but solid gold?

It was raised by the same skillful management of financial affairs that would have brought solid-gold credit to a private corporation,

Secretary Mellon has kept the Government's revenues up and its expenses down so as to produce a surplus which he has used to pay off eight thousand million dollars of the national debt,

By thus wiping out this huge mortgage on the Government revenues, he correspondingly increases the desirability and lowers the interest rate of all new government security issues,

That is what happens when we are fortunate enough to get American business genius at work handling the business of the people,

Such a Foolish Question

Foolish Girls Often Ask It,

SHE ASKS, "ARE WOMEN DIFFERENT FROM MEN?"

This young lady, dear readers, is Arden Stuart in "The Single Standard," an interesting and exciting story written by Adela Rogers St. Johns, in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

As you see Arden Stuart here, with her eyes popping at you in the modern fashion, the authoress says of her: "The only thing in the world that really interested Arden Stuart was men. She was altogether a woman of our day—as much of our day as radios and bobbed hair. And she stood at last where few women ever have stood—face to face with the question whether women are, after all, any different from men."

With all due respect for the talented authoress, that isn't a NEW question. Many millions of women have asked it, since the early cave ladies got tired of staying in the cave, taking care of the babies, wondering when the man was coming back from the hunt, and whether by any chance he was doing anything besides hunting.

When this interesting young person, Arden Stuart, looked in the "old-fashioned gilt mirror" this is what she saw:

A slim, strong little body revealed rather than covered by rich, creamy tan, and from it looked out a pair or deep, eager eyes, like a panther's. No mistaking those eyes, challenging, demanding, offering—timmed by long, curling, golden lashes. An odd, crooked little mouth, with a full underlip. And a short, straight nose.

Now you know what she looks like, the girl who wants to know whether there is any difference between men and women,

The next thing is to answer her question,

There IS, and always will be, as much difference between men and women as there is between odd and even, right and left, inside and outside, active and passive, REAL creation and IMITATION creation,

And woman represents REAL creation: she creates the human race, That is her job, and that is what makes her eternally different from men,

The creator must be BETTER than the thing created; woman is better than man, whom she creates, For that reason the talk of "a single standard," meaning the same morals for women as for men, is stupid talk, vicious and immoral talk,

The eyes in this picture glare with the foolishness of extreme youth. They will have a better look later on, when their owner sees her first baby, She won't ask then whether "women are, after all, any different from men,"

She will know that women can have happiness, a complete joy that men can never know.

And, if she marries fortunately, she will realize more and more that the work of the world is divided into two fields as far apart as the sun from the earth, There is for women the field of the home, in which civilization is built and the human race made better. And for men, the field outside the home, in which man does the rough, practical work, dealing with material things, coming back to his home, his wife and his children, to find inspiration and spiritual comfort,

Women are "DIFFERENT FROM MEN," and thank heaven for it!

The so-called "double standard" of today, which tacitly permits men to be immoral, while demanding that women behave themselves, will not last forever,

The "single standard" will come some day. But it will not be achieved by women becoming worse, but by men BECOMING BETTER,

While women are good the human race, and the children, born of good women, have at least half a chance, which they get from the MOTHER.

It would be a sorry day for this world and for the future of the human race if that should change, and there should not be, "after all, any difference between men and women," It will interest you to read "The Single Standard" in the Cosmopolitan, This big-eyed girl, typical of rebellious youth in this and EVERY age, has many disappointments and several awakenings, And she discovers that there IS, "after all, a difference between men and women,

Prohibition and Common Sense

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

MUCH trouble would be saved everybody if a little common sense was injected into the prohibition question.

Some things stand out manifest. One is that prohibition is the law of the land just now, duly enacted by the people. As such it calls for our general obedience. Those who break this law invite other people to break other laws.

In the next place, anybody has a right to advocate the law's repeal if he wants to.

This is a free country and we are at liberty to repeal any law whenever the majority are displeased. There is a difference, however, between repealing a law and breaking it.

Gen. Grant had the right idea when he said that a bad law should be enforced just as a good one, so that people would see its badness and repeal it.

Furthermore, we ought to realize why prohibition was enacted.

It was to get rid of the corner saloon. Having got rid of that pest we ought to be comparatively satisfied.

If people want to carry liquor on their hip and drink it, if college boys and smart sets want to poison themselves on illicit booze, let them do it. The sooner they are out of the way the better, and nobody cares much anyhow.

The main thing is to prevent alcohol being sold at public places to everybody, and that has been accomplished.

All this snooping is out of place, and much of the hullabaloo about the non-enforcement of prohibition comes from the attempt to rout liquor out of secret places.

But it doesn't make much difference whether it is in private places or not, so long as the public ones are dried up.

There are too many fanatics on both sides, including those who fanatically oppose liquor and those who are fanatically in favor of it.

Whatever may be said of the drinking habit, we shall not go back to the public sale of alcohol or any habit-forming drug.

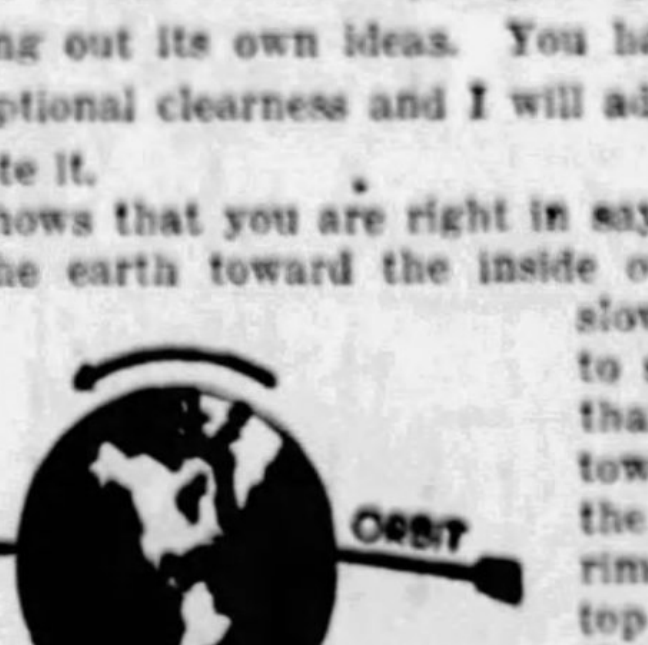
Garrett P Serviss Says:

Moon and Tide

"I have a theory that the tides are caused by a continual change in speed of the earth's surface with respect to its journey through space. As the earth revolves, the half on the outside of its orbit is traveling faster than the inside, because the latter is moving in a reverse direction. The speed of the earth's rotation is added to the speed of its orbital revolution on the outside and taken away on the inside. So the earth's surface is changing its rate of speed as it revolves, which, I should judge, would disturb a large mass of movable substance like the oceans. But I cannot see how a direct pull by moon or sun could cause the tides. It might cause the waters to weigh slightly less, thus causing a heavy liquid mass to seek a greater orbit and the ocean to bulge up, but the moon could not move a drop of water without overcoming the earth's attraction completely."—A. J. O.

YOU would do better to stick to Newton, who was a pretty good mathematician. It is one of the curiosities of human nature that so many people, who are neither mathematicians nor physicists, should regard not only Newton, but all the great astronomers and physicists since his time, as mere blunderers in this matter of tides. Yet, by no means should any inquiring mind be shut off from trying out its own ideas. You have put your idea with exceptional clearness and I will add a little diagram to illustrate it.



EARTH'S ORBIT
AXIAL ROTATION 1000 MILES PER HOUR.
ORBITAL REVOLUTION 66,600 MILES PER HOUR

This shows that you are right in saying that the surface of the earth toward the inside of its orbit moves slower with reference to surrounding space than does the surface toward the outside of the orbit. Just so the rim of a wheel at the top moves faster than it does at the bottom. But in neither case is there any difference of speed with reference to the center of rotation, and the rotational motion undergoes no change whatever. There could be no such disturbance as you suggest unless one side of the earth rotated around its center faster than the other side, and if that were so, or were possible, the effect would not be to produce tides, but to tear the globe to pieces.

Although you say you cannot see how a pull by the sun or moon could produce the tides, yet you show in another sentence that you are on the threshold of a mathematical understanding of the matter. The moon DOES decrease the weight of the water by its attraction, and the particles of water DO in consequence tend to seek a larger orbit around the center of gravity. Careful calculation shows that the moon's attraction diminishes the gravitational force acting on the ocean waters by about one 8,500,000th part. The sun, because of its great distance produces a diminution less than half as great as that caused by the moon. This, however, is sufficient to account for the origin of the tides.

The pull of the moon would be far more effective than it is in diminishing the force of the earth's gravity on the waters if the earth's body were fixed in space instead of being free to move as a whole. The moon pulls the water on the surface more than it pulls the solid globe.

Perhaps the chief cause of popular confusion and doubt about the explanation of the tides arises from the effects of the earth's rotation on its axis, which carries the crest of the tidal waves out of line with the moon. This, combined with the varying shapes of the continental barriers and the varying depth of the oceans, makes the calculation of the rise and fall of the tides at any particular place a problem of exceeding difficulty.

Forget the Past

WHY don't you school yourself to think of persons as they are today rather than as they were at a less fortunate period?

Why try to dim the glory they attained by telling about some of the mistakes you know they have made, in the past.

Suppose you should reach a position much higher than the one you now occupy, isn't it true that some persons could tell things of you that would be not so complimentary?

You may excuse yourself on the plea that you are not pretending to be as much as those against whom you talk.

If you had an opportunity to reach a higher plane would you not strive for it?

And having climbed higher would you not endeavor to forget the things that are not creditable to you?

Of course you would put the best foot forward, in justice to yourself.

Others are as anxious as you admit yourself to be, to make advancement.

Perhaps if your ambitions were as great as those you criticize you would get farther and make a greater effort to reach them.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

To Conquer

TO conquer—once in very truth it meant
To lead unnumbered ranks in bloody strife,
To hold ambition far above content
And golden spoil more dear than human life.

But now to quickening ears old words take on
New meanings with the ceaseless flight of time,
Until at last through ancient phrases dawn
Fresh sense and spirit that are half sublime.

To conquer! Though the warrior still records
In ringing words his valiant victories,
Earth knows today the futile force of swords
And seeks for strength in other arms than these.

True conquest is the vanquishment of sin,
Hate, envy, all the shadows of the night.
He conquers most who conquers foes within
And joins earth's marching ranks that face the light.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

New York, Dec. 21.—New Yorkers are often unable to adjust themselves to the city's bigness, no matter how long they live here. The town is constantly shifting and changing into kaleidoscopic patterns. The business district of today is the residential district of tomorrow, and vice versa.

Yesterday I asked a taxi driver to drive to one of the best known hotels in town. It was seven blocks away. He had never heard of it. "I'm a lower East Side driver, buddy," he explained. It is not unusual to run across Manhattanites who have never been to Hoboken.

Within the week I unintentionally gave the address of the Friars Club to an inquiring argonaut at Forty-fourth street, and a few minutes later passed the edifice on Forty-eighth street. A half hour afterward the bewildered wretch was searching Broadway for another Friars address, given him by a policeman.

In pity I took him in hand and led him to the club's portals. And it was George Ade, I believe, who, arriving at the Pennsylvania station shortly after its completion, followed suggestion after suggestion of uniformed attendants as to the proper means of reaching the street.

After many futile efforts he wired to a friend at the Lotus Club: "Please send expedition to get me out of the Pennsylvania station. Have my own ropes and Alpenstock and enough sandwiches to last until morning." Then there is the story told of Ed Nolan, the Los Angeles banker.

Mr. Nolan was on his way from his hotel to an address on Park Avenue to pick up guests for the theater. Caught in traffic tides, he spent agonizing moments looking at his watch. On the west side of Forty-second street, he took advantage of a halt to dash into a telegraph office.

From there he dispatched a wire to his waiting guests, reading: "Have crossed Forty-second street. All is well." New York is so big and towering locations become a blurr. If we want to go to an address six months old, we go with a feeling it likely isn't there any longer, and are a little surprised if it is.

The elevator complex has become a leading Gotham phobia. There are many people who refuse to be carried up or down with a swift rush in skyscrapers. They are willing to walk up several floors above the street level, but if business calls them higher they make the engagement one for luncheon.

Indeed, it is probable most of the important business deals in New York are transacted across the luncheon table. A business man's office these days becomes a place where the secretary turns away people he does not really care to see. In Wall Street there are innumerable high-powered executives who have a kitchen and dining room equipment adjacent to their offices. One has a chef he pays $8,000 a year merely to serve tempting luncheons to himself and business confreres.

Months have passed with no word of a certain Broadway bootlegger. He was a fellow of great daring despite the fact his off nights were spent boasting of exploits in Broadway supper clubs. He knew the haunts of crooks and visited them with a taunting bravado. He decided to invade Chicago and his auto was found empty on the outskirts of that city not long afterward. The Broadway underworld whispers he was "put on a boat" or "clipped off" —which means he will never be seen again.

It is estimated at least a dozen figures disappear mysteriously in New York's underworld yearly—the victims of hired thugs.

Most of them paid the penalty for "talking out of turn," and there is a lesser penalty for all of us who do that, and don't ask me how I know.

Tales That Are Tol

No Cry There

"THAT'S a brave little chap," said an old man to the small boy who had sat on a wasps' nest. "You didn't cry at all, did you?"

"N-no, sir," replied the boy. "I felt it beneath me."

Pig In a Poke

"SIR, you pushed your acquaintance on my daughter, declared your love for her, and even kissed her. What excuse have you?"

"It was terribly dark."—Lustige Kolner Zeitung, Cologne.

REVELLER: "Could you oblige me with a program?"

Box Office Attendant: "But the show's nearly over!"

"I know that, but I want to prove to my wife where I've been."

An Official View

LITTLE LESLIE was very fond of drawing and painting. Directly he returned home from school out would come his pencils and color-box and another great work would be commenced.

One evening his mother noticed an unusual kind of sketch and asked her son what he was drawing.

"Heaven," answered Leslie.

"Gracious, child!" gasped his mother in a shocked voice. "You mustn't do that. Nobody knows what heaven looks like!"

"They will, though," returned the youthful artist—"they will when I get this finished."
